Jim Conley Tells an Amazing Story

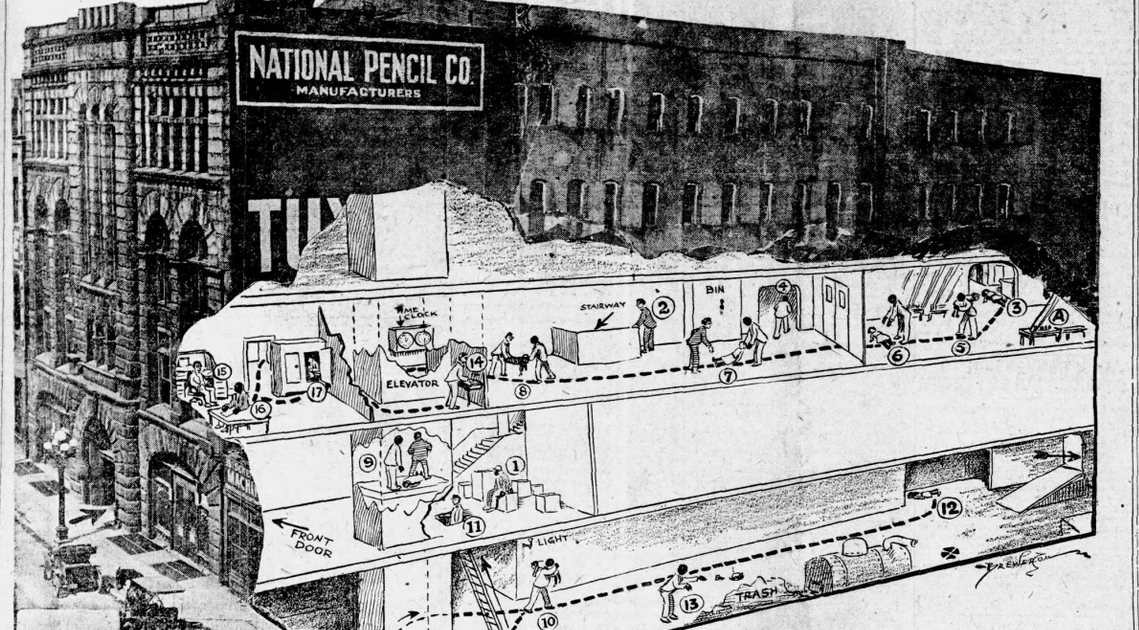
MANY NEW AND SENSATIONAL FEATURES ADDED TO TALE AS ORIGINALLY GIVEN TO POLICE

Conley Swears He Saw Mary Phagan Enter Factory, That He Heard Her Screams in the Metal Room a Short Time Later, That Frank Then Called Him and He Went Up and Found the Superintendent in a Panic and the Girl Dead

HE IDENTIFIES STAINED CROCUS BAGGING WHICH HE SAYS HE USED TO WRAP BODY AND TAKE TO BASEMENT

He Swears Frank Had Frequently Used Him as a "Lookout" When Women Visited the Factory and Gives Details About Several Alleged Occasions—Here Is His Story as Told to Jury. Women Ordered From Court Room by Judge

CONLEY'S PANTOMIME ILLUSTRATION OF GRUESOME PART HE PLAYED IN PHAGAN CRIME



This diagram is reproduced so that readers can compare the negro's story, as he told it on the stand, with his pantomime illustration of the crime in the presence of the officers some weeks ago. In numerical sequence the reader can follow on this diagram the movements of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, at the National Pencil factory on the day of Mary Phagan's murder, as the negro described them to the police and then re-enacted them before the eyes of the police at the factory itself. (1) Conley sits dozing and half-sodden with whisky and bear on boxes beside stairway in gloom. (2) He answers Mr. Frank's call and Mr. Frank meets him at the head of the stairs and sends him back to (3) to pick up the girl who has "hit her head against some thing." Beyond the girl's body is the women's lavatory. "A"—machine where strand of hair was found Monday after the murder. (4) Negro goes after crocus bagging to wrap body in. (5) Carpenter's work bench and where fitter has chipped wood from the floor for analysis). (6) It slips from his shoulder and falls to the floor. (This is the spot where workers in the factory noticed blood two days later when they came back to work, and where fitter has chipped wood from the floor for analysis). (7) Mr. Frank, having come to help the negro after he dropped the body, is so nervous himself that the feet slip from his hands and fall to the floor. (8) They carry the body between them to the elevator. Mr. Frank running it, standing astride the girl's feet. (10) The negro shoulders the body again. Mr. Frank climbing the ladder to the trap door (11) to watch the entrance and the basement both from there. (12) The negro puts the body down around the corner at the negro's end. Cross marks where Newt Lee was standing with his lantern when he spied the body, over twelve hours later. Arrow points to back door, found closed, with hasp pulled out and the lock in it. (12) Negro throws girl's hat and ribbon and shoe, and the stained crocus sack upon trash pile in front of furnace, at Mr. Frank's direction. Then negro runs elevator back up. Mr. Frank jumping aboard as car passes street floor and both emerging at second floor, Mr. Frank going around behind elevator to sink (14) and washing hands there. Time clock that faces elevator shaft is shown through it. (15) Mr. Frank sits at desk, and (16) negro sits at table, writing notes. They hear some one coming, and negro is hid in wardrobe (17).

"CONLEY'S STORY THE VILEST AND MOST AMAZING PACK OF LIES EVER CONCEIVED"
—LEO M. FRANK.

"The vilest and most amazing pack of lies ever conceived in the perverted brain of a wicked human being," is the way Leo M. Frank characterized the remarkable story of James Conley, the negro sweeper.

It was to friends and while he was eating his luncheon in a court house ante-room that Frank expressed himself. He appeared to be almost overcome with indignation, but was confident that his attorneys would be able to break the negro down during cross-examination.

Every moment of the time that Conley was on the stand Monday morning his face was the object of Frank's eye. The negro kept his gaze averted from Frank, but the defendant, apparently unmoved by the terrible accusations of the witness, continued to look him straight in the eye.

Jim Conley, negro sweeper at the National Pencil factory, took the witness stand at the trial of Leo M. Frank Monday morning, and told an amazing story which added many new and sensational features to the confessions given to the police by him and made public some weeks ago.

Conley for the first time dramatically declared that he was at the pencil factory when little Mary Phagan entered shortly after 12 o'clock to get her pay, that he saw her and that a little later he saw Monteen Stover go in. The Stover girl left the factory, he said, but Mary Phagan did not. A little while after Mary Phagan entered, according to the negro's remarkable story, he heard screams in the metal room where the state claims the crime was committed. In a short time, Frank signalled him to come upstairs, and he went, finding the superintendent dazed and in a panic. The negro then detailed the story of finding the little girl's dead body, of wrapping it up in a crocus sack at the direction of Mr. Frank, and assisting the superintendent in carrying it to the basement.

Conley's story of carrying the body to the basement coincided with what he had previously told in this connection. He swore that it had been planned to burn the body and that Mr. Frank had instructed him to build up the fire for this purpose, but that he became frightened and did not carry out the superintendent's instructions.

The negro told his story glibly. With little prompting from the solicitor he talked in a rapid, recitative manner that made his testimony difficult for the stenographers to take down. When he had finished he was turned over to the defense for crosss-examination, and Luther Z Rosser began to fire questions at him in an effort to break down his story. Conley was still on the stand when court adjourned for lunch and the cross-examination was resumed at 2 o'clock. It is expected that the negro will be under cross-examination for many hours, as it is certain that he will not be allowed to leave the stand until he has been given a severe grilling.

When court convened for the afternoon session Judge Roan ordered all women to leave the court room, declaring that the testimony would be unfit for them to hear. About 175 women were present when the judge made the announcement.

Startling portion of the negro's testimony was his claim that on previous Saturdays and holidays he had acted as "lookout" for the accused superintendent while the latter met different young ladies on the second floor of the factory. The witness went into detail when he related the happenings on the day of the tragedy. He declared that Frank had engaged him to come to the factory and "watch for him at the door like he had done on previous Saturdays. Then the negro told of the different persons entering the door and of Frank's signals to him as the "lookout." He declared that the accused told him when the right one entered he would stamp his foot and that meant for him to lock the door so nobody could enter and when one whistled for him to come up the stairs and ask to borrow money and give the girl a chance to get out.

A piece of crocus bagging was produced in court for the first time during Conley's story. Some large dark stains appeared in the middle of it. "Yes, that's it," said the negro, identifying it as the cloth used by him to wrap up Mary Phagan's body.

The solicitor called for Jim Conley, the negro sweeper in the pencil factory regarded as the star witness for the state. It was 18 minutes to 10 o'clock then. The court waited a few moments, and bailiffs returned with the word that Conley had not arrived yet at the solicitor's office, where instructions had been given a few minutes previously to take him. More telephoning was done.

Conley arrived at 10 o'clock in custody of Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford, accompanied by his lawyer, W. M. Smith.

The negro was handcuffed when he entered the court room. The two chiefs passed with him at the door, and Chief Lanford removed the handcuffs, taking the negro to the witness stand.

Conley walked briskly along the court room from the front entrance, with the two chiefs just at his heels. At the middle aisle bailiffs directed him to take the witness chair.

Without slackening his rather rapid pace the negro stepped up to the stand and sat down in a chair. Immediately he was sworn by the solicitor.

CONLEY FACES FRANK.

The negro displayed no sign of nervousness. He appeared perfectly cool. He glanced at Frank and Frank returned the glance. Neither changed expression.

The negro wore a clean blue negligee shirt. He had on the same dark coat and trousers, and the same worn tan shoes which he wore when he was arrested some three months ago.

During the wait, Judge Roan impatient and asked the sheriff "Where is Conley?"

The sheriff hasn't got Jim Conley!" shouted Rosser.

The negro held his hand and arm straight up and looked the solicitor straight in the eye as he was being sworn.

"What is your name?"

"James Conley."

"Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant? If so where is he?"

"Yes, I know him. There he is," answered the negro, pointing to Frank.

"Did you have any conversation with Mr. Frank on Friday, April 25?"

"Yes, sir," the witness rattled off in a hurried manner. "About 5 o'clock he came up to the fourth floor where I was working." The witness completed a sentence but no one in the court heard it.

"Have him repeat that answer," asked Mr. Rosser.

TOLD HIM TO RETURN.

The negro said that Frank had told him to come back Saturday, place daily, o'clock, "like I had before."

"How long have you worked at the National Pencil factory?"

"Two years."

"Had you been back before on Saturdays?"

"Yes, sir, several times."

"How often?"

"I don't know, but several times."

"What time did he say to come back?"

The negro had answered "8:30" before Attorney Rosser could object that the question was leading.

"I went back on Saturday, April 26, about half past eight o'clock," continued the negro.

"Who got there first, you or Mr. Frank?"

"We met at the door and I followed him in."

"What conversation did you have?"

WATCH FOR HIM.

"After we got in on Saturday morning, Mr. Frank said that I was a little early. I told him it was the time he'd said for me to come. He said I was a little too early for what he wanted me to do. I asked him what he wanted. He said he wanted me to watch for him like

WILSON RESIGNS AS MEXICAN ENVOY; NO SUCCESSOR NAMED

Ambassador's Resignation Accepted by Bryan Who Says Wilson's Attitude Clashed With That of Administration

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Secretary Bryan today announced the acceptance of the resignation of Henry Lane Wilson as ambassador to Mexico.

In doing so, Secretary Bryan made the following statement: Ambassador Wilson's resignation has been accepted to take effect October 14. The part which he felt it his duty to take in the earlier stages of the recent revolution in Mexico would make it difficult for him to represent the views of the present administration in view of the situation which now exists."

The ambassador in the ordinary practice is entitled to sixty days' leave, exclusive of Sundays, which accounts for the fixing of the date of October 14 in the announcement. In the meantime no appointment can be made of a successor, as a vacancy will not exist until that date.

O'SHAUGHNESSY IN CHARGE.

Consequently the American embassy in Mexico will remain in charge of Secretary O'Shaughnessy, corresponding in status with the Mexican embassy in the city of Washington, which now is conducted by Charles Algara.

The resignation will be followed by no announcement of policy toward Mexico by President Wilson. No intimation of what the announcement would be was permitted to leak out, but there were assurances that armed intervention was out of the question, and there were reasons for believing the announcement would deal with this government's attitude toward exports of arms to Mexico.

Mr. Wilson after leaving the state department, dictated the following statement:

AMBASSADOR'S STATEMENT.

"I believe that the president and the secretary of state in their consideration of the question are actuated by the highest patriotism and with the best intentions to both countries. I am unaware of what solution of the existing situation is proposed, but I trust it will be found satisfactory. I have no pride of opinion with reference to my own recommendations, claiming for them that they were conscientious and represent the views of 98 per cent

BIG REDUCTIONS ARE ORDERED IN EXPRESS RATES

Packages of Less Than Fifty Pounds Will Be Carried at Practically the Same as Parcel Post Rates

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Reductions in express rates which will cost the companies fully $26,000,000 a year, or approximately 16 per cent of their gross revenue, were ordered by the interstate commerce commission today to become effective on or before October 15, 1913. Notable reforms in practices also were ordered.

The most important change prescribed by the order is by way of modification of the present graduated scale of parcel rates. One hundred-pound rates for short distances either have been left unchanged or slightly reduced; for longer distances they have been lowered; for fifty pounds or less all rates have been practically reduced. For packages of more than fourd pounds going more than 200 miles and less than 2,000, the new express rates are generally lower than the parcel post rates; for more than 3-

Many Discrepancies Between Conley's Testimony and His Testimony Given to Detectives

Negro Swore Previously That He Never Saw Mary Phagan Enter Factory—Many Other Changes in Story—Fourth Time He's Changed Narrative

James Conley's story as he told it on the witness stand Monday morning differs in many important details from the story he told to the detectives in his famous affidavit of confession.

In that affidavit he said that by appointment he met Frank at the corner of Forsyth and Nelson streets the day of the murder, and that he first went to the factory on that day when he followed Frank back there.

He now says that he went to the factory early Saturday morning, April 26, and after remaining there for some time in hiding he went away, meeting Frank at Forsyth and Nelson streets at about 10:30 and later following him back to the factory.

This change in the negro's recital has evidently been made since he learned that some of the incidents he described in his affidavit occurred during the early morning and before he said he came to the factory from Nelson and Forsyth streets.

In his affidavit Conley swore that he never saw Mary Phagan enter the factory, that he was drinking and must have been dozing and that the first time he saw her was when he went back into the metal room under directions from Frank.

Now he says he did see her go upstairs and that a short time later he heard a scream in the metal room.

In his affidavit he said that when Frank called him upstairs he told him that he (Frank) had picked up a girl back in the metal room, had let her fall and that her head had struck something.

Now he says Frank admitted having struck the girl, because she resisted his attentions.

Many other more or les important discrepancies can be noted in Conley's two stories.

BERRY SCHOOL GIVES BARBECUE TO EDUCATORS

ROME, Ga., Aug. 4.—The farmers' conference and institute which has been in session at the Berry school for the past three days came to a successful close on Saturday. Prof. M. F. Jarnegan, of the State College of Agriculture, and Prof. R. J. DeLoach, director of the Georgia State Experimental Station, were speakers. A barbecue was tendered the conference by Miss Martha Berry of the Berry school, and scores of people attended.

WILSON GIVES $7,500 JOB TO EX-ATLANTIAN

Judge William Bailey Lamar Appointed U. S. Commissioner to Panama Expo

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—Judge William Bailey Lamar, formerly of Florida, more recently of Atlanta, and now a citizen of Washington, has been appointed by President Wilson to be United States commissioner of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, at a salary of $7,500 a year and expenses.

Judge Lamar is well known in Atlanta, where he married Mrs. Ethel Toy Healy.

Judge Lamar's appointment is effective at once, and he will leave Washington with Mrs. Lamar in a week or ten days for San Francisco, where his headquarters will be located.

GEORGIA MAN MEMBER OF CABINET FOR DAY

Director Harris, of Census Bureau, Appointed Acting Secretary of Commerce

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—With the designation by the president today of William J. Harris as acting secretary of commerce, Georgia finally broke into the Wilson cabinet. Colonel Harris was named by the president to discharge the duties of this cabinet office in the absence from the city of Secretary Redfield and Assistant Secretary Sweet.

As director of the census, Colonel Harris is the ranking officer of the department of commerce next to the assistant secretary, and the president recognized this fact when he named the Georgian as acting secretary.

Dr. J. E. Overstreet Dies

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SOUTH'S MERCHANTS ARE GATHERING FOR CONVENTION TUESDAY

Five Thousand Representative Dealers Expected to Attend Meeting of Southern Merchants' Association

Atlanta opened wide her doors Monday morning to the merchants of the south.

The keys of the city are theirs, for two weeks Atlanta will do her best to entertain 5,000 representative dealers who are here to attend the annual convention of the Southern Merchants' association.

Early Monday morning trains bearing delegates to the great gathering began to arrive at both stations. They were met by representatives of the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association, who directed them to hotels and to the registration headquarters.

FROM ALL SECTIONS.

From every state and city south of Mason and Dixon's line the merchants came. The towns of Georgia sent hundreds, Alabama, the Carolinas, Tennessee and Alabama are represented by their biggest and best. From as far west as Texas more are coming, each train is a "special" packed with Atlanta's guests.

While information bureaus are being maintained at both the railway stations, the headquarters of the convention will be the auditorium-armory, where all sessions will take place daily. Here the big corps of registrars were kept busy Monday morning receiving the delegates, providing them with convention badges, and with coupon books which entitle them to all the entertainment features of the gathering.

The number of early arrivals Monday forecasted a record-breaking convention in point of attendance. This is the third convention of the association and undoubtedly will prove the largest ad most profitable. Already hundreds of merchants have stormed the gates of the city and more are coming every hour.

OPENS TUESDAY MORNING.

President Bolling H. Jones will call the convention to order promptly at 10 o'clock Tuesday. Bishop W. A. Candler will deliver the invocation, while Governor John M. Slaton will welcome the visiting merchants. Mayor Woodward will then hand them the keys of the city.

Ten-minute speeches will be the order of the day Tuesday. Various discussions in relation to the leading topic, "How can merchants, landlord and bankers best direct their influence toward secur-

CORONER WILL PROBE PELL AUTO ACCIDENT

Reported That Electric Train Gave No Whistle or Signal

(By Associated Press.)

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Aug. 4.—William Laimbeer, the banker who was injured late last night in the automobile accident near here in which E. Osgood Pell, millionaire real estate dealer, and his chauffeur, Charles Gambeau, met death, was barely alive at Mercy hospital today and physicians expressed only slight hope of his recovery.

Mrs. Laimbeer's condition is critical, but she has a chance for life. Mr. Laimbeer's skull was fractured.

The coroner today began an investigation into the accident to determine, if possible, whether the Long Island railroad train, which struck the Pell car, whistled or otherwise signaled as it neared the crossing. Witnesses say there was no flagman at the spot.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who was one of the party but in a car ahead, said today:

"There were several cars between that which I was driving and Mr. Pell's car. I dont' recall whether I heard a whistle from the approaching train. I do know that I had no idea a train was approaching. I heard the crash rather than saw the collision."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Laimbeer were unconscious when picked up. Mrs. Laimbeer was Miss Natalie Schenk before her marriage, a famous beauty of Newport and New York.

LAIMBEER DIES.

Mr. Laimbeer succumbed to his injuries today. Throughout the night he remained barely alive and hope for his recovery was practically abandoned early today.

S. B. FELKER RE-ELECTED BY DALTON VETERANS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 4.—Commander S. B. Felker again heads the Joseph E. Johnston camp, Confederate veterans, having been elected for the fourteenth consecutive year. During his thirteen years' service as commander he has missed only one meeting, an attendance record not approached by any other member. Other officers of the camp have been elected as follows:

G. W. Stafford, first lieutenant commander; W. W. Batey, second lieutenant; H. C. Erwin, third lieutenant; Joshua Roach, fourth lieutenant; T. P. Freeman, adjutant; H. A. Russell, quartermaster; A. C. Gunz, commissary; S. J. McKnight, surgeon; J. D. Graham, assistant surgeon; R. P. Neal, chaplain; Joseph Bogle, treasurer; O. M. England, sergeant major; Henderson Renfroe, officer of the day; H. E. Hix, color sergeant; S. W. Alverson, vidette; T. C. McBryde, first color guard, and J. I. Tibbs, second color guard.

Improvements Will Be Made in Parcel Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Further to popularize the parcel post system with the public, Postmaster General Burleson today announced that after August 15 the weight limit on packages, would be placed at 20 pounds, (it now is 11 pounds) and that a sharp reduction in charges for the transportation of packages would be made. He announced also that on the same date, "banking by mail" feature would be introduced into the postal savings system.

The reduction in charges on parcel post matter for local delivery is from the present rate of five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound, to five cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional two pounds or fraction thereof.

STATE CAVALRY VETERANS TO MEET AT ROME REUNION

ROME, Ga., Aug. 4.—The First and Sixth regiments of Georgia cavalry will hold their annual reunion here on Wednesday, August 6. Dirge Honors Dead Wife as Widower Is Married Second Time

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—A funeral march and rag time were played at the secret wedding last week of Gene Green, a vaudeville performer. The ceremony, which was performed in the Presbyterian church at Renesalaer, Ind., did not become known until today.

The dirge was in memoriam of Green's first wife who died in February and was substituted for the wedding march. The organist struck up a popular melody as the groom and his bride, who was Miss Harriet Kliessendorff, left the church.

WEEVIL CONFERENCE HELD BY SOUTHERNERS

Decided That No-Cotton Zone Would Not Be Advisable, 2,500,000 Acres Involved

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A second cotton boll weevil conference, between senators and representatives from the southern states and officials of the department of agriculture was held here today. It was called at the request of Senator Smith, of South Carolina, whose plan for establishing a zone in which the raising of cotton should be prohibited in order that the weevil may not spread into the eastern states, was touched on only briefly at the first conference, held week before last. All of the states which grow cotton were represented at the conference.

Five of the department's field agents in the south, who have made careful study of the boll weevil problem, were present to explain the situation and tell what they thought best to be done in the fight against the pest. They were W. F. Proctor, Texas; Mason Snowden and L. M. Calhoun, Louisiana; R. S. Wilson, Mississippi, and B. L. Moss, Alabama, all state agents, for the department of agriculture in its farmers' co-operative demonstration work in the south except Mr. Calhoun, who is a district agent. Secretary Houston, W. A. Taylor, chief of the bureau of plant industry; Bradford Knapp and J. A. Evans, of the co-operative demonstration office, also were present.

The officials of the department are of the opinion that the best way to fight the weevil is to continue and expand the present methods of improved culture, rather than to establish a zone. Senator Smith's zone would run down through Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, and would include an area of more than 2,500,000 acres. The annual loss if the cotton crop were discontinued in this area would be $108,000,000, the department's experts have figured. What the compensation from other crops might be could hardly be estimated, as so many various elements would enter into it.

After the conference, which lasted for more than two hours, it was announced that there had been unanimity both among the members of congress present and the department officials that extension of the co-operative demonstration work throughout the south was desirable.

One-Sided Score

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 4.—The Crown Cotton mill team defeated Rockmart here Saturday by a score of 19 to 5, driving the ball to all corners of the lot for a total of 19 hits. In the third, Rockmart had scored four runs and had the bases full when the team was retired on a fast triple play, this featuring the game. The visitors quit in the seventh, giving up the game as hopeless.

CAPTURE NEGRO WHO TRIED TO MURDER WHOLE FAMILY

Two Searching Parties Fire on Each Other and One Is Killed

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CAIRO, Ga., Aug. 4.—Ed LaCont, the negro who attempted last Friday night to murder the entire Bodiford family near Cairo is in jail at Albany for safe keeping, while one white man is dead and two others are wounded as the result of two parties firing upon each other while searching for LaCont.

About 12 o'clock Saturday night Hardy Rawls, Cratog Singletary and Joe Hall were going down a public road four miles east of Cairo, and, as they were passing a negro house which they suspected, were fired on from a cane patch behind a fence.

A load of buckshot tore through the heart of Hardy Rawls, killing him instantly, and two men behind the fence jumped into the road and ran. Craton Singletary opened fire and struck one of the men in the back, but did not stop him. Thereupon the two men turned and fired, striking Joe Hall in the head and face, but not wounding him seriously.

Both parties then stopped firing, and it was discovered that the two men were Lint Singletary and his father-in-law, Arch Adams. They claimed they were on watch for the LaCont negro and mistook the white men in the road.

The LaCont negro was chased into Whigham, a small town seven miles from Cairo, Saturday night, and captured. Deputy Sheriff John Knight hurried him to the Bainbridge jail. A crowd learning he was there, started to Bainbridge. The authorities were taking him out. The authorities were informed and rushed the negro to Albany in an automobile, and he will be guarded by troops if necessary.

EAGLES' CONVENTION TO CONSIDER RULES REFORM

Great Meeting at Baltimore Will Learn There Are 350,000 Members of Order

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 4.—Delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles which opens here tonight, arrived in large numbers today. An important question for the convention's consideration refers to decreasing the number of delegates in the grand aerie. Those favoring the proposition contend that the present body is becoming too unwieldy.

Grand Worthy President J. M. Brennen will show in his report that seventy thousand members have been added in the last year and that the present membership of the order is 350,000.

SUBWAY MAY END CONGESTION ON AGED BRIDGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—An important link of the metropolitan chain of train facilities was opeond today with the running of the first regular trains through a subway connecting the New York ends of the three downtown bridges to Brooklyn. It is hoped by this connection to further relieve old Brooklyn bridge, which has borne the brunt of over the river traffic for the past thirty years, despite the construction of other bridges.

PRAYERS CELEBRATE 10TH YEAR OF POPE PIUS' REIGN

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Today is the tenth anniversary of the election of Pope Pius X by the conclave of 1903. It is said that the only recognition of the anniversary at this time will be special prayers for the pontiff. The anniversary of the death of Pope Leo XIII and the election and crowning of Pope Pius X will be observed together November 15.

Sandbags Wrong Man; Then Writes a Note Making an Apology

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 4.—When a robber discovered that he had sandbagged the wrong man last night, he left a note beside the body of George M. Baggett, salesman, in which he apologized for the error. Baggett was struck while in an alley on Lee street, and when he recovered he found the note and his pocketbook. He had only a few pennies in his pocket and the robber refused to take them.

SLAIN BY NIECE WHILE TRYING TO PLAY JOKE

Man Is Shot in Night Through Door by 13-Year-Old Girl

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., Aug. 4.—Eatonton and Putnam county are mourning today as the result of an attempted practical joke Saturday night which resulted in the shooting of John McGibbony, of Waycross, by his thirteen-year-old niece, Lula Gardner.

In less than an hour after McGibbony arrived in the city with his mother he was lying mortally wounded in the home of his sister, where he was shot. He died soon afterward. His niece is at the point of death from the nervous shock.

McGibbony went to the home of his sister to get a horse and buggy for his mother. Upon arriving there he knocked at the door, then shook the knob, and, disguising his voice, called to them to let him in. Several times Mrs. Gardner and her daughter, Lula, who were alone together in the front of the house, asked him his business, as they did not recognize his voice. He refused to answer, and again rattled the door. The girl was so frightened that she took a shotgun and fired both loads through the door, the shot passing through McGibbony's abdomen.

"I've got one, mother!" the girl said as she heard the body fall. Both she and her mother believed the intruder to be a negro.

Neighbors came immediately, and every effort was made to save the wounded man, who reiterated time and again before his death: "Don't try to play jokes!"

TROOPS GUARD STRIKERS FROM MOB OF CITIZENS

Four Killed and Eight Wounded in Battle Between Posse and Laborers

(By Associated Press.)

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 4.—Five companies of the California national guard today are policing the hop fields of Wheatland, in Yuba county, where four persons were killed and eight were badly wounded yesterday in a clash between striking hop pickers and a sheriff's posse. The strikers, led by Industrial Workers of the World organizers, still are in an ugly mood, but Adjutant General Forbes believed that if he could prevent a meeting of the strikers and some of the bands of armed citizens who last night were intent upon vengeance, there was not likely to be further demonstration.

News of the death of District Attorney Manwell and Deputy Sheriff Reardon, and the wounding of Sheriff Vose and others of his posse, spread rapidly throughout the farming country last night, and volunteer posses hurried from every community to take a hand. The militia did not reach the scene until nearly daybreak and in the meantime several hundred civilians had poured in from every direction.

MEDICAL REFORM BILL BACKED BY PHYSICIANS

Higher Educational and Moral Standard Sought—License Methods Antiquated

To avoid anything like the experience of last year, the physicians and others interested in the medical practice bill are making every effort to get the measure up before the house of representatives for action one day this week.

The bill would have become a law at the 1913 session had it not been for the fact that it was not reached in the house until the closing day when many of the members had gone home. Even then, after having passed the senate, it received in the house 84 votes as against 46, and nine more favorable votes would have passed it.

This year the bill has already passed the senate by a vote of 36 to 4, and is now pending in the house, where it has taken the place of a similar measure which has a favorable report from the house committee on hygiene and sanitation. Friends of the bill in the house will do everything in their power to get it up for consideration and action one day this week, and under the impetus which has been given it by the senate action, they now feel confident of its final enactment.

The neighboring states of Alabama, North and South Carolina, are among those which now refuse to recognize Georgia licenses because of their claim that the present Georgia medical practice law is out of date, and altogether eighteen states out of thirty-eight which formerly accepted the Georgia license, it is stated, have now withdrawn from the reciprocity agreement.

WHAT THE LAW PROPOSES.

As passed by the senate, the medical practice bill provides for a single composite board of eight members, to be appointed by the governor, and upon which each of the three leading schools of medicine shall be represented. This single board is to take the place of three separate boards, representing as many schools, which are provided under present laws.

It is provided that the board shall meet twice each year at stated times for the purpose of conducting examinations of applicants for license. Each applicant is to pay a fee of $20, and from the fees thus collected all the expenses of the board are to be paid, so that there will be no expense to the state.

One of the requirements is that the applicant must be a graduate of some legally incorporated medical college in good standing; he must also have a good moral character. The board is empowered to pass upon the standing and reputability of the medical college whose student may offer for examination.

In entering a medical college it is required that a student shall have a preliminary high school education, just the same as in entering any other institution of higher learning. This preliminary education is called the equivalent of fourteen Carnegie units, and it is practically the same as any standard high school education. Under the present law an applicant for license is required to have attended medical college for only three terms of seven months each, while the new law requires four terms of eight months each. This is merely putting into the law a requirement which all standard medical colleges now make.

Each applicant to whom a license is granted is required to register it with the clerk of the superior court in the county in which he intends to practice, and the clerk is to make a return of all registrations to the board. The board is empowered to refuse to issue license or to revoke a license already issued under certain specific conditions which are set down in the bill. Among these are conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude; practice under a false name; habitual use of intoxicants or narcotic drugs; the obtaining of a fee upon representation that a manifestly incurable disease can be permanently cured, and for other like causes. Before passing the bill the senate remedied the objection raised to this section by an amendment giving the right of appeal to court and jury to any person whose license may be revoked by the board.

The law makes it a misdemeanor for any person to practice medicine without a license, or to use titles and terms indicating that he engaged in such practice; and it is made a felony punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 or maximum imprisonment for five years to secure license by fraud or forged evidence, or to practice under a false name.

SAID TO BE OUT OF DATE.

It is declared by the friends of the bill that its whole object is to exclude from practice in the state men who are ignorant or unprincipled; to elevate the standard of the profession by making more rigid requirements as to education, both literary and medical. Under the Georgia laws a minister may be unfrocked or a lawyer disbarred, the physicians point out, but there is no way of revoking a doctor's license no matter how dishonorable his practices or even though he may be convicted of a felony.

Attention is called to the fact that a majority of the states now have a single board of medical examiners. Alabama has had a single board since 1873. This is regarded as the most satisfactory method of keeping in view the entire record of medical practice in the state.

Business

(Judge.)

"Your brother who waits on the table is much more countrified than you," remarked the summer boarder. "He's a regular rube."

"That isn't my brother," replied the farmer's daughter. "He's an actor papa hired in the city to kid the guests."

IF YOUR SKIN ITCHES, JUST USE RESINOL

The moment that Resinol Ointment touches itching skin, the itching stops and healing begins. This is why doctors have prescribed it successfully for more than eighteen years in even the severest cases of eczema, tetter, ringworm, rashes and other tormenting, unsightly skin eruptions. Aided by warm baths with Resinol Soap, Resinol Ointment restores the skin to perfect health and comfort, quickly, easily and at little cost.

Resinol is also an excellent household remedy for pimples, dandruff, sunburn, insect bites, ivy poisoning, sores, burns, bruises, boils and a score of other uses where a soothing, healing application is needed. It contains nothing of a harsh or injurious nature and can be used with confidence on the tenderest or most irritated surface. Practically every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. LEONARD J. GROSSMAN HAS QUIT NEWSPAPER FOR LAW

Won High Honors at Atlanta Law School—Will Be With Old Legal Firm

The many friends of Leonard J. Grosman, formerly a member of the Constitution city staff, are congratulating him upon entering the practice of law. Mr. Grossman is associated with Brown & Randolph, Parker & Scott, with offices at 506-507 Candler building.

Mr. Grossman was recently graduated from the Atlanta Law school with high honors, having pursued his studies while still in the newspaper field. He won the Hamilton Douglas medal awarded in open contest to the best debater.

Mr. Grossman was born in Atlanta, but attended the schools of the north for many years. He attended a Chicago high school, winning there a scholarship to the University of Chicago. At Chicago he won the football letter in his first year. Later he attended the Chicago Kent Law school, where he was class president. Shortly after this he entered the University of Illinois and while there won the Illinois state championship in oratory.

Mr. Grossman has taken an aggressive stand for the enfranchisement of women and is legal adviser of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association.

$500 DAMAGE BY FIRE TO JEWISH ALLIANCE

The prompt action of a passer-by when he discovered fire in the basement of the Jewish Alliance, 95 Capitol avenue, at 2:30 o'clock Monday morning, probably prevented the entire building being destroyed.

The passer-by notified the police who in turn called out the fire department, and the fire was checked as it was eating its way through the floor of the first story.

The loss is estimated at $500.

School Books Free in Oregon

(Portland Oregonian.)

SALEM, Ore.—Superintendent of Public Instruction Churchill was notified recently by Superintendent Raab, of the North Bend schools, that the district had voted to furnish books free to school children.

A recent act of the legislature provides that districts may hold an election for the purpose of voting on free school books, and North Bend and Glendale are the first towns to take advantage of the law.

THEATRES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

It will be a great variety bill of vaudeville that will entertain at the Forsyth this week.

There are no big name headliners or features, but the people who make up the program have quality and have been sent here for the sole purpose of making the Forsyth a big attendance week.

The bill will be headed this week by the Eight Berlin Madcaps, who come direct from a long and successful season with Eddie Foy. Robert Everest's Monkey Hippodrome will be a feature that promises to be something of a drawing card. This act is better than just a trained animal act. The monkeys will do some surprising things. Van Hoven, the dippy mad magician; Annie Kent, the little jester; Freeman and Dunham, the singers, and others, including Harry Hayward and company, are on the bill.

Motion pictures will be shown at the Grand this week from 2:30 to 5 o'clock each afternoon and from 8:30 until 10 o'clock each night. The admission will be 10 cents at any time with privilege of any seat.

For this week there will be two big special features—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, "Zigomar, the Eelskin," a wonderfully thrilling picture in four reels, following on Thursday, Friday and Saturday the special feature will be "Balaco, the Demon Baboon," a wonderful accomplishment in photography, and a thriller from start to finish.

The popularity of musical comedy will doubtless gain in favor this week with the engagement of Lew Cantor's sparkling musical comedy, "Along the Pike," which will begin a week's engagement at the regular matinee this afternoon. The Bijou has offered during its eight or ten weeks of musical comedy some excellent attractions, but it is said that the present offering will eclipse anything that has been seen in the musical comedy line so far. A company of some twenty people will produce the musical vomedy and the list will include Nat C. Baker and H. J. O'Neill, two comedians well and favorably known to musical comedy and vaudeville frequenters.

SLATON TO INVESTIGATE BLEASE'S REQUEST

Harlem Citizen, Wanted in S. C., Is Endorsed by Residents of Town

Before granting requisition papers issued by Governor Cole Blease, of South Carolina, a full hearing will be given by Governor John M. Slaton to Julian Zachry, of Harlem, Ga., accused by Governor Blease of being a fugitive from justice because he fled from South Carolina with the child awarded to him by the courts after the separation between him and his wife.

The hearing follows a request for it on the part of Mayor E. D. Cleary and forty citizens of Harlem. Governor Slaton has assured them that Zachry will get a fair and square hearing before the papers are granted. The sheriff of Richmond county has been ordered to arrest Zachry and bring him to Atlanta.

HURT HORSE RESULTS IN NEW DRINKING FOUNTAIN

As the result of an accident to a horse outside the First Congregational church, colored, while services dedicatory to a drinking fount were being held Sunday morning, the congregation immediately started a fund to provide a drinking fount for animals.

Rev. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville, Ky., delivered the dedicatory service, and it was in the midst of his sermon the accident occurred. The exercises were stopped while the minister and congregation cared for the horse, which had been struck by a passing automobile. A subscription was taken up, and in a short time enough had been raised to insure the erection of the animals' drinking fount.

A bottle of water taken from the River Jordan was broken over the new drinking fount when Rev. H. H. Proctor, pastor of the church, christened it the "J. O. Connally fountain."

PATROLMAN E. H. PARHAM FALLS INTO MANHOLE

A loose covering to a manhole at the corner of McDaniel and Peters streets gave way under Patrolman E. H. Parham early Monday morning. His legs were skinned and bruised so that he was taken to Grady hospital for his wounds to be dressed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RECORDS GET BETTER AND BETTER

Total Sunday Was 6,714, as Against 4,670 for Last Year

The attendance at the Atlanta Sunday schools that are entered in the publicity agreement continue to grow, a total of 6,670 attending Sunday, compared to 4,670 for the same Sunday last year.

As there are twenty schools in the agreement, this makes an average attendance of 335, compared with 233 last year, or an average gain of 102.

The schools showing the biggest gain are the First Methodist, the Second Baptist and the First Christian, having more than doubled their attendance in the past year. The complete record for all the schools follow:

SCHOOLS—	Membership.	Last Year.	This Year.
St. Paul Methodist	1,800	419	588

MISTAKE IS CORRECTED IN MARRIAGE ACCOUNT

Miss Ruby Clay Who Married J. G. Webb Is R. M. Clay's Daughter

In the account of the wedding of Miss Ruby Clay and Mr. J. Garnett Webb, which was published in Sunday's Journal, it was erroneously stated that the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Clay.

The bride is the daughter of R. M. Clay, and the mistake arose because both Joseph E. H. Clay and R. M. Clay have daughters named Ruby.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. H. Clay, however, is Miss Ruble Guild Clay, while the daughter of R. M. Clay is now Mrs. J. Garnett Webb.

REV. J. M. SKELTON TO LEAVE ATLANTA

It was announced from the pulpit Sunday morning that Rev. J. M. Skelton, for the past eighteen months pastor of the East Side Baptist Tabernacle, had resigned and would accept a call to the First Baptist church at Mansfield, Ga.

Mr. Skelton's resignation takes effect the last Sunday in August. During his eighteen months as pastor of the tabernacle he has made a wide circle of friends and admirers who regret to learn that he has accepted another call.

"Furniture of Worth"

Is the Only Kind of Furniture in This

August Furniture Sale

—There is genuinely good furniture; and attractive imitation furniture.

—Unless one sees both kinds, it is sometimes hard to tell one from the other.

—Housekeepers about to buy furniture, therefore, will do well to shop around before making a final decision.

—A hint that may help is the fact that Rich's hold but two sales a year—once in February, and again in August. Our prices for the other ten months of the year, therefore, must be low enough to compete with stores that are forever holding sales. August reductions, then, should make Rich's prices the lowest. They are.

—These prices refer to genuinely good furniture—furniture to live with—furniture which will come into your home prepared to give you comfort, and to endear itself to you—as much as inanimate objects can, by long and faithful ministry.

—More than half the furniture bears reductions of only 10% to 15%. We make no such profits that justifies our cutting prices in two on regular stock.

—But we also have a great many pieces of furniture in odds and ends, broken suits and discontinued patterns of our own, as well as withdrawn patterns and samples acquired under price from the makers who supply us regularly, which bear reductions of 20%, 30%, 40% and even 50%.

—Savings throughout the stock, therefore, average about $20 on every $100 spent. A few hints typical of the savings on all:

$30 Table $27

This solid mahogany dressing table stands 55 inches high. Table proper is 34 in. by 20 in. Mirror is 22x18 in.

$1 to $3 Laces at 49c

"$3 laces for 49c," exclaims the skeptic, "what's wrong?" Nothing. Rather than carry over odds and ends into another season, we prefer to sell them now—even at the absurdly low price of 49c.

The values are apparent at a glance. They include the very laces that will respond to Fashion's roll call this Fall. There are Venise, Shadow, Applique, Lierre, Darn, Venise-Van Dyke and other laces. Chiefly in bandings and flouncings—the left overs from matched sets, 4 to 12 inches wide, in lengths from 5 yards to full pieces. Not a yard worth less than $1, more worth from $1.50 to $3. Choice 49c.

JIM CONLEY TELLS AN AMAZING STORY TO JURORS

I had other Saturdays."

"What had you done other Saturdays?"

"I had watched for him whil e he was upstairs talking with young ladies."

"What did you do?"

"I would watch at the door and let him know."

"How often had you done this?"

"Several times—I don't know how many."

"Was Frank up there alone on those Saturdays?"

"No, sometimes there'd be two young ladies, and sometimes other men from the factory."

"Was Mr. Frank ever alone there?"

ON THANKSGIVING DAY.

"Yes, sir. Last Thanksgiving day."

"Who came then?"

"A tall, heavy-built woman."

"What did you do then?"

"I stayed just like I did on April 26, and watched at the door."

"What did Mr. Frank talk told you to do on Thanksgiving day?"

"I did like he told me and locked the door when he stomped on the floor after the lady had come in."

"That was Thanksgiving day, 1912?"

"Yes, sir."

ON DAY OF MURDER.

"Now, tell what happened on April 26."

"We both went inside. He told me I was a little early. I said, no, sir, that was what he'd told me to come. He said I was a little early for what he'd told me to do. He told me he wanted me to watch. I told him I had to go to the Capital City laundry, and asked him what time he wanted me to come back. He told me that I could go from the Capital City laundry to Nelson and Forsyth streets and watch there till he came back from Montag's."

"Where is the corner of those streets with reference to Montag Brothers?"

As he put the question the solicitor exhibited part of a map of Atlanta to the negro.

Attorney Rosser objected to the solicitor pointing on the map to the corner, and the solicitor told the negro to draw the corner and show Montag Brothers' place. The negro took a pencil and a piece of paper and sketched the corner, showing Montag Brothers.

"What time was it when you were at Nelson and Forsyth streets?"

"I don't know exactly."

ON NELSON STREET.

"Can you give it to the best of your opinion?"

"Somewhere between 10 and 10:30 o'clock."

"Did you see Frank while there?"

"Yes, sir, he passed me coming up Forsyth toward Nelson."

"Was anything said by Mr. Frank?"

"Yes, sir, as he passed by to me he said, 'Ha, ha! Here, are you?' I said, 'Yes, sir, I'm here, Mr. Frank.'"

"How long did he stay at Mr. Montag's office?"

"I haven't got any idea."

"What did he say when he came back?"

"He past said, 'Come on, come on.'"

The negro described walking down the street and handing Mr. Frank toward the pencil factory. After they had walked a little way, he said, Mr. Frank turned around to say something to him—the negro didn't know what; he didn't hear. When he turned around to speak to him, said the negro, Frank bumped into a man carrying a baby. Conley said the man looked at Mr. Frank and looked at him but didn't say anything. They walked on down to the corner, where Mr. Frank went into a soda fountain.

"What did Mr. Frank buy at the soda fountain?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

The negro said he didn't know.

"Now, when you got to the factory, what happened? Tell the jury."

EXPECTING YOUNG LADY.

Conley turned around and faced the jury and talked evenly in an unusually good English for a negro.

"We went in and Mr. Frank told me about the lock on the front door. 'If you turn the knob this way, nobody can get in,' he said. Then Mr. Frank told me to come over and hand 'Set on that box.' He said there'll be a young lady up here pretty soon, and we want to chat a while.' Mr. Frank said, 'When I stamp, that's her. And when I whistle, you come up and say you want to borrow some money, and that will give her a chance to get out.'"

"Did he say anything else before he went upstairs?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes, sir," said the witness. "He hit my chest right here,"—the negro pointed to a place near his right shoulder—"and he said, 'Now, boy, don't let Mr. Darley see you.'"

"Whom did you see go in first, now, Jim?" asked the solicitor.

"Mr. Darley was the first one I saw. He came in and went upstairs. Then Miss Mattie Smith came in and went upstairs."

SAW MISS SMITH CRYING.

"Well, who came next? What did you see next?"

"Well, next thing I saw she came down."

"What did she do?"

"She walked to the door and stepped."

"What did you see next?"

"Mr. Darley came down the stairs right after her. They stood at the door and he said, 'That's all right; you'll get that next Saturday.' I don't know what they were talking about."

"Was she in a good humor, or otherwise?" asked the solicitor.

"Well, it seemed to me like she was crying. I saw her wiping her eyes."

At this point Attorney Rosser spoke up. "He's leading the witness, may it please the court," said the attorney. "He ought'n to do that."

"Well, I want to please 'em, your honor," said the solicitor. "I'll do the best I can."

WHEN THEY RETURNED.

"Jim," continued the solicitor, "did these things you were talking about happen before you went to Nelson and Forsyth?"

"No, sir, just after we got back," said the negro.

"Now what did Miss Mattie Smith do?"

"Well, sir, she went out and Mr. Darley went back upstairs."

"Now what was the first thing that happened when you came back with Mr. Frank when he came from Montage Brothers?"

"Well, there was a lady that works on the fourth floor came in and went upstairs. I don't know her name."

Conley went on then to tell about a "per-leged-fellow" who came down to the front door in a wagon, and how Mr. Holloway, the day watchman, went out and talked to him, wiping his eyeglasses as he put them on.

"Well, whom did you see next?" asked the solicitor.

"Mr. Lemmie Quinn went upstairs and stayed a little while and then came out," said the negro.

"Whom did you see next?"

"The next person I saw was Miss Mary Perkins. She came in and went upstairs."

HEARD MARY'S SCREAMS.

"Who is Miss Mary Perkins?"

"That's the lady that's dead. I heard her feetsteps going toward the front office, and then I heard steps going toward the metal room. The next thing I heard was her screaming."

"Then what did you hear?" asked the solicitor.

"I didn't hear any more."

"Who was the next person you saw go upstairs?"

"The next one I saw go up was Miss Monteen Stover."

"How was she dressed?"

"She was wearing tennis shoes and a red coat."

"Have you seen Miss Stover since then?"

"Yes, sir—once."

"How long did she stay upstairs?"

"She stayed a pretty good while. Not so very long, either."

Then what?"

"She come back down."

"What happened then?"

HEARD TIPTOES.

"Then I heard tiptoes coming from the metal department."

"Where did they go?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What next?"

"Next I heard tiptoes running back toward the metal department."

"Then what?"

"Then I sit back on the box and kind of went to sleep."

"All right—what next?"

"Next I heard Mr. Frank stomping over my head. I waked up the first time he stomped. Then I heard him stomp two more times. He stomped three times altogether."

"Then what did you do?"

"I got up and locked the door like Mr. Frank told me to do. Then I sat back down on the box."

"How long did you sit there?"

"A little while."

"All right, then what happened?"

"I heard Mr. Frank whistle."

FRANK WAS SHIVERING.

"How long after the stomping was it before you heard him whistle?"

"Just a few minutes."

"Well, what did you do when you heard Frank Whistle?"

"I went upstairs like he told me to do when he whistled. Mr. Frank was standing at the head of the stairs shivering. He was shaking his hands together and acting funny."

"Show the jury how he was acting."

The negro stood up, made his legs tremble, rubbed his hands together, rubbed his right backward and forward from the back of the head to the face and reversed.

"What did Frank have?"

"He held a little cord in his hand."

"Did you look at his eyes?"

"Yes, sir."

"How did they look?"

"He was real large. They looked funny and wild."

"Did you notice his face?"

"Yes sir, it was red, very red."

HELD CORD IN HIS HAND.

Solicitor Dorsey took out a length of cord from his satchel and handed it to the negro. "Is this the kind of cord Mr. Frank had in his hand?"

"Yes, sir, just like that," answered the negro.

"Did Frank say anything to you?"

"Yes, sir, he asked me if I saw a little girl pass along up there. I told him yes, I saw two but one went out; but that I didn't see the other one come out."

"Well, then what did Frank say?"

The negro then noted Frank as telling him, that Mary Phagan had gone to the metal room, and that there she had resisted Frank and that he had struck her. He accused Frank of perversion.

DESCRIBES FINDING BODY.

"Well, Jim, what did Frank say to you after he'd finished telling about hitting the girl in the head?"

"He told me to go back to the metal department and get her. He said: 'We've got to get her out, Conley, up now, and there'll be some money in it for you.'"

"Did you find the girl?"

"Yes, sir. She was lying flat of her back, with a rope around her neck. There was a piece of cloth tied around her neck, too."

Solicitor Dorsey handed to the negro the underskirt ruffle which had been taken from the dead girl's neck, and the negro identified it as the cloth to which he had referred.

The solicitor then handed to him a piecect cord and directed him to illustrate to the jury just how it was tied about the girl's neck.

Conley put one end through the loop at the other end. Then he placed the bight around his own neck and drew it tight with the slip knot on the right side of his neck. Picking up the underskirt ruffle, he said that this was tied around the girl's neck.

"Did you notice the clock while you were up there?" asked the solicitor.

"I didn't see any clock in the metal room, but after I saw the girl was dead and went back up to the front I noticed the clock."

"What time was it?"

"Four minutes to 1."

"You say the girl was dead when you saw her?"

"Ys, sir."

"What did you do when you found the girl was dead?"

"I come back and told Mr. Frank 'She's dead.' Mr. Frank told me to get a piece of cloth out of the cotton box and put it around her up here.' I heard a noise up toward the third floor about that time. Both Mr. Frank and me looked up there. It was then that I looked at the clock and saw it was four minutes to 1."

"Well, what did you do then?"

"I went and got the cloth like Mr. Frank told me to do."

Solicitor Dorsey handed to the witness Mary Phagan's parasol and asked him to point out on the big diagram hanging before the jury the place where he found the girl's body. The negro indicated an areaway leading off at the left of the metal room, saying that the areaway led to the ladies' toilet."

"Jim, where is the metal kept?"

"It's kept back there in a room near the ladies' toilet."

"You say when you found the girl was dead you called to Mr. Frank and said 'she's dead.'"

"Yes, sir. Mr. Frank said, 'sh! sh! I didn't understand what he said, and I called to him again the girl was dead. I didn't hear him so as to understand what he said, so I come up to where he was standing at the top of the steps like he was watching the steps. I told him again the girl was dead. He told me to go look in the cotton box and get a cloth and wrap her up in it and bring her 'up here.' I want back, got the cloth like Mr. Frank told me. The girl was lying flat on her back, one hand stretched out." The negro illustrated how her hand was stretched out.

"I spread out the cloth and rolled her over into it. I tied her up."

"What girl was this?" asked the solicitor.

"It was the dead girl."

CROCUS BAGGING PRODUCED.

At this point Solicitor Dorsey called to the bailiff to hand a bundle to the witness, and directed the witness to open it. It contained a large piece of crocus bagging.

In the middle of it appeared some large dark stains.

"Yes, sir, that's it," said the negro.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness to point out the cotton room on the diagram. It appeared on the left, or south side of the building, about half way down its length.

"All right, Jim. When you got the cloth, what did you do?"

TIED HER UP IN BAG.

"I took it back, spread it out on the floor, and rolled the young lady into it, like Mr. Frank had told me to do. Her hat was lying a little ways off. I picked it up, also a piece of ribbon, and a slipper. I put them on top of her and tied her up."

The solicitor handed to the negro the hat which had been identified as that worn by Mary Phagan.

"That's the hat I tied up," said the negro.

The solicitor handed to the negro a bow of blue ribbon which Mary Phagan's mother testified was worn by her in her hair that morning when she left home.

The witness didn't identify this ribbon as the ribbon he said he picked up from the floor. It was assumed that he was referring to the hat band ribbon which never yet has been produced.

"All right, Jim, go ahead now; tell the jury what you did."

"I tied her up in a bundle just like a washwoman ties up clothes," continued the negro. "I run my right arm under the knot and tried to get it up on my shoulder. I couldn't quite make it at first. It was a little too heavy. The second time I tried I got her up on my shoulder. Then I carried her on out in the metal room and up toward the front, just as I got to the dressing room door it got too heavy for me and I dropped it.

DROPPED THE BODY.

"When I dropped it I got scared and jumped back and hollered to Mr. Frank that it was too heavy and for him to come help me. Mr. Frank come running back on his tiptoes, trembling. He got her by the feet and I got her by the head. I was backing back (walking backards).

"Mr. Frank was so nervous that he was pushing me too fast. We went a few feet, Mr. Frank was so nervous he let her feet drop. Then he picked up her feet again and we went on to the elevator. We got the body on the elevator.

"Mr. Frank pulled on the elevator rope and it didn't move. He went into the office and got a key and unlocked the switch box. Then he started the elevator and we went on down into the basement. When we got to the basement, he said to me right quick-like, 'Get her up!' He picked up her feet and I picked up her head.

"We went a little ways and he dropped her feet. He told me, 'You take her on back to the sawdust pile, while I go up to the ladder and watch outside.' I took her back and put her down there and untied the cloth. That hit and the slipper and the ribbon fell out. I picked the hat, slipper, ribbon and cloth up and started back up to the front. I didn't see Mr. Frank then. He'd gone up the ladder.

"When I got up to the front of the boiler I hollered to Mr. Frank and asked him 'What I am to do with these things?' I reckon he thought I was still back at the sawdust pile, because he said 'Leave them there.' I pitched 'em on the trash pile just in front of the boiler.

"When I got back to the elevator, Mr. Frank called down to me from up on the ladder and told me to bring the ladder on up, he'd catch me at the first floor.

"TIRESOME JOB," HE SAID.

"When I got up to the first floor Mr. Frank was standing right in front of the elevator. He didn't give me time to stop. He jumped on and fell again me, knocking me up against the inside of the elevator. He was trembling and mighty nervous.

"After he got on the elevator Mr. Frank said 'Gee, that was a tiresome job!' I said 'Not as tiresome as mine. I toted the body all the way back.' Mr. Frank never said nothing else then. Just before the elevator got to the landing of the second floor, Mr. Frank jumped off. He caught one of his heels against the floor and fell on his hands and knees. He jumped up and walked around to the sink behind the elevator and washed his hands. I went out to the switch and shut off the motor. Mr. Frank came back and I followed him in to his office. I sat down in a chair just back of his. He didn't sit down at first. He kept walking back and forth from one office to the other. His face was very red and he was rubbing his hands."

"Mr. Frank's eyes were jumping and he was walking up and down.

"We heard somebody coming up the steps, and he went over to the wardrobe and said come here.

LOCKED IN WARDROBE.

"I didn't seem to walk fast enough, and he says, 'Hurry, hurry, damn it.' Then he put me in the wardrobe."

The negro at this point stood in his chair and showed the jury how he had to bend his body to get in the wardrobe.

Then quickly, speaking with remarkable quickness, and without a question or an interruption from the solicitor, he continued.

"Somebody came in and said, 'Good morning Mr. Frank. You are all alone?'

"'Yes,' said Mr. Frank.

"I didn't hear any more of the conversation and stayed in there a long time. Then he came and let me out.

"You kept me there a mighty long time,' Mr. Frank said, and he said, 'Yes I did, I see you are sweating.'

"Then he sat down in a chair and told me to sit down. It seemed as if his chair didn't suit, and he kept squirming around, and moving backwards and forward.

"Mr. Frank he reached on the table for a box of cigarettes and for a box of matches. He handed me the cigarette box and said, 'Do you want to smoke?' and I said, 'Yes, sir,' not being against the rules for anybody to smoke in the factory.

"And he handed me the match and I handed him back the cigarette box. I had seen some money in it. He said, 'You can have those,' and I said, 'You got some money in there, Mr. Frank,' and he said, 'That's all right, keep it, too.'

"And I said all right, sir.

"He figited and squirmed about and then he says, 'Can you write, Jim,' and I said 'yes sir, I can.'

"And Mr. Frank says 'I can tell you the best way for us to get out of this. You write what I tell you.'

"And I says, 'Yes, sir' again because I was willing to do anything to help Mr. Frank, him being a white man and my superior officer.

WROTE THE NOTES.

"He handed me a pad of paper and told me what to write. And I wrote a little bit, and didn't like it the way seemed mad and told me to turn over and write again, and he didn't seem to like this, and told me to turn over and write another time.

"I wrote what he said and he seemed to be pleased and he smiled and rub his hand together.

"I asked Mr. Frank when he would give me the money he had promised me, and he went and pulled a notice roll out of his pocket and told me it was $200.

"I told Mr. Frank not to take out any money from my pay for the watch because I would pay myself for that watch my wife got.

"He said I could have what you want me to buy a watch for anyhow. He said his big fat wife had tried to get him to buy an automobile and he wouldn't do it.

TOLD TO BURN BODY.

"'I tell you,' Mr. Frank said, 'you can furnish your house now,' and I said, 'Yes, sir,' and then Mr. Frank said, 'I tell you what to do. You go down in the basement and get up some of that trash, put it in the furnace and then put that body on it.'

"I was willing to do that, too, gentlemen," continued the negro as he looked quickly around the jury, "but I was scared, and I told Mr. Frank to come down with me, and watch, that he being a white man could keep anybody away that might come down there.

"Then Mr. Frank said he couldn't go down there and I was just too scared to go by myself, and then Mr. Frank said to hand him that money.

"I thought he was going to count it, but he put it in his pocket.

"'Is that the way you are going to do me?' I asked Mr Frank, and he said, 'That's all right, if you just keep your mouth shut.'

"Then Mr. Frank he walked up and down in the office, and looking up to the ceiling, held up his hands and said:

"WHY SHOULD I HANG?"

"'O, why should I hang? I have wealthy people in Brooklyn.'"

Conley made this exclamation in a very dramatic manner, and with the voice of a young teacher of elocution.

"Then I said, 'That's all right, Mr. Frank, but what about me?' 'I will look out for you,' he said.

"'Can you come back here this evening?' he asked me, and I said that I could.

"Then he told me to come back here in 40 minutes, and I asked him how I could get in, and he said it would be all right, that he would have a place for me to get in.

TOLD TO KEEP MOUTH SHUT.

"Then I looked at him and asked about the money in the cigarett box for I was afraid he would take that away too, but he said I could kept it, and looked like he wanted me to go, and told me again to come back in 40 minutes; that he wanted to go to his lunch. I was standing around, when he picked up a pencil and paper and started to make a 'M.'

"Then he got up and put his arms around my shoulder and started out and kept on hugging me until we got to the steps. He told me to leave the door open and when I started down the steps he told me to keep my mouth shut.

"Then I went to a saloon and ate some liver and fish sandwiches and had a glass of beer. Then I went back to the toilet and opened that cigarette box and I found two $1 bills and a 50 cent piece.

STARTED HOME BEFORE.

"And then I took a double header, and I saw a man there I knew and asked if he wanted a drink and he said he didn't and looked at the clock and saw it was 20 minutes till 2, and I started home. I went to Mitchell and Hunter streets and a Jew there I owed a dime called me and I paid the dime, and then I went on to Peters street and stopped at a saloon, and looked at the clock and it was 2:15, and I took a glass of beer and started home. And I got home and I gave my little girl a nickle to get some pan sauce and when she came back I gave her a dime to get some wood. She didn't get back right away and I lay down on the bed and I dropped off to sleep and when I woke up it was after 6 o'clock.

"When did you see him next?" asked the solicitor.

ON NEXT TUESDAY.

"Tuesday morning. Mr. Frank came up to me where I was working and said, 'Be a good boy, now.' And then he said, 'Come here.' I went to see you.' And he took me over under the stairs and said, 'Keep your mouth shut now.'

"Did you see him Monday?"

"No, sir."

"What time Tuesday was this conversation?"

"Between 10 and 1 o'clock."

"Did you ever see this parasol before?" asked the solicitor, exhibiting Mary Phagan's parasol.

"I saw it at your office once."

"Did you ever see it before then?"

"I saw the handle of it up where the body was. I don't know about the rest of it."

In answer to other questions by Solicitor Dorsey, Conley said that Frank knew he could write because he had written some slips enumerating boxes around the factory on different occasions.

"When were you arrested?"

"The first of May."

"Do you remember the week day?"

"It was a Thursday."

"The Thursday after the murder?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did Frank do, now, when you wrote the notes?"

"Well, he gave me a paper and he gave me a pencil and he dictated them. There was an old pad lying on his desk, and he gave me that."

"Tell me what he told you to write."

"I don't remember exactly."

"Look at this pad," said the solicitor, handing a pad to Conley.

"Yes, sir, that's the same pad."

FOLLOWS DIAGRAM.

The solicitor handed to the witness Mary Phagan's parasol and with it the negro pointed on the diagram where he first saw Mary Phagan's body. He followed it along the second floor and showed where he said Frank dropped the girl's tet, and where they took her down on the elevator, and the course along the hall he carried the body to the basement to where it was found.

"Where was that box that Frank unlocked when the elevator wouldn't work?" asked the solicitor.

"It was on this side," the negro replied, pointing out a spot with the parasol.

"Now where did he get the key to open this?"

"He went into the office to get it."

Solicitor Dorsey picked up a picture of the scene where Mary Phagan was found and asked the negro if he recognized the scene. Conley said he didn't remember. "All right," said the solicitor, withdrawing the photograph.

At the instance of Solicitor Dorsey, he pointed out the furnace in the basement.

DIDN'T ATTEMPT BURNING.

"And Frank told you to come back and fire that up, did he?"

"Yes, sir, he told me to come back in forty minutes."

"Do you know whether or not you could have put that body in there?"

"No, sir, didn't try it."

Conley pointed out the office of Frank, the outer office, the safe and the desk and the wardrobe in there, to illustrate incidents of his story.

"Do you know anything about the back door, Jim?"

"Not a thing."

"Do you know what became of the notes that you wrote?"

"No, I don't."

"Do you know what time you left home Saturday morning?"

"Between 7 and half-past."

"Did you notice any clock, or did you learn what time it was, between the time you left home and when you met Frank?"

"Yes, sir, I looked at a clock in a near-beer saloon at Broad and Mitchell streets. It was 9 minutes after 10 then."

"Who left the factory first after the body was put down in the basement?"

LEFT FACTORY FIRST.

"I went first. I left Frank standing three or four steps from the top of the stairs that lead to the second floor. His head was bent down, like he was looking to see if I was going to leave the factory."

The solicitor picked up the parasol again, and directed Conley to "point out the place where you sat on the box."

Conley designated the corner of the elevator nearest the hole leading into the basement. It was the same spot designated by Mrs. Arthur White when she was on the stand last week.

"Who cleans up there usually?" asked the solicitor.

"Sometimes I did, and sometimes somebody else did. I used to clean up the first floor there about twice a week."

"Do you know Mrs. Arthur White?"

"No, sir."

Solicitor Dorsey told Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor to bring Mrs. White into court. There was some delay in getting her into the room and the questions continued meanwhile.

KNEW GIRL WAS DEAD.

"How did you find out the girl was dead when you went up to the second floor that day?"

"She was lying flat on her back and she wasn't moving and she wasn't breathing."

"What did Frank ask you about anybody around the factory then?"

"He asked me if I knew the night watchman. I told him that I didn't know him personally."

Mrs. White came into court. She was brought to a position in front of the witness stand.

"Do you know this young lady?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes, sir."

"Did Frank ever see you write before?"

"Yes, I signed a contract for a watch in front of Mr. Frank."

Solicitor Dorsey asked if he would be allowed to put her on the stand for a minute, with the evident purpose of having her identify Conley as the negro she saw in the hallway. Attorney Arnold and Attorney Rosser objected strenuously.

DORSEY LOSES POINT.

"Oh, I thought you said you'd let me put Dr. Harris and Mrs. White up again," said the solicitor to Mr. Rosser.

"Well, you know I told you privately that I wouldn't let you put her up," said Mr. Rosser.

The solicitor withdrew the request.

"On Thanksgiving, Jim, did you see Frank that day?" continued the solicitor.

"Yes, sir, I saw him. He came out of the office and said, 'That's right! That's right!' And the woman that was with him said, 'That's the best thing to do.'

"You said something about dozing, Jim. When did you doze, and how long?"

"I don't know how long it was but I think it was just after Miss Monteen Stover come out."

"How many times have you watched for him before?"

"I don't know how many times. I watched for him Thanksgiving and some other times."

Conley continued, and said that on occasions he had let men into the building while he was watching this way, to let them go into the basement.

"What was in the basement?"

"Well, there was some coal and sawdust in there?"

"Wasn't there anything else—a bed or cot?"

"I never saw them?"

"Now this watch contract, Jim. Explain to the jury about that."

DEFENSE WINS ANOTHER POINT.

Attorney Rosser objected. Solicitor Dorsey addressed the court and said, "I want to show that he can write, and that Frank knew he could write, and that when Conley was arrested and held at the police station and samples of Frank's handwriting and Newt Lee's handwriting had been taken, he never suggested to the police that a copy of Conley's be taken."

Judge Roan, however, sustained the objection.

"Did you refuse to write when you were first told by the police to write?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you say you couldn't?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did Frank ever see you write before?"

"Yes, I signed a contract for a watch in front of Mr. Frank."

There was objection to this question, Solicitor Dorsey announced that he was

DEFENSE BEGINS ATTACK ON JIM CONLEY'S STORY

through with his direct examination.

WHERE HE WORKED.

Before the cross-examination could begin, the solicitor asked "How long did you work for the National Pencil company?"

"A little over two years."

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-seven years old."

"Whom did you work for before you worked for Frank?"

"For Dr. Palmer."

"How long did you work for him?"

"One year and a half."

"Why did you quit?"

"Because he bought an automobile and couldn't run it. And he needed somebody to run it."

"Whom did you work for before that?"

"Orr Stationery company."

"Why did you quit?"

"I was just an extra hand at Christmas time."

"Whom did you work for before that?"

"S. S. Goss."

"How long did you work for him?"

"Three years."

"Oh ydid you quit?"

"He went out of business."

"Who before that?"

"Dr. Hunnlwell."

"How long?"

"One year."

"Oh ydid you quit?"

"Dr Hunniwell died."

ROSSER TAKES WITNESS.

The cross examination began. Attorney Rosser conducted it.

"Where were you born?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"In Atlanta in the western part."

"When did you get your first job?"

"About eleven years."

"That was when you were about sixteen years old," said Rosser.

"No, sir, when I was eleven years old."

"Whom did you work for?"

"S. M. Frank."

"That was about 1901, wasn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you sure about that?"

"No, sir."

"Whom did you work for next?"

"W. S. Coates."

"How do you spell his name?"

"I don't know."

"You know how to spell. You read the newspapers, don't you?"

"No, sir."

"Yes, you do, don't you?"

"I made one trial and then quit. I couldn't read them very well."

"You don't get any sense out of them, do you?"

"No, sir."

LESSON IN SPELLING.

Attorney Rosser assured the witness that he saw right then they'd get along pretty well together.

"You can make out some words in the newspaper, can't you?"

"Yes, sir, little words like 'dis' and 'dat.'"

"You see them a good deal in the newspapers, don't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"You can spell 'dis' and 'dat,' can't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can you spell 'coat'?"

"No, sir."

"Can you spell collar?"

"No, sir."

"Can you spell shirt?"

"Yes, sir, I can spell shirt."

"Can you spell shoes?"

"Yes, sir."

"Can you spell cat?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, how do you spell cat, with a 'c' or a 'k'?"

A general laugh followed when the witness replied unhesitatingly "K."

"Of course you spell it with a 'k,'" said Mr. Rosser.

"How do you spell mamma?"

Conley said he couldn't spell it.

"How do you spell papa?"

"P-a-p-a," replied Conley.

Mr. Rosser asked him if he could spell Judge, and socks. Conley said he couldn't.

"How long did you go to school?"

"About a year."

"How old are you?"

"My mother says I'm twenty-seven."

"You don't know how to spell whisky, do you, Jim?"

"No, sir."

"Ever try?"

"No, sir."

"Can you tell what it means when you see it spelled?"

"No, sir."

Attorney Rosser directed Conley's attention to the diagram, and asked, "Can you read the words on that picture?"

"No, sir," replied the negro.

"You don't see any word that you can read or spell, do you?"

"No, sir."

"You've seen that often, haven't you?"

"Only once."

USUALLY AWAY AT 11.

Attorney Rosser questioned him again where he had worked, about his past life, etc. The negro answered promptly each time, but his answers were not always definite.

"Who employed you at the pencil factory?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"Mr. Herbert Schiff."

"Who paid you off there?"

"Mr. Schiff, sometimes; Mr. Gantt sometimes; Mr. Frank sometimes."

"You say Frank paid you off?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many times?"

"I don't know, sir. Two or three times."

"How long since Frank paid you off?"

"Two or three months."

"Well, when was it? What date?"

"I don't remember."

Conley said that he seldom drew his money himself; that usually he got one of the other negro boys around the factory to draw it for him. Usually he got away from the factory about 11 o'clock on Saturdays.

"Then it's your custom to have somebody else draw your money?"

"Yes, sir."

"You were always in debt, weren't you, Jim, and you didn't want the other boys to see you get your money because you had to pay them what you owed them?"

OWED OTHERS.

"Sometimes I owed some of the other boys, and sometimes they owed me."

"Sometimes you went out by the door, didn't you, Jim, on Saturdays?"

"The reason you didn't collect your money was because you owed the boys and you couldn't spare it?"

"Sometimes I owed them and sometimes they owed me. I wanted to collect what was owing to me before I paid what I owed."

"That was your reason for not drawing your money?"

"I didn't want the boys to see what I got."

"Why?"

"Because I got so little."

"Well, what did you get?"

"Six dollars and 75 cents a week."

"Well, what did Snowball get?"

"He got $6.75."

"Well, who got more than you did?"

"Walter Pride got $12 a week, and Joe Pride, his brother, got $8.40."

"How do you know?"

"They told me so. We had some arguments about what we got, and they told me so."

"Well, did you tell them what you got?"

"No, sir. It wasn't none of their business."

Attorney Rosser questioned the negro about the wages of other negroes, but Conley stated that he did not know what they received.

"Well, you were trying to hide from Walter Pride what you got?"

"Not especially."

"Walter waited around for you, didn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"And that's the reason you wouldn't stay for your pay?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did Joe Pride ever have anything to do with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"You got your pay in sealed envelopes, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, how would they know what you got?"

"If I opened the envelopes to pay them, they could see."

"Then it was because you were ashamed. You didn't want anybody to know what you got?"

"No, sir. I wanted them to pay me, and then I'd pay them. When I owed any of the boys, I usually took them to a beer saloon and spent twice as much on them as I owed them."

DRANK UP DEBTS.

"Uh-huh! Then it was your custom to pay what you owed, and then spend twice as much on the man as you owed him?"

"No, sir. I'd just agree with them to take it out that way. I'd rather do that way. We'd find out what we owed each other, and I'd say let's drink it up."

"Then you'd take 'em to the beer saloon and settle your debts that way?"

"No, sir, if I happened to meet 'em there or they came in while I was there, I'd buy the beer."

"Then you'd try to get out before they saw you?"

"Yes, sir, if I could."

"Did you ever owe Joe Pride anything?"

"No, sir."

"Did Walter Pride ever drink with you?"

"Yes ,sir."

"That's the way you paid him what you owed him?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many times did you pay him that way?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Can you remember the days?"

"No, sir."

"Then the reason you didn't collect your wages was because you didn't want to pay these men you owed or wanted to get a chance to settle on a drinking basis?"

"No, sir. If I met them there or they came in, why we'd drink some beer."

"What time does this night watchman come to the factory on Saturdays?"

"I never saw him come or go on Saturdays."

"Did he punch any clock?"

"I don't know, sir."

"You say you saw the colored night watchman, Newt Lee?"

"No, sir, I never saw him."

"What, which night watchman was it you saw?"

"Mr. Kendricks and his father, who was the night watchman before Newt Lee."

"How many times did you see young Kendricks come and get his money on Saturdays?"

"Lots of times."

"What time did he get his money?"

"I don't know just when he got his money, but I saw him leaving when I'd come back to work about 2 o'clock."

"Then that was his habit, to come and get his money about 2 o'clock?"

"I don't know."

"Well, give us the dates when you saw him at the factory about 2 o'clock."

"I don't remember them."

"Whom did he get money from?"

"From Mr. Frank."

"Did you ever see the elder Kendricks there on Saturday to get his money?"

"No, sir."

"But you saw young Kendricks?"

"Yes sir, often."

"Can you spell 'quite often'?"

"No, sir."

"Did you know Newt Lee, the negro nightwatchman?"

"No, sir."

ANOTHER WATCHMAN.

"Well, who was the night watchman before Newt Lee?"

"Young Mr. Kendricks."

"Well, did you ever know any other night watchman there besides the Kendricks man and Newt Lee?"

"Yes, sir, there was another man watched about two months after I came there. He was a white man."

"What was his name?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What time did you say they paid off on Saturdays?"

"Sometimes 12, sometimes 12:15, sometimes 12:30."

"How long did old man Holloway stay there?"

"He stayle till about 2:30."

"You don't know when the night watchman came on?"

"No, sir."

"You said something about watching for Frank. When was the first time you watched for him?"

"Alone?"

"Alon or with anybody else."

"Some time last summer."

"Well, what time last summer?"

"About July."

"Was he alone or was somebody with him?"

"Someone was with him."

"You say Frank sometimes called you to the office?"

"Yes, sir, I'd be out sweeping, and Mr. Frank would come out and call me into the office."

"Well, when was that—on Saturdays?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, what did Frank want with you?"

"Sometimes he's call me in to talk about work."

"Well, when was the first time he called you in to talk about work?"

"Shortly after I went to work at the factory."

"Was this on Saturday?"

"Yes sir."

"What time was it?"

"About 2 o'clock."

"Well, what time did you get back to the factory on Saturdays from lunch?"

"About 1:30 or 2 o'clock, and I stayed till about 4."

"Well, you always punched the clock?"

"No, sir, I never rang the clock much. They always had to get after me about that."

ABOUT HIS PAY.

"Well, how would they know what to pay you, when you didn't punch the clock? How would they know when you worked?"

"They'd see me there and they'd ask me."

"How much did you get a day?"

"A dollar and 10 cents."

"You were paid by the hour, weren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much did you get an hour?"

"Eleven cents."

"Well, how would they know how many hours you worked if you didn't punch the clock? How could they tell what to pay you?"

"I punched sometimes, but I didn't always punch."

"It was the rule to punch the clock, wasn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"If you didn't work, you weren't paid, were you?"

"Yes, sir, sometimes Mr. Frank would come out and say to me that he didn't take it out of my pay."

"Who heard Mr. Frank tell you this?"

"I don't know, sir, if anybody did."

"You punched the clock when you came to work in the morning?"

"Yes, sir."

"And it was your duty to punch it when you went out?"

"Yes, sir, but I didn't always do it."

"Who got after you about not punching the clock?"

"Mr. Frank and Mr. Schiff got after me about it."

"How did they know you didn't punch?"

"They could tell by the slips."

"What did you say when they got after you?"

"I told 'em I tried to punch."

"Then you tried to fool them?"

"No, sir, sometimes I tried to punch sometimes I didn't."

"If you are paid by time, how did they know how much to pay you?"

"I don't know, sir. They saw me there and they'd ask me about it."

"Was everybody in the factory paid according to the punches?"

"I don't know."

"Well, how would they know what to pay you, Jim, if you didn't punch the clock?"

"They'd see me around there and if they didn't they'd ask me if I was there."

"Yes, sir, they would pay me in full if I punched at 7 o'clock in the morning," the negro replied to a question.

"Frank said, 'Yes, that is the best nigger I ever saw.'"

"Did she say that to you?" queried Attorney Rosser.

"No," replied the black, "she was talking to Mr. Frank."

WENT TO BEER SALOON.

In answer to other questions by Attorney Rosser he said that Frank had called him up to his office and gave him $1.25.

"Where did you go when you left there?" asked the defense's lawyer.

"Well, I went to the near-beer saloon."

Conley then, in detail, described the dress worn by the woman, repeating almost exactly his former description.

"Now, when was the next time you watched?" asked Attorney Rosser.

"O, that was long after Thanksgiving. It was after Christmas. It was about the middle of January."

"How do you know?"

"Well, it was sometime after the first of the year."

"When did you first talk about that with Mr. Frank?"

"I don't remember, but Mr. Frank told me that there would be a young man and two ladies there and to let them in. That morning after I had waited awhile a man and two ladies came to the door.

"What time did they come?"

"About half past two or three."

"And they came in?"

"No, sir. The young man came in but the young ladies stayed out there."

"Did you know the man?"

"No, sir."

"Well, describe the young ladies."

"I don't remember what they wore."

"How did the man look?"

"Well, he was tall."

"Had you ever seen him before?"

"I saw him talking to Mr. Holloway one day by the elevator."

Court adjourned at 12:35 with Conley still on the stand. He was still calm and composed as he walked out of the court room between Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford. He was taken across the street to Solicitor Dorsey's office.

WOMEN EXCLUDED.

Just before court convened, Judge L. S. Roan ordered the court bailiffs to exclude all women from the courtroom. About 175 were put out.

"I am doing this," said the judge, "on account of the character of the evidence that will be brought out this afternoon."

Numbers of men had not been able to find room in the court on account of the women being given first preference in the admission arrangements. The eviction of the women, whose interest in the trial has been intent notwithstanding its revolting details in some particulars, left room for men who were there waiting in line to take their places.

Within two minutes after the women had been excluded from the court, the seats were filled entirely again, men replacing them.

The only women remaining in the court were Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the accused, and Mrs. Leo M. Frank, his wife.

James Conley was put back on the stand.

Attorney Rosser asked the negro what he had done during the noon hour.

"Did anybody ask you at headquarters besides Chief Beavers?"

"Yes, Mr. Starnes and Mr. Campbell and my lawyer and the turnkey."

"Did the turnkey hear what your lawyer said to you?"

"Yes, sir."

RESUMES EXAMINATION.

"Did anybody besides Chief Beavers come back to your cell during the noon rest?"

"Chief Beavers didn't come back," replied the negro.

Attorney Rosser resumed his cross examination.

"We were talking about that day in January that you say you watched for Frank. Now was there any other time that you say you watched for him in January?"

"No, sir."

"What was the date in January that you watched for him?"

"I don't remember the date."

"Now, Jim, about that time in the middle of July, when you said you watched for him, what did you do the Saturday before that?"

"I don't recollect."

WHEN HE WAS "LOOK-OUT."

"What did you do the Saturday afterwards?"

"I don't recollect."

"Anything happen the Saturday after that?"

"I watched for him again on the second Saturday."

"Well, what did you do the Saturday after that?"

"I don't remember."

"Well, the Saturday after that?"

"I don't know."

"Well, the Saturday after that?"

"Along about the first of August I did some watching for him."

"Well, then you say you watched for him about the first of July, about the middle of July, and about the first of August?"

"Yes, sir."

"When was the next time you watched for him?"

"Thanksgiving day."

"Now, what did you do the Saturday before Thanksgiving?"

"I don't know."

"What did you do the Saturday after Thanksgiving?"

"I don't know."

"Well, what did you do the next Saturday?"

"I did some more watching. I think that was when it was. It was about the last of September."

"You did some more watching about the last of September?"

"Yes, sir."

SEPTEMBER AFTER THANKSGIVING.

"September, after Thanksgiving?"

"Yes, sir."

"You don't remember any of these dates, Jim?"

"No, sir."

"How much money did you get the first Saturday you watched for him, Jim?"

"I don't remember."

"Did you draw it yourself?"

"I don't remember."

"What time did you come to the factory that Saturday morning?"

"I don't know what time it was."

"What time did you go home?"

"I don't remember."

"What time was it that you came to the factory on the Saturday when you watched the second time?"

"I don't know."

"What time did you go home?"

"I don't know."

SPECTATORS "LINE UP."

Applicants for places as spectators at the Frank trial Monday morning were made to "line up," single file, like ticket purchasers at a world's series baseball game. The line started at the court house door, beginning with a man who had been there since 6:30 o'clock, and extended the corner into Hunter street and stretched far back along that block toward the state capitol.

There were 250 seats available for the use of the public in the court room.

One might suppose that the applicants would have "numbered off," and that all beyond the 250 mark could have gone away discouraged to their day's business.

But not so. There is no such word as "nothing doing" in the bright lexicon of the Frank trial spectator. Nobody counted, and all stayed.

MANY WOMEN.

Even while the line was forming, about 100 of the seats were appropriated at once by members of the gentler sex. The deputies, instructed, to that effect, opened the doors to the waiting women, well realizing that no official yet ever has succeeded in making any women stand in line anywhere—from stamp window to ticket window. It's against the nature of the sex. So the women were admitted, while the line of men grew longer and longer; and the women sat themselves comfortably down in about 100 of the choice seats in the court room.

That left 150 seats for the several hundreds standing outside.

L. O. Grice, a stenographer for W. H. Smith, auditor of the Atlanta and West Point railway, was the first witness. He lives at 270 Houston street.

"Did you visit the National Pencil factory Sunday morning, April 27?" asked Solicitor Dorsey.

"Yes, I had just read an extra and I walked by there and saw a lot of people. I entered and went upstairs. There were about eight men up there."

"Did any of them attract your attention?"

"Yes. Three of them. I knew Officers Black and Lanford by sight."

"And who else attracted your attention?"

"There was a small man who attracted my attention by his nervousness —not when we were upstairs but when we were at the back door. I did not know him then."

"Was it this defendant — there?" asked the solicitor, pointing to Leo M. Frank.

"Yes."

"Describe what he did and what he said."

"He was looking for a pin."

The witness got up and moved about, looking from place to place and shaking his hands, giving a good imitation of a very nervous man.

The solicitor announced that he was through with the witness.

NEW WITNESS IN CASE

Attorney Rosser cross examined the witness.

The attorney strove to gain the admission from Grice that others were nervous.

"Detective Black saw what you saw, didn't he?"

"I don't know."

"Well, he had an opportunity to see what you saw, didn't he?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

"How many other men were out in front?"

"I don't know. I don't remember any others."

"When were you called as a witness in this case?"

"Saturday."

"After the jury had been empanneled the trial was in progress a week?"

"Yes."

"How did you come to testify?"

"Well, my friends advised me to tell what I knew. I didn't consider it of importance until last Friday."

"And you went to Solicitor Dorsey's office uninvited and of your own accord?"

"Yes, sir, last Saturday."

"What did you say Frank was looking for?"

"A p-i-n or p-e-n. I don't know which."

"You didn't know Frank before that Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Conger Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., say: "Fletcher's Castoria is certainly full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

C. G. A. Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "For 20 years we have sold Fletcher's Castoria and are pleased to state that it has given universal satisfaction."

The Scholtz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has surely become a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Hoagland & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but good to say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

Riker's Drug Stores, of New York City, say: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the oldest and most popular preparations in our stores. We have nothing but good to say about it."

Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of patent medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is included in this few."

D. R. Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ills., say: "The increasing demand for your Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to seek out a remedy of merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Owl Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always been a believer in the 'original man protection' and have been particular never to sell anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). We have many calls every day for this article from people who say they would not be without it in their homes."

CONLEY TELLS AMAZING STORY

morning, did you? You'd never seen him?"

"No, sir.'

"You didn't know anything about his habits, then, did you?"

"No, sir.'

"You knew that Frank had just learned that a little girl had been murdered in his factory, didn't you?"

"No, sir.'

"Didn't the detectives point out the place where the girl was murdered, to him and to others there?"

"Yes, sir."

HAD READ THE PAPERS

"Wasn't there blood on the sawdust under the place where the body was found?"

"No, sir, I didn't see any blood."

"And you saw Frank walk out there and tremble, and didn't consider it important then?"

"Yes, I'm not trained in such matters. I didn't know my testimony was important until I got to reading the newspapers this week."

Solicitor Dorsey took the witness again and asked one question.

"Did you tremble as much as Frank, or less?"

"I don't remember that I trembled any."

Police Sergeant L. S. Dobbs was recalled to the stand.

NEW EVIDENCE

Replying to questions from Solicitor Dorsey, the witness stated that he had found a bloody handkerchief in the basement about 10 feet from the body toward the rear, near a sawdust pile, on Sunday morning after the murder. Witness identified a bloody handkerchief handed to him by the solicitor as the one he had found. It is a small linen handkerchief and is bloody around two edges of it, as if it might have been folded when the blood got on it.

Attorney Rosser cross examined the witness

"When did you find this handkerchief?"

"About 10 or 15 minutes after I saw the body."

"Where was it?"

"It was on the left hand side, back toward the rear, and about 10 feet from the body."

"The sawdust is in a bin, is it not?"

"I didn't notice."

"It breaks over and scatters around the basement, doesn't it?"

"I never noticed."

"Well, you saw some sawdust by the body?"

"Yes."

"How far away from the body did you find that handkerchief?"

"About ten feet beyond her feet."

"Toward the rear?"

FLASHLIGHT PHOTO.

At this point Solicitor Dorsey submitted a flashlight picturing the southwestern end of the basement, showing the whole scene where the body was found, the sawdust bin, etc.

Mr. Rosser took the picture from the witness' hand and after glancing at it smiled broadly and asked: "You recognize the handsome countenance of my friend Black on this picture, do you not?"

"Yes, I recognize him."

Attorney Rosser and the witness examined the photograph together for a moment.

Solicitor Dorsey at this point tendered the bloody handkerchief as evidence. Mr. Rosser inquired of the witness if this handkerchief "when you found it was bloody just as you see it here."

"It was," answered the witness.

"Was it crushed up or spread out?"

"I don't remember."

"Was it soiled like it is now?"

"Yes, sir."

The handkerchief went in evidence.

Sergeant Dobbs was excused, and Solicitor Dorsey recalled Mell Stanford, an employe of the pencil factory

MYSTERIOUS BOOK.

Solicitor Dorsey pointed on the diagram of the factory to the door leading from the third floor to the second floor in rear, and asked:

"Was or was not that door closed on Friday when you left there?"

"There was a bar across it. I put it there."

"Was there any other way to get from the third floor to the second floor except by that door and the other stairs by the office?"

"Only by the fire escape."

The solicitor pointed to the area on the diagram where the bloody stick is supposed to have been found and where Jim Conley is supposed to have been sitting.

"Was that area cleaned up after the tragedy and prior to May 12?"

"It was cleaned up during the week after the killing."

Attorney Rosser cross-examined the witness.

"What sort of a bar was there?"

"A wood bar."

"Did you do the cleaning on the first floor?"

"No, but I saw it done."

"Did you stay there all the time?"

"No, just a part of the time."

"Who did the work?"

"Some negroes. I don't know who they are."

Witness was excused, and W. H. Gheesling was recalled. He is an undertaker connected with the P. J. Bloomfield company.

"I want to ask you about curtains hanging across the doorway of the room where the body was. Were there any?"

"There were a raincoat and a bath robe and another small coat hanging there on the side of the door."

"What impression did that give?"

"The appearance of a curtain."

"You didn't want to give your ingredients in your embalming fluid the other day. Will you tell me if formaldehyde is an ingredient?"

"Yes, sir. I'll state that it is about 8 per cent formaldehyde."

REMOVED CONGESTION.

The solicitor surrendered the witness for cross-examination. Attorney Rosser said, "There, now, I didn't want to go into that at all, but you brought us to that matter. I don't think you've got a right to go into one ingredient and not the rest of them."

Judge Roan asked the solicitor as to the relevancy of the point.

"It is made exceedingly important by the questioning of the defense. They have made it relevant. I want to show that the formaldehyde removed a congestion of the lungs so that there was no trace of the actual cause of her death."

"It's unfair," declared Mr. Rosser. "I'm willing to go into all the ingredients of this fluid, or none of them."

"Mr. Gheesling is there any embalming fluid that you ever heard of that hasn't formaldehyde in it?" asked the solicitor.

"That's about right. It's there in 90 per cent of them anyhow."

The solicitor explained to the court, "He didn't want to publish it. He might give this prescription to Mr. Rosser and Mr. Arnold secretly and then it wouldn't get in the papers and be scattered broadcast."

"Yes, sir, and I want it right now," spoke up Mr. Rosser.

Gheesling said, "I'll consent to that."

GIVES RESCRIPTION.

At the whispered dictation of Gheesling, the witness put it into the court records, with Solicitor Dorsey and Attorneys Arnold and Rosser bending over him.

Attorney Rosser took up his cross examination.

"When Mr. Black and Mr. Frank and Mr. Boots Rogers were in the room where the body was that morning, didn't you point out the scar on the girl's head, and didn't you show a place where her clothes were torn?"

"I don't remember doing that. I don't remember showing anybody anything about the body until 9 o'clock that morning."

Attorney Rosser asked a number of questions rapidly about the coats being in the doorway, etc., apparently in an effort to make the witness admit that Frank did see the body of the murdered girl.

The witness was excused then.

Solicitor Dorsey re-called Mrs J. Arthur White, but Mrs. White did not answer. The solicitor explained that she had been notified early Monday morning but probably had been delayed for a good reason, and that she would be put on the stand later.

Conley's Glibness May Prove Unfortunate for His Testimony

Negro's Recitative Manner of Telling His Story Gives Impression That He Has Rehearsed It Many Times

Jim Conley Monday morning recited his story to the Frank jury.

Newt Lee last week told his.

Above all other things, Jim's testimony was glib.

Newt's was deliberate.

For more than an hour Jim spoke smoothly, evenly, unhesitatingly to the jury, as though his story had been polished by careful rehearsal to himself.

Scarcely once was he interrupted. Solicitor Dorsey's only warning was slower speech. Jim's story came so readily, his lips that he spoke faster than the jury could follow. He never paused. Incidents which he alleged to have happened months ago were told by him as though they were vivid and fresh in his memory.

No witness since the trial began has been so glib of speech as Jim. None has given such minute details. None has inclined so much to dramatic incidents.

He showed none of a negro's difficulty in putting thoughts into words. All that he had to say came readily to his lips. Where Newt had paused and thought to make sure to convince himself he was making no mistake—Jim talked without pause. Even the smallest details were fitted into his story without one instant's hesitation.

The "dids" and "dat" of life bounds his knowledge—so Jim says—and reading is a task beyond him. But if that were otherwise, and a written statement had been in Jim's hands he could have read it no more glibly than he spoke his testimony.

He would lean over a bit toward the jury, and, in as even a voice as though he were telling a pleasant story, he would give incidents of the Phagan murder, as he swears it happened.

"Mr. Frank dropped down into the elevator and hit against my shoulder. When we got out Mr. Frank put his arms round me, and held to me tight. He was frightened. When I left I bought a sandwich and a double-header. On Peters street I paid a Jew a dime."

And so on, with not a minute pausing, giving the most minute happenings, throwing in bits of color, repeating snatches of conversation, adding to the effectiveness of his tale by furnishing a background of description—telling it all as glibly as as though it were written out before him.

Newt Lee had given force and conviction to his story by his appearance of honesty, by his deliberate and downright manner.

But Jim gave testimony which was characterized on the other hand by unhesitating glibness.

Once he said:

"Mr. Frank clasped his hands and looked up to the ceiling and asked: 'Why should I hang. I have wealthy people in Brooklyn?'"

Jim clasped his own hands and raised his eyes to the ceiling.

But glibness had robbed this statement and bit of illustration of their force. Too much directness had dulled the edge of this part of Jim's testimony; and his ready words had the same effect in other instances.

Jim's story was so completely at the tip of his tongue—even the minute things—that his testimony had a recitative air.

A change came at the end of his story and the beginning of Attorney Rosser's cross-examination.

Jim sat silent at first before questions of his employment, his age, his knowledge of reading and writing. His glibness forsook him for the time. Simple questions confused him.

But Mr. Rosser's gentle manner became an assurance, and slowly Jim began again to talk.

He told of his work, he told of his age, he told he could read and spell "dis" and "dat," but that otherwise he had no knowledge.

When court adjourned for dinner, Jim again was becoming glib.

HAWTHORNE'S PAROLE DENIED, IT'S BELIEVED

Was Recommended by Parole Board, but McReynolds Hasn't Acted

Dispatches from Washington indicate that Julian Hawthorne's application for parole has been denied by Attorney General McReynolds. While no definite statement in regard to the matter has been issued from the attorney general's office, such a long time has elapsed since the papers went to him for affirmation that the general opinion seems to be that the parole has been denied.

The application for parole was acted upon favorably by the parole board some time ago, and the impression was that the noted prisoner was to have been released about July 26.

Unless the certificate of release be issued at a later date than customary, Mr. Hawthorne will remain at the federal prison until October, though there is a possibility that the order for his release may come at a belated hour.

The prisoner, who is the grandson of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and himself an author, was sentenced for misuse of the mails. He has been in the prison for some time, and has attracted attention by his poems and articles in Good Words, the magazine issued by the men at the prison.

BIG PUMP AT RIVER IS AT WORK AGAIN

But Economy in Water Is Necessary for a Few Days Longer

The big waterworks pump at the river station, which has been disabled for several weeks, is working again, much to the relief of the water department. It was run on Sunday and oMnday to try it out, and was found to be in good order. It will be shut down Tuesday in order to take down the scaffolding and to go over it once more to be sure that every part is in good shape, and on Wednesday it will start to running regularly.

Manager Smith, of the water department, calls attention, however, to the fact that it will take three or four days to fill up the reservoirs again, because the reservoir supply got so low during the pump's inactivity, and he urges everbody tot continue to be economical about a week longer.

"This is absolutely necesary," said Mr. Smith. "The two other pumps have been running continuously for twenty-six days, and we will have to shut them down in order to inspect them thoroughly and put them in good shape. This means that the water supply will still be scarce for several days, though the disabled pump is again in working order."

The pump which went out of commission was the city's largest source of water supply, its capacity being 15,000,000 every twenty-four hours. The bottom of one of the compartments blew out on July 7, and on the Saturday following, July 11, the pump company's men were at work on the repairs. They worked night and day to hasten the work, and succeeded in finishing it Saturday, a remarkably short time considering the size of the pump.

"I am greatly relieved," said Mr. Smith. "Atlanta has pased through the most critical period in her history as far as the water supply is concerned. If the slightest accident had happened to either of the two other pumps, the water tsation would have been able to supply less than half the amount of water used daily in the city, and we were anxious.

"I specially wish to thank the newspapers," continued Mr. Smith, "for not making scareheads over the situation, and also wish to thank the men who worked so hard on repairing the pump, and the department heads of the city, each one of whom lent us the greatest assistance in economizing as far as possible."

Conley Thought He Was on Trial, His Attorney Declares

"Jim thought he was on trial this morning," said W. M. Smith, attorney for James Conley, the negro sweeper at the pencil factory, after the recess Monday noon following Conley's appearance on the witness stand of the Frank trial.

Attorney Smith declared that the negro had no idea of his real status in the matter until after the court had recessed.

"Then Conley turned to me, after the jury had gone out and he had been taken off the stand and said: 'Boss, I wonder what that jury is going to do with me?' I said: 'You're not on trial, Jim. You're here just as a witness, to tell all you know.' He said: 'Oh, ain't I on trial?' and appeared to be relieved greatly."

Conley was taken to the police station and got his dinner there. At 2 o'clock Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford conducted the negro back to the court house and he resumed his place in the witness chair.

The police assert that until a few days ago they believed he was going to be hanged for the part which he swears he played in disposing of the dead body of Mary Phagan. Harry Scott, of the Pinkerton agency, is authority for that, too.

COUNCIL MAY ACT ON CHANGES IN CHARTER

Legislature May Be Asked to Pass Original Bill or Let Citizens Vote

Supporters of the new city charter will probably introduce in council this afternoon a resolution requesting the state legislature to submit the proposed charter to the people just as it was formulated by council, or, failing to do this, that the people be given an opportunity to vote on the amneded charter. The question of changing the recorder's power, and the question of the initiative, referendum and recall as three separate issues.

Many members of council feel that they had rather not have the charter, as amended, submitted to the people at all, feeling that the cutting out of the initiative, referendum and recall, and the amendment of the clause referring to the power of the recorder, has so weakened the charter as to render it ineffectual.

When the charter question came up before the senate committee last week action on it was deferred, but Senator Huie declared himself to be in favor of submitting the charter as it was originally formulated.

City Attorney James L. Mayson, Councilmen Claude Mason, George Boynton, Alderman Nutting, Judge Hillyer and others appeared before the senate committee to argue their side of the matter, but no action was taken at the time.

Die Within Few Hours Of One Another; One Funeral for Partners

G. E. Wallace, of 707 Ponce de Leon avenue, and John A. Tuggle, of 193 West Fourteenth street, firm friends and close business associates for a number of years, died within several hours of one another. Mr. Wallace's death occurred Saturday night about 10 o'clock and Mr. Tuggle's happened Monday morning at 5 o'clock.

They were engaged in the contracting business together for a number of years and were on the excavating for the post-office several years ago. Their deaths coming so close together was a fitting close to their long friendship in life. Their double funeral will take place from Peachtree church and interment will follow in the church yard.

Mr. Tuggle is survived by his wife, one child, three brothers and four sisters. Surviving Mr. Wallace are his wife, one child, two brothers and five sisters.

Mrs. B. W. Guinn Dead

The remains of Mrs. W. B. Guinn, who died Saturday night, were sent to Walhalla, S. C., Monday from A. C. Hemperley's chapel for funeral and interment.

The Calendar of Events Shows That Now During

The "Blue Tag" Furniture Sale

Is the Time of the Whole Year to Buy Furniture

"How fine it would be," remarked a customer the other day, who was evidently much pleased with her purchases, "if we could always buy furniture as we can in this 'Blue Tag' Sale." It was more of a wish than anything else, the futility of which she had appreciated, and so, had acted accordingly.

No store could sell furniture regularly as we are during this "Blue Tag" season, so, following the logic of the Mahomet-and-mountain episode, those who need furniture will go to this sale.

Its opportunities are those of the South's greatest stock of furniture offered at prices that, in view of, in SPITE of the upward tendency of furniture prices, are reduced in a fashion typical of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. clearaways It leaves nothing wanting. One might travel far and wide to find such a variety of furniture to choose from---it takes a big, five-story store to house it---and still, mere quantity is not the point we would emphasize---it is the KIND of furniture with which we have filled this store (which you may now own at healthy savings) that we are proudest of. It is all whose life will be the long life of seasoned woods properly treated and finished by men who know how, the worthiest at every price that we could find in the big markets of America. No specially bought sale stuff with screws of glue, and grain of varnish has entered here.

Honest, True-Blue Furniture

THIS IS A SALE OF SAFE FURNITURE!

So, whether it be furniture for

The Bedroom (Brass Beds Included), Dining Room, Living Room or Porch

or for all of these that you need, the way to safe economy lies in the "Blue Tag" Sale.

Take this, then, as an invitation to explore the "Blue Tag" Sale, to make whatever comparisons you might like to satisfy yourself upon all points of the furniture you are going to take into your home, that you are going to make a part and parcel of it. For soon you will be turning about to live indoors, and doubtless many changes in furnishings will be made.

Foresight spells huge savings.

Period Furniture

It is worthy of particular note in this noteworthy event that, although every little separate chair, rocker, desk, table, chiffonier, and the like in stock (excepting contract-price pieces) is included, some of the healthiest reductions are on the rich and true sets of Period Furniture and reproductions of antique pieces---Sheraton, Jacobean, William and Mary, Chippendale and others. Sets for bed-room, dining room and living room.

HOUSE FAVORS DOUBLING TAX ON CORPORATIONS

Bill Passes by Vote of 109 to 13—Other Tax Bills Tabled Until Tuesday

By a vote of 109 to 13, the bill of Representatives Akin, of Glynn, and Slater, of Bryan, doubling the occupation tax on foreign and domestic corporations was passed in the house Monday morning.

The bill, which amends section 950 o the code of 1911, raises the tax on all corporations to from $10 to $200 applied on a sliding scale according to the capital stock of such corporations. The tax as it now stands fixes the tax at just half that the new bill provides.

Corporations capitalized not exceeding $10,000 are reuired to pay the minimum tax of $10, while those capitalized at $1,000,000 or over shall pay the maximum of $200.

The scale of taxation for amounts in between follows:

From $10,000 to $25,000, a tax of $25.

From $25,000 to $100,000, a tax of $50.

From $100,000 to $200,000, a tax of $75.

From $200,000 to $500,000, a tax of $100.

From $500,000 to $1,000,000, a tax of $150.

TAX ON BOTTLING PLANTS.

The ways and means bill, of Mr. Akin, increasing the tax on automatic bottling plants was also passed. The vote was 96 to 16.

This bill proposes to place the tax on these plants as follows:

Twenty-five dollars for machines having one filling head, $75 for machines of two filling heads, $125 for machines having three filling heads and $50 for each additional filling head on machines having more than three heads.

DELAY ON TAX BILL.

Owing to the fact that barely a quorum of the house was present Monday morning at 9 o'clock when the assembly was called to order, it was moved and carried that action on all bills amendatory to the general tax act, set as special orders, be deferred until Tuesday morning imediately after the period of unanimous consent.

This action on the part of the members was made necesary in that there was not the necessary two-thirds present to carry any constitutional amendments.

In this connection, Speaker W. H. Burwell, took occasion to congratulate those present for being in their seats at the same time deploring the delinquency of those members whose absence had retarded action on most important matters set as special and continuing orders.

AUTO TAX UP.

The question of an increased tax on automobiles in the state took up some time in the house Monday morning.

The bill of Representative Akin, of Glynn, came up for passage. This measure would change the present law of $25 license for all automobiles, raised as long as the owner keeps the car, to a tax of $5 annually.

A number of amendments were offered, including all one-horse and two-horse vehicles, but action on amendments and the main bill was deferred when the house adjourned at 1 o'clock, to meet again at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

At this time all bills amendatory to the general tax act will be considered.

House Votes Against Licensing Lobbyists

A hot fight on the floor of the house was precipitated Monday morning when the ways and means bill of Mr. R. Akin, of Glynn, providing for an annual tax of $50 on registered lobbyists, come up for passage.

The fight proved all the more interesting because it was entirely unexpected.

Led by Representative Ed Wohlwender, of Muscogee, who declared to license lobbyists would only serve to increase their number and activities, the house fought the measure successfully, and it was tabled. The vote was 80 to 48.

Mr. Wohldender called attention to the present law against lobbying, and declared that a license would be in direct contradiction of it. He said the members of the legislature had been dogged at every step with lobbyists since the beginning of the session until they were unable to turn for fear of having their coats pulled off."

Car of Coal for Waterworks Gone from Face of the Earth

Coal Company's Man Believes It's Hiding in the Reservoir and Wants to Dredge for It, but Manager Smith Won't Let Him

Lost—one carload of coal, somewhere between the coal company's supply yards and the waterworks station. The coal company and the railroads insist that it is up to Zode Smith, general manager of the waterworks department, to explain the whereabout of the missing car of coal, while Manager Smith declares it is up to the railroads and the coal company to show delivery.

The representative of the coal company seriously contemplates dragging the reservoirs for the mysteriously disappearing coal, but Manager Smith insists that he will not have the water supply stirred up in any such manner.

The representative appeared for the fortieth time in Mr. Smith's office Monday morning, and before he could put his query the general manager forestalled him with the answer, "No, it hasn't shown up. Try it again."

The representative heaved a weary sigh. "I have been over every inch of trackage in this city on foot," he said, "on foot," with emphasis, "and I have ridden every foot of ground within a radius of thirty miles of the city; and I can't find the coal or the car either. You must have it," he insisted.

"No I haven't," retorted Mr. Smith. "Why don't you hire some detectives to help you?"

"Humph," replied the other, "I would; only I am afraid the only thing they would be able to discover would be that the coal's lost, and I already know that."

The coal has been missing for several weeks. It was ordered by the water department, but when the bill was presented Mr. Smith declined to pay it because the coal had never shown up. The railroad insisted that the car has been sidetracked, unloaded, and then withdrawn on a certain date, but the records of both offices showed this to be impossible because the tracks at the pumping station were filled to their limit on the days mentioned, and no other car could have gotten in.

Then the search began. Though cars or coal frequently get lost; this one has played a most sucessful game of hide and seek, and the coal company has been "it," ever since the game began.

And by now it has become amusing to General Manager Smith, who sits back and smiles every time the coal company's representative saunters in.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE FOUND MURDERED

KIRSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Ivy Chevelier, 40 years old, and her daughter, Ella, 15 years old, were found murdered in their home here today. Apparently they had been dead for two hours. The two had been beaten over the heads and were lying on the floor in their night apparel. Mrs. Chevelier and her daughter conducted a laundry.

By Mr. Holtzclan, of Houston—To authorize trustees of M. E. church to sell property in Houston county.

By Mr. Miller, of Bibb—To increase the salary of the judge of the city court of Macon.

By Mr. McCrary, of Telfair—To amend an act creating a commissioner of roads and revenue for Telfair county.

By Mr. Davidson, of Putnam—To amend an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenue for Putnam county.

By Mr. Henson, of Jones—To create the office of county commissioner of Jones county.

AFTERNOON SESSIONS ARE BEGUN BY SENATE

Will Continue Them Until Appropriations Bill Is Passed, Sections Passed

The state senate went into afternoon sesions at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon for the first time this term, to continue them until the general appropriations bill which was taken up for action Monday morning, shall be passed.

The afternoon sessions will last from 3 to 5 o'clock, with regular morning sessions from 10 o'clock until 1 o'clock.

The appropriations bill, with $280,000 cut by the committee, is being handled section by section in the senate. The four first sections were passed Monday morning just as they came from the house with but two amendments.

One was in section three, which provides for the salaries and expenses of the general assembly. As the bill came from the house there was provision for five door-keepers for the house instead of four, the number customary in the past. Senator Tarver moved to amend the section to fear instead of five, an amendment which was adopted.

A committee amendment to section four, providing for the payment of $450 to insurance due the property of the deaf and dumb, was adopted. Section one, providing for the salaries of the state official's; section two, providing for the salaries of the judges and others in the judicial department; section three, providing for the general assembly; and section four, providing for such state institutions as the academy for the blind, the school for the deaf, the state sanitarium, the state tuberculosis sanitarium, and the soldiers' home, were all passed.

The senate took up section five just before adjournment at 1 o'clock. This is where the fight lies, as this section is the one cut by the committee to bring down the appropriations to the amount of the expected revenue.

Numerous amendments besides the committee amendment making a cut of 7 per cent have been offered.

Many objections already have been made to the alleged cutting of the common school fund more than was warranted, and a solution of the problem is sought in the amendments which will come up for vote Monday afternoon.

The question of the appropriations bill took up nearly the whole of Monday morning in the senate.

DOG ATTACKS BAILIFF AND YOUTH ON MOTORCYCLE

"Boots" Rogers Fired Eight Times, but Missed Dog Which Bit Him

W. W. Rogers, better known as "Boots," a bailiff in the justice of the peace court of Judge Girardeau and a witness at the Frank trial several days ago, was attacked by a vicious dog on Capitol avenue, near the corner of Milton, Sunday afternoon, and was dragged from his motorcycle when the animal seized his leg.

Ellis Cheek, a youth of fifteen, riding on the baggage carrier behind Mr. Rogers, stood guarding the righted machine while Rogers hunted the dog. The animal returned and attacked Mr. Cheek, biting him in the cheek.

Bailiff Rogers fired eight shots after the dog and never did hit it, he declares. He himself sustained a gash two inches or so long in one leg, caused by the dog's teeth. Both Rogers and Cheek began a course of Pasteur treatment at the state board of health laboratory in the capitol Monday morning. Rogers avers the dog was rabid.

The Medical Practice Bill.

The Medical Practice bill, which has passed the State Senate by the significant vote of thirty-six to four and which is expected to come before the House for final action this week, is a measure of particularly vital importance to every citizen and every home in Georgia. There is, perhaps, no graver menace to a people's welfare than an ignorant or unprincipled man in the role of a physician. His capacity for harm is almost unlimited. If he be ignorant, human life and untold suffering are his sacrifice. If he be unprincipled, his opportunities to swindle the public are greater than those of all other fakers combined. If he be both ignorant and unprincipled, as is sometimes the case, he is a peril more deadly than any disease which ever scourged mankind.

Georgia is today in the tragically unfortunate position of being virtually without legal protection against ignorant and unprincipled practitioners. So antiquated, indeed, is our law in this regard that eighteen of the thirty-eight States which formerly recognized Georgia medical licenses now refuse to do so, and among these are our neighboring commonwealths Alabama and North and South Carolina.

Nor is their ostracism at all surprising when we reflect that under the Georgia law there is no means of revoking a physician's license, however unqualified or untrustworthy he may be, and when we reflect further that our legal requirements of medical education are so lax and low as to be well-nigh a farce. This is not to imply that the representative medical colleges in Georgia are not conducted on high standards but the ominous fact remains that unless a medical college in this State voluntarily measures up to reputable requirements there is no means of compelling it to do so.

These conditions are manifestly unjust and dangerous to the public as well as a blot upon the State's good name. They should not be suffered to continue. The purpose of the pending bill is to raise the educational standard and safeguard the integrity of the medical profession. It is a bill in the interest of human welfare and as such it should receive the vote of every member of the House who values the life and happiness of the people he represents.

Castro, at any rate, hasn't joined the ranks of the universal peace advocates.

Flinging the Gauntlet.

With Castro piping in Venezuela, Huerta puling in Mexico, the tariff bill and the currency question booming at Washington and divers interesting things frisking under our very noses, we naturally hear little of our old entertainers, the Turk and the bellicose Balkans. Yet, we may be sure that the Balkans are still turbulent and that when a dull day comes here at home they will shine out again with all the news of plots and wars and hale romance a jaded headline writer could desire.

The last tidings from the stormy peninsula were to the effect that doughty Enver Bey, Turkey's man of the hour in the re-captured city of Adrianople had "flung down the gauntlet to Europe." Whenever a gauntlet is flung down, whether it be a real thing of glittering steel or simply a vigorous trope, we may look for the villains and heroes to come thronging forward, hurly-burly, pell-mell, higgledy-piggledy and in every other fashion approved by the brave old times; unless, to be sure, those to whom defiance is hurled are caitiffs or lossels vile, and there are no cattle of that color around the Balkan lands. Hence, if Enver Bey has really flung the gauntlet down, let us listen, for pretty soon something is going to "crap."

Bulgaria is too busy with the Greeks and Serbs and the Greeks and Serbs are too busy with Bulgaria to spare any time for Turkey now; but the European Powers will scarcely permit Turkey to smear out the new map they have so painstakingly drawn. If the Turk persists in being too saucy, the Powers may do a little flinging of their own, the upshot, or rather downshot, of which will be that Uncle Enver Bey and his fire-eating compatriots will be driven to decide that man wants but little here below nor wants that little long.

By looking carefully you will find more things to commend than to criticise.

We have no objection to a parole for Mr. Julian Hawthorne, but the public may as well be put on notice that they would have to expect a novel on penitentiary life.

Fifty Millions to Move the Crops.

The business virtues of the Wilson administration are strikingly witnessed in Secretary McAdoo's plan to transfer from the treasury to the national banks of the South and the West between twenty-five and fifty million dollars to facilitate the movement of crops and to forestall any serious financial stringency. The Government thus comes opportunely to the aid of the farmers and bankers in the great agricultural sections and renders a service of which the practical value to commerce and industry at large is almost beyond reckoning.

Harvests of all kinds this year will be unusually large. The monetary means for handling them must be proportionately increased. Any attempt on the part of special interests to contract the money market when money is so urgently needed must be checkmated. Thus alone can business move prosperously forward and the welfare of the country as a whole be conserved. This vital need the treasury department will meet by depositing additional funds directly with the banks in those sections where the demand for money is greatest.

The Wilson-McAdoo policy is in this respect distinctly different from that which has heretofore prevailed. In former years, when financial conditions began to show signs of stringency, the Government has placed its money mainly in New York banks, with the result that whatever part of such funds the South or the West received was secured only on terms made by those at the tight centers of financial control. Under this new plan, at once more practical and more generous, Government money will be directly available in the crop-producing quarters where it is primarily needed. It is recalled in this connection that a year ago Mr. MacVeagh, then secretary of the treasury, declined to make additional Government deposits "on the ground that the moderate federal surplus funds at that time should be held as a reserve to be utilized at some possible critical stage." The Wilson administration takes the wiser view that the Government should use every influence at its command to prevent even an incipient stringency; that a stitch in time will be worth nine when trouble is actually developing.

The treasury department's offer is particularly noteworthy for its liberal terms. "In order to make these special deposits available to the banks on securities readily within their reach," says the official announcement, "the Secretary will accept as security prime commercial paper, in addition to Government and high class State, municipal and other bonds." Government bonds will be accepted as security at par; other bonds at seventy-five per cent of their market value and approved commercial paper at sixty-five per cent of its face value. The deposits will be returnable in easy installments and will bear interest at the rate of two per cent per annum. This is said to be the first time the Government has accepted commercial paper as security for its deposits. Certainly, no national administration has ever before come so directly and so liberally to the aid of agricultural and business needs.

By this seasonable plan every section of the country will profit out the South will be especially benefited. The cotton crop will be moved with expedition so that the fresh streams of wealth which it represents will find their way promptly into all channels of business, quickening and enriching every tide of trade. The farmer, the banker, the merchant will all be helped; and not only these but the hundreds of thousands of other men working in divers fields will be protected. Surely, the present administration stands for progress, for freedom and for practical service.

Talking Against Time

The Republican members of the Senate are facing a severe test of their wind power. Unless the Democratic majority gives them some assurance that a currency bill will not be pressed for passage at this session, they threaten to talk the pending tariff bill into an indefinite delay. The majority is not likely to give the assurance desired, for the party leaders seem agreed that some measure of banking and currency reform ought to be and will be enacted before Congress adjourns. Thus, if the Republican Senators are to carry out their threat, it becomes their torrid task to talk, and to talk morning, noon and night.

The situation is rather a droll one. The Democrats intend to refrain from set speeches and, indeed, to say as little as circumstances will permit in order that the entire burden of consuming time with words may fall upon the minority. When the Republicans quit talking, then a vote must be taken and the tariff will pass. It is the Democratic plan to begin by extending the Senate sessions to seven hours a day, then to establish a nine-hour a day program and finally, if need be, to hold night sessions as well.

The opponents of tariff revision must either wag their tongues incessantly or allow the bill to go through. This is a situation in which silence will be truly golden and very comfortable to boot. And the probability is that the opposition will soon break down.

If many people were to think before they speak they would forget what they were going to say.

The Lure of the Roof Garden

By Frederic J. Haskin

The development of new uses for the roofs of buildings has been so remarkable during the past decade that the roof garden has come to play an important part in the summer life of the dwellers in every large American city. Instead of the street cafes and open air restaurants scattered along the thoroughfares of European cities, Americans are growing more into the habit of climbing to the roofs of high buildings for their refreshments and entertainment. In most cases, however, the climb is made an easy one by the perfect working of the modern elevator. The elaborate arrangements of some of these roof garden resorts seem almost incredible when it is considered that they are used only for the summer season, averaging about four months in duration.

• • •

The first roof gardens of the word are lost in antiquity. Even before the famous hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar in Babylon the people used the roofs of their houses for sleeping and recreation purposes in warm weather. In old oriental cities flat roof houses are still found which have stood for centuries. Upon these roofs the women of the family have always been accustomed to take their airings since the customs of their race did not permit them to go into the street.

• • •

The frist roof garden cafe opened as an experiment on the top of a New York hotel about ten years ago was a decent affair when compared with the present. It contained a few rustic tables and chairs and the refreshments provided were of the simplest kind. Later in the season a little music was introduced. The next year the roof garden opened in a more pretentious way. It was enlarged, more elaborately decorated and meals were offered as sumptuously as in the dining rooms below. The music was also improved. Celebrated artists from grand opera companies were engaged at extravagant prices. Every consideration was given to making the guests as comfortable as possible while providing them with an entertainment of high standard.

• • •

At first these roof garden entertainments were informal and used only as an accompaniment to the attractions of the cafe. Now in some of the larger gardens there is a complete program, which the patrons may enjoy amid cool outdoor breezes, while at the same time appreciating a view covering miles of territory. The pleasures of a modern roof garden may be as varied as at Coney Island or the Atlantic City boardwalk. Each week new attractions are developed for the ever increasing throng. The same bill may provide several grades of entertainment from the simple beer and sandwiches served upon bare wooden tables to the elaborate champagne supper served in a magnificently decorated open air dining room with heavy napery, dazzling silver and cut glass in abundance.

• • •

Dancing is also provided upon many roof gardens. It is supposed to be moonlight dancing, but when Luna's rays are insufficient they are supplemented by softly shaded electric lights not less romantic in appearance. Plenty of shadowy corners are to be found, but those who are attracted by brilliancy can always find pleasure in the various effective electrical illuminations which are found in some part of the roof garden. With dancing, music, clever theatricals, cooling breezes and every viand known to the epicure, a city roof garden upon a hot summer's night seems not to fall far short of Elysium.

• • •

The newest idea in roof garden development is to equip them with a landing place for aeroplanes. Such an adjunct is being planned in connection with at least two great American hostelries. This can only be possible upon a roof covering a large area, or space on a building of exceptional strength. At least one large hotel has already provided an incline and a huge elevator by means of which a large automobile may be raised to the roof garden, giving its occupants an opportunity to see the view and secure refreshments without getting out of their machine.

• • •

The use of the roof is not only for the rich. The elaborate equipment of the hotel is designed chiefly for the well-to-do, but the cool air of a house roof may be free to thousands of unfortunates in tenement districts who find their close rooms unbearable. Before roof gardens were thought of as a commercial institution tenement women took their babies on the roofs. No arrangements existed then for safety and the death of a child from rolling off a roof was not infrequent. Now few houses having a flat roof, which can be reached from the inside, are left without some railing or protection which would make such a fall impossible.

• • •

The roof gardens have developed other uses than mere pleasure. The air at the top of the building from ten to twenty stories high is purer and dryer than the atmosphere of the street below. The location of a hospital in midair for "lungers," which Kipling exploited as a possible development of the airship, is made feasible now by utilizing the roof. A young man in New York developed symptoms of tuberculosis several years ago. He was ordered to Arizona by his physician who said he could not live six months unless he kept absolutely out of doors. Instead of going to Arizona the young man took careful account of his resources. He found that he could provide himself with necessities for a year. A friend was in charge of one of the largest office buildings in the city. Arrangements were made for the invalid to have the use of the roof. He provided himself with a small tent, an oil stove, fuel and food supplies for a year. His food included a large portion of condensed milk desiccated eggs and other nutrients which could be preserved indefinitely.

• • •

He took up his residence on the roof in September before the winter weather set in. He carried out a regular routine of exercise each day, ate prescribed foods of which he had as great a variety as possible, and eked out the existence with a few books and a great deal of solitaire. He also had a chess board upon which he played many tournaments with imaginary partners. The winter weather was severe but he had sufficient warm clothing. He shoveled snow and built snow forts after the manner of a school boy. In a few months he found himself gaining in strength to a degree which surprised his friend who paid him an occasional visit. In the spring he planted seeds in boxes of soil which had been provided and was then able to treat himself to radishes and lettuce. The result was an absolute cure. At the expiration of the year he was able to resume his ordinary mode of life with no trace of the malady which had threatened to shorten his existence. The possibilities of tuberculosis camps upon the roofs of buildings are yet undeveloped, although perfectly feasible in the minds of physicians.

• • •

Using the roof of a school building as a playground for children created much comment when it was first begun in New York and Philadelphia. It proved so satisfactory that all objections were speedily overcome. It made playgrounds possible in a location where ground was absolutely unavailable. In a school accommodating 1,500 children the recreation problem is difficult. The school ground is sufficient for only two or three hundred at a time. Even by varying the recreation period for the different grades it could not accommodate the entire school. In one school of this kind the yard is reserved for the primary and oldest pupils. The intermediate grades take their recreation upon the roof which is equipped with all the features of a model playground. Part of it is roofed with the sides left open so that even on a rainy day the little folks do not lose their out-of-door play.

A DREAM OF FAIR COOKS.

IV.—Lena.

I pray that I am not egregiously gross;
I hope I shall always be able
To keep from becoming unduly verbose
Concerning the joys of the table.

What time that Parnassus may be my address,
And Pierian springs I may drink of,
I hope none will say as he reads: "Well, I guess Provisions is all he can think of."

Yet Food hath its place—and its place is the home—
Sound, psalter! and sound, concertina!
For I am about to deliver a pome,
The theme of the same being Lena.

The coffee she brews! and the eggs that she boils!
Her soups and her French fried potatoes!
The pies that she bakes and the steaks that she broils!
And oh! how she fixes tomatoes!

She's pleasant to talk to and pleasant to see—(Poor Martha! her gloom was atrocious!
Poor Gretchen! she thought I was Simon Legree,
While, truly, I'm far from ferocious.)

O Lena, sincerely I put in my song
The whole of my earnest endeavor,
I can't, I am sure, make it any too strong:
I hope you'll stay with us forever.

"I know what I mean. Our men looked—well—perfect. Clean-cut somebodies, you know; and I'd rather lose and look clean-cut than win looking stocky and heavy."—Thus Friscilla, writing in the London "Tatler" of the International polo matches.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

July 30.—Up and to my office and very cheery there all the morning, reading pleasant letters from manywhere, which puts me in great content with the world. With C. Galge to Croton and found there Mistress Hilda waiting for us in the great new petroleum-waggon, very fine, albeit the old one did please me as much. All to E. Selwyn the playactor's and had much ginger-beer and sarsaparilla and played two setts with him and then I. Cobb the scrivener and I did play against him and Mr. Musson and I marvelled that Irvin did do so well as he did, what with his great bulk. Thence all into the Hudson for a swim and Mistress Margaret Mayo did ply us with more sweet drinks, and thence to dinner, where I sate beside Hilda, which I liked, and we had a fine dinner, and the bat buttermilk I have had in five years. Then for a long ride into the country and so, by train, home, and to-bed.

31.—Read "Village Life in America," by Catherine Richards, a simple book and interesting for the unaffectedness of it. To the court with my new racquet and J. Meserreau and I did play against young Mr. Osiendorf and another gentleman and they beat us, but it was not for cause of the racquet. Home, where we had a fine dinner of a fried pullet and then some sort of stuff that had in it pears and plums and was very good. Read this night the Book of Job and a few pages in Chambers's Books of Days. Talk groweth of how Mr. Whitman is to be chosen for Lord Mayor, and I thing him a good man, but would liefer see Mr. McAneny chosen than any. The Cubs did again defeat the Giants to-day, which I was glad of.

"IN THE BLUE RIDGE MOUNTAINS OF VIRGINIA."

(From the Charlottesville (Va.) Progress.)

Everybody turkey trotted. They all caught hold of each other. Tight hold. It was catch as catch can. First all the fmales tried to let their feet slip out behind, and the males brought them up. Then the males tried it, but the females couldn't stand the thought of their getting that far away, so back they brought them. Then the males tried to trip the females up, the females retaliated. They rocked and swaped. They dollicked and they frollicked. They turkey troted like anything. They looked like everything. They looked almost like human beings. They danced the Lingering Drag and the Boston Dip, and the Buzzard Lope. They danced the Bunny Hug and the Rabbit Wrastle, but they were not hard enough so they tried the Bear Hug. That was better. Every once in a while they stopped to dry off and take a whiff, then at it again they went. They danced highlandish flings, and lowlandish clings and outlandish flings. The chief Clapperon did her duty. They swayed. They rollicked and they frollicked. They slipped and slid, and slithered, they shot the chute, they looped the loop, they pranced like sixty. It was a delicious scramble. Scrombleys Bettina Barebacked was carried away. Siegfried the Seeall carried her. Editha the Ethereal was carried around. Hugo the Hugger carried her. All of them lost consciousness, all of them lost their senses. Selina Slim, the Shefooted, tried to break out of her cocoon. She tried to rip it from the bottom up, she tried to rip it from the top down, but it held. She tried to jump down through it but she couldn't; it was tight at the bottom.

Finally it came to an end. It ended. It halted. It stopped. It was over. The females went home. The males went to their rooms.

The Life-Efficiency Expert

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

It is the day of efficiency experts. There are skilled men who go to the manufacturing plant or any other kind of business organization and find out what is the matter why the concern is losing money, where the waste is, what is the point of weakness.

The trouble may lie with the foreman of Department B, or with the workmen in the yards, with neglect here or carelessness there. The eagle eye of the expert sees the flaw, the boss remedies the evil, and the factory takes a sudden leap toward 16 per cent dividends. It is a great idea.

It would be a greater idea if one knew where we could find an efficiency expert in living, one who could examine our bodies, habits and the inmost sides of our minds and souls see where a screw is loose or where oil is needed, and so advise us how to readjust our lives and make living to be efficient and worth while.

For the difficulty with most of us is not poor health, lack of book-learning, unprofitable business or harrassing surroundings; it is that we do not understand the art of living.

The life-efficiency expert, if there were such existing, might go to the foolish wife and mother who is worrying herself into her grave and give her a few hints on values, upon sacrificing the big for the small things of life, and show her how devoting some time to her health personal appearance, and the cultivation of her mind would do more good than to fritter her whole life-capital away on housecleaning and stocking-darning.

He might go to the commercial traveler and demonstrate to him how high-balls and poker by and by always get around and clog promotion.

He might go to the successful banker and make plain to him how a man may be a business success and yet a miserable failure as far as his own life is concerned.

He might go to the lady who is a society lady and point out why, although she reigns in the social world, she makes wreck and ruin of her domestic affairs.

He might go to the embittered, to those souls who, separation and make them to see the obstacle that threatens disaster to their love, and how to remove that obstacle.

He might go to the man who is a failure and direct him how to adjust himself to non-success so as to make his life even richer than success could make it.

He might go to the embittered, to those souls who, scorpion-like, sting themselves with their own scorn, and give them some antidote of common sense that would bring peace between them and themselves.

He might go to the headstrong, fatuous, egotistic, and unreasonable and fix the deranged machinery of their souls.

He might go to the superstitious, the half-insane faddists, the prejudiced and all who have given themselves over to some hypnotic nonsense and bring them back to sanity.

But, alas! I fear the life-efficiency expert would starve. For the last place we look for the thing that is the matter with us is within ourselves. The universal infatuation of the human race is that it is outer things and other folks that always are to blame.

What the fool human being wants is for somebody to change circumstances, not himself.

"The Peace of the Sussex Man"

Much interest has recently been manifested in the discovery, by Mr. Charles Dawson, of part of the skull and mandible of an ancient man, near Pilt Down common, Sussex, England. Workmen first found an object resembling a cocoanut, which curiosity led them to break in pieces, and, being unable to solve the mystery, they cast the pieces aside. Later a number of worked flints were found and laid out by the roadside. Mr. Dawson happening along saw these and was told of the cocoanut. He recovered the fragments and pieced them together to find that they formed the left half of a human skull. Subsequent search succeeded in bringing to light a fragment of the tooth of a mastodon; various fragments of the teeth of a prehistoric elephant, together with those of a hippopotamus, a beaver, and an extinct horse; a bit of a large deer's antler; and, finally, a fossilized jawbone which is presumed to belong to the small skull. . . . The place of this ancient ancestor in the roots of our family tree may be determined by a study of certain geological and anthropological factors. . . . The incompleteness of the Sussex skull renders estimates of the cranial capacity difficult, but it undoubtedly falls between sixty-two and sixty-seven cubic inches. Prof. Keith attempts to reconstruct the whole head of the Heidelberg man on the basis of facts revealed by the mandible, and concludes that the cranial capacity was not less than one thousand three hundred cubic centimeters, or about seventy-eight cubic inches. Allowing for all possible inaccuracies in these figures, the man of Sussex shows smaller cranial capacity than that of any other European remains thus far discovered. In this respect he also represents a more primitive type of man than any existing race.—Frederick A. Hodge, in the August number of the North American Revfew.

FOOLISHNESS

There was a goose that waddled through
Her life, and night and morn,
As fowls in general like to do,
She gathered grains of corn;
But this goose, differing from the lot,
Ate little corn each day,
And most of all the grains she got
She slyly stored away.

There was a man who lived his life
In frenzy hot and strained;
He passed his days in anxious strife
And dollars! thus he gained.
But this man spent, by day or night,
Few dollars won the while;
In saving took he vast delight
And adding to his pile.

It would be custom's way to name
The goose a goose indeed,
And to the rich man goodly fame
Award as proper meed,
And so these lines no moral bear—
For what would be the use?
But did you ever, anywhere,
Know such a foolish goose?

OPTICIAN ATTACKS NEW MEDICAL REFORM BILL

Believes Promoters Seek Undue Advantages—Says Act Would Effect Reforms

Editor The Journal:

The Journal has always shown a consistent interest in movements looking toward the promotion of education and educational reform. I know that your paper takes the position that any reform effort cannot be injured by the light of publicity if it has merit and is being advocated by persons sincerely interested in public welfare. I am therefore presuming to ask for a little space in one of the columns of The Journal that I may call the attention of the public to features of an educational bill which certain persons are seeking to have passed in the present legislature. It is known as the medical practice bill.

My attention was called to this measure by letters received from several reputable opticians in different parts of Georgia. These gentlemen asked me why it is that this bill, which purports to regulate the practice of medicine, presumes to include in its provisions rules for the department of opticians—when no medical college recognizes the fitting of glasses as a part of the practice of medicine. The natural inquiry was then: Is the bill really framed to regulate the legitimate practice of medicine or is it designed to widen the sphere of influence of certain doctors? On reading the bill I was impressed with some of its peculiarities which I believe would interest the public.

That there is need of reform in medical education in Georgia as well as elsewhere, no one, who has given the matter any thought, will attempt to deny. That the bill as at present constituted will, even in a small degree, accomplish said reform and do it in an equitable manner is open to serious question. That the original promoters of this measure ever expected that it would bring about an educational reform of benefit to the public is also open to doubt.

The bill provides for a state board of medical examiners who shall pass on the qualifications of those who propose to practice medicine in Georgia, and gives the control of said board to a certain school of medicine. That the membership of a state board should be selected with a view of its general and educational fitness, goes without saying. The field of therapeutics is immensely broad—no one school can know it all. That a certain faction of the medical profession should be singled out, and legally placed in control of said board is undemocratic in principle and abhorrent to the American citizen enjoying individual rights as a free moral agent.

When a person answers the practice of any profession in a state having statutory regulation he is practicing either legally or illegally. If his form of practice is illegal, then of course he should be compelled to conform to the law. If, on the other hand, he is handling his work according to law, and by virtue of license issued by state boards, then he is entitled to untrammeled recommendation on said board—and none may say him nay.

With a cavalier disregard of this inherent right a faction advocating this bill is demanding that the law shall actually designate a majority of said board to be selected from the cult they are striving to enter an open field, in a free contest, and let the best man win. In a word, they really ask that the people of Georgia guarantee their prestige to the exclusion of any other school.

It is of course unlikely that the assembly will pass the bill in its present shape, but I feel that the public should know that an effort is being made to advance this peculiar piece of legislation.

Respectfully submitted,

J. E. FOLSOM.

PLANS ARE BEING MADE FOR COTTON EXHIBIT

Efforts are being made to have the new chamber of commerce fitted up so that Atlanta may have a permanent cotton and cotton products exhibition. All arrangement must be perfected this week, as they will involve important changes in the chamber of commerce building that is now being remodeled. It will be suggested that one entire floor be given over for this purpose.

A subcommittee, with W. M. Hutchinson as chairman, has been appointed and is actively at work on the matter. It has gone over what has already been done and will take whatever other steps they think necessary. This committee meets Monday and will be ready to make a report to the cotton products committee when it meets Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

There is no doubt of this suggestion meeting with approval from the cotton seed oil men, for they expressed themselves as being very much in favor of it at their last meeting. The spinners and the allied industries also will give their support to the project and Atlanta is sure to have a permanent cotton and cotton products exhibition.

NEGRO UNHURT AFTER TERRIFIC AUTO SMASHUP

A telegraph pole broken in two places and a smashed automobile is the evidence the police claim to have against Tennessee Thrash, negro chauffeur for G. S. Tryor, of 211 Ponce de Leon avenue, who is charged with reckless driving.

While driving in Houston street near Southland avenue Monday Thrash collided with the telegraph pole with the result that the pole was broken in two places and the machine smashed. The negro was badly cut and shaken up, but his hurts were slight.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

General Assembly Has But Eight More Working Days.

Counting Monday, exactly eight more working days are left for the present session of the general assembly of Georgia. There is, of course, one Saturday, but the last day of the week is used only for the passage of local bills, so the day amounts to practically a holiday as far as real legislation is concerned.

The house and senate now face an exigency that can be met only partly successfully, by afternoon sessions for the remainder of the time.

A solid week was used on the tax equalization bills and if that much time is consumed in passing the administration measures amendatory to the general tax act, there is little hope, indeed for any other legislation getting through at this session.

The senate already has decided to hold afternoon sessions for the remainder of the time and it is not at all unlikely that similar action will be taken by the lower assembly Tuesday at the latest.

Killing of Augusta Citizens by Militia Will Get Hearing After All.

Despite the inclination of the house committee on military affairs not to reopen the hearing of the Beck resolution seeking a legislative probe into the killing of three citizens of Augusta by the state militia during the street railway strike there last September, advocates of the matter have succeeded in having the resolution set as a special order for Wednesday afternoon.

The hearing of the resolution was begun nearly two weeks ago. At the conclusion of the first session it was announced that the chairman would call another meeting during the early part of the committee reopen the inquiry, with week, however, it became known that the committee would not further consider the resolution, but let the matter drop for this session at least, and possibly for all time.

This failed to meet with the approval of some of the house members, and a determined effort was made to have the committee reopen the inquiry, with the result that Wednesday of this week was set for the hearing.

A New Member of the House Is Mr. "Pickwick," of Houston.

Some of the house members having a literary turn, have given to Representative Green, of Houston, the sobriquet of "Mr. Pickwick," which is not at all farfetched, for the amiable and able member from Houston fits the description of Dickens' immortal character and the artist's conception of same.

"Mr. Pickwick" sits within a whisper of the press table and has become the guardian of the news gatherers through the lively interest he has manifested in their work.

The house in designating the gentleman from Houston as "Mr. Pickwick," pays him about the highest compliment one could reasonably ask for, and the gentleman seems to enjoy the distinction to no small degree.

As a Wielder of Gavels Speaker W. H. Burwell Gets the Palm.

During this session of the legislature Speaker W. H. Burwell has worn out three gavels and one pounding board, which is by way of a record for "gavelling" in Georgia's house of representatives.

Mr. Burwell, as the driver of the house team, has proven himself sufficiently vigorous for the purpose, and with his good right arm often brings quietude out of chaos.

The gavel that is now being used by the speaker to keep order during debate and roll call was presented to him by President K. G. Matheson, of the Georgia School of Technology. There is little likelihood of the strenuous leader needing another one before adjournment of the assembly.

Senate Appropriations Committee Determined to Stand by Its Guns.

To a man the senate appropriations committee is determined to stand by its guns and fight to the last on the floor for the adoption of its amendments to the house budget cutting $250,000 from the sheet.

The action of the members of the upper house in cutting all constitutional appropriations 7 per cent and striking out all special appropriations is in keeping with the policy of the administration to hold the sheet down to meet the revenue of the state. It was believed by the members of the senate committee that Governor John M. Slaton would most certainly veto the measure were it sent to him carrying even a small amount in excess of the calculated income. For this reason the committee took drastic action and trimmed the budget to meet the revenue.

When the bill comes up for passage the committee will strenuously oppose any effort to increase the sheet a penny and endeavor to send it back to the house less the $250,000 they saw fit to reduce it.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 69

WOMEN FIRST IN GEORGIA

If money must be saved by sacrifice,
Let the blow fall upon our cows and hogs,
Or even upon our men and boys---
But not upon our girls.

Georgia has a reformatory for boys at Milledgeville.

Its Superintendent says:

"We are frequently embarrassed by requests to have girls received here—

"The experiment was tried more than once, with only one girl at a time; and she proved a veritable firebrand—and of course had little chance for self-improvement."

THIS DISGRACE—

The unspeakable disgrace of confining girls in a reformatory with boys will not be repeated in Georgia. Superintendent Lovvorn says truly:

"This is simply unthinkable."

But what will you do? A local paper says:

"It is estimated that each year from ten to twelve girls in each county in Georgia are lost through the lack of such an institution."

Seventy-five girls are in charge of one court. The officials are helpless; they have no place to put these children.

Georgia will not wait begging, with hat in hand, until some charitably disposed persons drop in a fund sufficient to take care of her daughters.

If you must economize, you will sacrifice hogs, cattle and chemicals rather than girls.

The Medical School—

The University of Georgia—

The School of Technology—

These are for men and boys; they should get far more than they are today receiving from our state.

And yet even these might wait for funds; men and boys can make shift without money or a great deal of book learning.

But a girl upon the brink—

A girl sinking beneath the whirling scum of the underworld cannot wait. The frightful quagmire sucks her down. For her the gift of charity or of the state, a year or more from now, will be wholly wasted.

Today they are being lost.

Tomorrow will be too late.

Now is their need desperate.

Men will not shoulder them aside for the sake of hogs and cattle or even for the schooling of men and boys. They will provide.

If any must be sacrificed, it will not again be girls, in Georgia.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

In the Paris fire men trampled upon women in their mad desire to save their own most worthless lives—

And when the Elba and the Bourgoyne went down, men crushed the fingers of women who tried to cling to the gunwales of the boats in which men were rowing away.

Thank God it was not so when the Titanic sank—

Men of our race gladly embraced death that women might live.

Today, when there is no storm or fire or sinking ship, will you save hogs and cows and leave girls to die a thousand deaths?

Long ago came the Word of God—

"Behold the cry of the daughter of my people—

"The harvest is past and the summer is ended, and we are not saved.

"For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt—

"Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there?

"Why, then, is not the healing of the daughter of my people perfected?"

Not man, but God, asks:

"WHY?"

Recall those who begged Jesus to leave the land because of the loss of a herd of hogs.

And you will never reply:

"Lord, we have cows and hogs—

"And these must be saved,

"Even though a few score girls are lost."

How Is This for Realism?

(From a Bulletin of the Japan Society of New York.)

Certain rice fields in Japan were at one time devastated by some unknown horse which could not be tracked. One night the farmers lay in wait; the horse appeared but eluded its pursuers. After patiently waiting for several nights they succeeded in following and seeing him disappear through a temple door. The pursuers entered but could not find the horse, finally he appeared on the wall in a celebrated picture, all foaming and still panting from pursuit. The farmers were at a loss to know what to do. Thereupon they consulted certain wise men in the district, who, not wishing to destroy the picture, finally sent for the artist who painted it. The painter studied for a moment, then silently went away and returned with his paint brush and painted a halter and bridle part in the picture. Thereafter the horse remained in place.

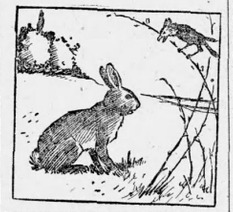
LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Who minds everybody's business rather than his own?
Sammy Jay!
Who's forever shrieking in a loud unpleasant tone?
Sammy Jay!
Who goes prying, peeking,
Through the woodland sneaking?
Who's the greatest scamp and mischief-maker ever known?
Sammy Jay!



Of course, it was Sammy who first found out that Peter Rabbit was back in the dear old briar patch. Sammy took it into his head to fly over there the very morning of Peter's home-coming. Indeed, little Miss Fuzzytail, who was now Mrs. Peter, hadn't had time to half seee the dear old briar patch, which, you know, was to be her new home, when Peter saw Sammy Jay coming. Now Peter was not quite ready to have all the world know that there was a Mrs. Peter.

They wanted to keep by themselves for a little while and just be happy with each other. So as soon as Peter saw Sammy Jay headed toward the old briar patch he hid little Mrs. Peter under the thickest sweet briar rose, and then hurried out to the nearest sweet clover patch.

Of course Sammy Jay saw him right away, and of course Sammy was very much surprised. "Hello, Peter Rabbit! Where'd you come from?" he shouted as he settled himself comfortably in a little poplar tree growing on the edge of the old briar patch.

"Oh," said Peter, with a very grand air, "I've been on a long journey to see the world."

"Which means," said Sammy Jay with a chuckle, "that you've been in the Old Pasture all this time, and let me tell you, Peter Rabbit, the Old Pasture is a very small part of the world. By the way, Tommy Tit the Chickadees was down here the other day and told us all about you. He said that you had fallen in love with little Miss Fuzzytail and he guessed that you were going to make your home up there. What's the matter? Did her father, Old Jed Thumper, drive you out?"

"No, he didn't," replied Peter angrily. "It's none of your business what I came home for, Sammy Jay, but I'll tell you just the same. I came home because I wanted to."

Sammy chuckled, for he dearly loves to tease Peter and make him angry. Then the imp of mischief who seems always to live just under that smart cap of Sammy's, prompted him to ask: "Did you come home alone?"

Now Peter couldn't say "yes," for that would be an untruth, and whatever faults Peter may have he is at least truthful. So he just pretended not to have heard Sammy's question.

Now when Sammy had asked the question he had thought nothing about it. It had just popped into his head by way of something to say. But Sammy Jay is sharp, and he noticed right away that Peter didn't answer, but pretended to talk about other things. "Ha, ha!" thought Sammy to himself "I believe he didn't come alone. I wonder now if he brought Miss Fuzzytail with him." Right away Sammy began to peer down into the old briar patch, twisting and turning so that he could see in every direction, and all the time talking as fast as his tongue could go. Two or three times he flew out over the old briar patch, pretending to try to catch moths, but really so that he could look down into certain hiding places. It was the last time that he did this that he spied little Mrs. Peter, who was, you know, Miss Fuzzytail. At once Sammy Jay started for the Green Forest, screaming at the top of his voice:

"Peter Rabbit's married! Peter Rabbit's married!"

A New Gem Among Jewels

(Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

A new gem, given the name of "heliodor," and found in German South Africa, has taken its place among the jewels. The German kaiser recently presented one of the new stones to the kaiserin. The discovery of the new stone was made by the governor and director of the German Colonial society while he was traveling in German South Africa. In the sand near the railway between Swakopmund and Windhuk he found a large crystal, rough and unpromising in appearance. He carried it with him to Germany and had it cut and polished in a diamond-cutting factory. The result was a surprisingly clear pale aquamarine of great brilliance. The German colonial office immediately took possession of the ground upon which the crystal was found, and a great number of the crystals are now making their appearance upon the German market. Experts agree that the new gem is entitled to rank with the ruby and the emerald.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

There are so many odds and ends in the fashions that create interest among those who frequent the shops, and which are not always known to those whose minds are elsewhere, that a summary of them may arouse a bit of interest.

Every woman does not know about the double panel petticoat, yet it solves the problem of what to wear under a thin gown. We have accepted the flimy petticoats as a matter of course, and this was all very well in winter, but under the thin gowns of summer and those for evening wear it is sadly lacking as a means of protection to the figure.

A woman in a strong light might just as well be wearing tights. If she is not conscious of the outline of her figure showing plainly through the thin garment she wears, every one else is. The manufacturers have met this trouble with the double panel petticoat. The public does not know much about it yet, yet it supplies a long felt need. Crepe de chine is the fabric and in its making it is reinforced with a ten-inch panel extending from waist to hem. This reinforcement protects the figure, for it keeps out the light.

A woman can do this work at home with the thin petticoats that she has in stock; if she can't match the material exactly, she can use white silk or muslin. Satin is considered better by some.

The Net Brassiere.

Every woman does not know the usefulness of the corset cover of coarse net which is fitted to the figure and has wash shields stitched in. These are sometimes made of allover lace. They are cut high or low, and fasten down the back, if one likes that style better. The shops sell them for one dollar or more, but they can be made at home for less.

They should be full at the waist line, which is a mistake most amateurs make in cutting them. They are required to fit the figure today and hold in the fullness above the corset. This is required of every garment that is worn directly above the waist line.

These affairs have quite taken the place of the usual corset cover, but if a woman thinks they are too transparent she can make them of lace instead of net. They should be washed at home so they will not shrink under bad ironing.

Writing of shields, there are new kinds that have tiny fasteners which hold the shield to the seams without sewing. These are most useful in hot weather and in traveling, where a constant change of shield is necessary.

For wear under white gowns there are short petticoats of white satin which are finished at the hem with a dozen metal clamps. To these are attached a plain white ruffle of thin embroidery which can be taken off and sent to the wash. One should have four ruffles to each petticoat and if they are plain and ornate they can be used for different gowns worn in the day or at night.

Italian Silk Night Gowns.

The woman who travels should know about the untrimmed, slim sleeping robes of white Italian silk which are taking the place of ornamental night gowns of lace and net. They are not cheap, but they are supposed to last forever and as they may be easily washed in a bath room, and rolled up, without wrinkling, into a tiny space in the bag or trunk, they are desirable for every traveler.

Entire sets of Italian silk underwear can now be bought, and as they do not have an inch of embroidery on them, and cling to the figure, they are better for wear than muslin.

Another trick for the traveler is to cover tightly any wings on the hat with malina in the same color. This protects them from wind and dust and keeps them from breaking. The tulle is too thin to be visible and yet strong enough to do its work most effectually.

The Reason for It

(Judge.)

Grandma—In my day girls were more modest and reserved than they are now.

May—That's because you were taught that modesty and reserve were more alluring to the men.

Historical Novels the Best

(Saturday Evening Post.)

There are fashions in literature just as there are in business. Long ago we had the analytical novel. Just at this time I went to the Western city to go into my occupation work, we were having a wave of dialect stories, southerners and northerners competing. After that came the great flood of historical fiction, the figure money-making fashion ever known in fiction in the history of the world, and the thing that made the literary profession of America an actual profession. Now we are having decadent and erratic fiction, and spasms of "action," it will not last long.

Of all these different phenomena the historical novel perhaps is the soundest and most enduring. Many great novels of the world have been of a time in fiction when a good historical novel will not be good property.

The Evening Story

Keeping Up Priam

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

As the Rev. Priam Witt's phaeton, driven by that gentleman, a tall, straight, gingerbread-colored individual of forty, rolled past the parsonage of the African Methodist Episcopal church in Burkesville, Spradella, the parsonage mistress, peeping from behind the sitting room window curtain at the white willow plume beside her husband's derby, squatted back on the floor and drenched the red ingrain carpet with a torrent of tears.

"Oh, my Lawd!" she gurgled, rocking herself to and fro until the floor shook under her massive weight, "jemme keep him some way, Lawd! You hain't gimme no little uns, Lawd, but I hain't grievin' fuh dat, gin I kin keep him! He's husban' an' chillun befo to dis heah bustin' heart! Show me de way—show me de way, Lawd!"

When Spradella had married Priam, a dozen years before, he was struggling to keep himself in school. It was the money she had earned by every known form of untutored, Africanic feminine industry, and by other forms not generally considered feminine (the grubbing of stumps, the spading of gardens, the shucking of corn) that had enabled him to complete his college course. Spradella was fat and comely at the beginning of her wedded life, and the width of her figure had grown with the years, but since the pair had been in Burkesville she had fattened like the charges of Gurth.

In the third year of Priam's pastorate she was compelled to pass in the church door sidewise and the bench the other members prudently allowed her to occupy alone creaked ominously. Nor could she any longer make pastoral calls with Priam. There was no room for both of them in the phaeton. Indeed she could not occupy it alone.

The epidermis that covered the visible portions of the anatomy of Miss Peachy Melissa, the popular daughter of Uncle Antietam Swan, was blacker than anything outside of a tar factory, it seemed incomprehensible that anything so nearly resembling new patent leather could be the outer casing of a living creature.

But, notwithstanding this apparent drawback to beauty, Peachy was handsome and much given to lengthy white plumes and white willow plumes' accompaniments, and it had been borne upon the Rev. Mr. Prim that these trappings looked exceedingly well against the dark green background of his phaeton cushions.

The certain amount of pastoral sociability with the femininity of his flock necessary to the well being of the church Spradella was willing to concede to Priam, but when he began to ask the company of Miss Peachy on his ministerial visits uneasiness took up its abode in their massive bosom—uneasiness that on this February afternoon had become a wildly jealous fear.

After a half hour's weeping, some blind womanly instinct advised Spradella that the way to retain her husband's admiration and affection was to outshine her rival in dress and appearance generally.

She wiped her eyes and waddled to the mirror to make an inventory of her charms.

Her faith in the power of her costume strong and uplifting.

"I've got a better hide en that crow-colored 'snowball,'" she congratulated herself as she looked at her light yellow skin. "My hide'll take whitenin'. I'd shoah answer to primpin' bettern huh. I is a little thick in de wais' line, but I'll jest cossack up a little moah, and maybe git me a white dress. Den Miss Peachy Swan, we'll see whut we'll see!"

Spradella's usual "church and social" costume had been a black cashmere with simple adornments of jet brooch and hoop earrings, but for several days, awaiting the completion of new finery, she kept away from the church and her world.

On the next Tuesday afternoon, when Priam told her that he was going out to call on old paralytic Jinsy Podge, who lived in an alley back of the court house, Spradella suggested that they might both walk and visit the old negress.

"I isn't got time to wait fuh you to dress," he evaded her; "besides it isn't dignified for me to walk."

Spradella was disappointed, but her spirits presently rose again.

"Nemmine, nemmine," she murmured to herself as she complacently fastened the hooks of her new "white dress," a shining alpaca, "when you sees de elegant figur yoah wife cuts on de street dis day. Prime, you'll wish you'd a-kept wid holdin' de tar bucket o' a Peach Swan won't be no whar."

From her dresser drawer she took a bottle of "flake white" and presently her face was like the back of a sheep for whiteness and her hands like two wedding cakes.

"I'a fairishe most white folks," she congratulated herself; "blest ef I ain't."

With pride swelling her heart she clothed her feet in a pair of immense canvas pumps and fastened about her waist a beaded girdle of blue velvet that for size would have put to shame the blanket under an elephant's "howdah." Then, setting on her bushed-out hair a white chip hat with a long pale blue willow plume, she set forth in the trail of the phaeton, her faith in the power of her costume strong and uplifting.

A portion of the hill upon which stood the courthouse had been regraded. Spradella was panting when she reached the top of the hill. She resolved to take a "short cut" to Aunt Jinsey Podge's, and attempted to cross the section of loose regrade earth. It broke through and she sank to her knees.

For many minutes, to the detriment of her finery, she struggled to extricate herself. Seeing that her frantic struggles were in vain, the tittering crowd that had gathered sent a call for the police.

In a few minutes two husky officers responded.

"Quit dat warin' pouhsef out a-pullin' gin de clay, woman!" Mely Peters, a shrill-voiced young negress cried. "De p'lice is come."

Attracted by the crowd and the advisory yells that came therefrom, the Rev. Priam Witt and Miss Peachy Swan, passing, hastily descended from the phaeton.

By this time strong planks had been brought, and amid much risibility the hapless Spradella's rescue was being slowly effected.

"Ef I wus d emeft o' dat woman," the Rev. Mr. Priam's horrified ears heard Mely Peters schrilly screeching, "dis town wouldn't hold me moh'n one moah day afoah I'd be negotiatin' wid de sidesshow men. Ef I wus a Sippopotamussy creetur like dat I'd quit tryin' to outshine young gals wid shapes, and take my proper place in de show ring. Dat's whut!"

Spradella heard her, and the look of humiliation on Priam's face, as he hurriedly took Miss Swan's arm, and hastened away, filled her with despair.

Her white shoes gone, her willow plume sullied with mire, her skirts a mass of mud, her girdle burst, she lumbered home, her tears making yellow lanes down her too white cheeks.

That evening, when the pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal church came home in a state of consuming wrath, he found a closed and silent house. Pinned to his pillow was a laboriously scrawled note. It said:

"Dear husband! I sees I can't be purty no mo', I tride dressin' up, but it dine no goode. I see You a Lookin at Me Stuck in de Mud and my ize is opunt. Ize gone off to Eze You o' de Mauthfleashun o' sein'. Me enny mo' bout heer. Git old Forestry Mace to cook fuh you and keep yosef onspotted fum de worl.' I's gona kepmistuh casper rue, at de bank, deformt o' my muvements, so of a time ever cums when You Nede Me, tel Mistuh Rue, an' he'll git wurd too Me. You hart bruck

"SPRADELLY."

Whether it was fate or answer to prayer two weeks after Spradella disappeared from his sight the Rev. Priam Witt, out driving with Miss Swan, met an automobile. He wanted the road; so did the auto driver. That evening, supposedly dying at the hospital, Priam savagely pushed the weeping Miss Swan, who had been unhurt in the wreck, off his neck, and cried out for Spradella.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Six months have passed since then. Propped in a cushioned chair, an incurable cripple, Priam sits under the tent of Jingling Brothers, reads his books, and smiles at an enormous creature, "The Largest Living Colored Lady," sitting in three chairs, dressed in a spangled net creation, with no sleeves and very little upper waist.

The "fat lady" is Spradella and she is quite happy. For sitting in the three chairs a few hours each day she draws a salary of $30 a week, and she is able to "keep Priam!"

A COLORFUL GOWN.

One of the colorful gowns, rich and yet elusive in its tone, which have made the decorators feel the fitness of black and white backgrounds. It is made of printed tan crepe with a fruit design of green and yellow and mauve. The sash, the fold of silk outlining the deep V neck, the twisted ribbons at the elbows and the chin band, caught under a yellow rose, that falls in a streamer, are made of faded mauve satin. The hat is a tan straw shape.

Evelyn Carter, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carter, died at the residence, 141 Griffin street, Sunday. The body was sent to Harry G. Poole's chapel and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

ROBERT STREET.

Robert Street, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Street, died Sunday night at 11 o'clock at the residence, 61 Gartrell street. The funeral arrangements will be announced later. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother.

MRS. FANNIE HAWKINS CONYERS.

Mrs. Fannie Hawkins Conyers, aged sixty-seven years, died Sunday afternoon at a private sanitarium. She resided at 371 North Boulevard. The body was sent Monday morning to Cartersville for funeral and interment. She is survived by six sons who will act as pallbearers—B. J., G. T., A. J., J. H., A. C. and Judge C. B., and one daughter, Mrs. Foster P. Key.

POLICE SEEK YOUTH WHO HAS DISAPPEARED

The police have been requested to be on the lookout for John B. Lindley, a youth of fifteen, who disappeared Saturday. He started from his home at 63 Eugenia street Saturday morning to the Southern Photo Material company, where he worked, but he has not been heard of at either place since. He wears a wide brim straw hat, no coat, white shoes and a blue shirt. He is five feet, three inches tall, slender and has a scar on one cheek.

SEEK SON WITH NEWS OF HIS MOTHER'S DEATH

Richard Moore, a youthful garage worker, is being sought by the police so that he may be told of the death of his mother Saturday at Gainesville, Georgia.

Preston Sits In

During the absence of Recorder Broyles on his vacation, Clerk W. H. Preston will act as recorder. He entered upon his duties Monday morning and faced a docket of 166 cases.

MRS. MARY MORGAN DIES AT EAST POINT

Mrs. Mary Frances Morgan, wife of W. T. Morgan, died at her home in East Point Sunday morning at 5:15 o'clock. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Wynne and Mrs. N. D. Roberts; three sons, John R., W. Howard, and E. B., of Atlanta, and one brother, John S. Hammock, of McCollum, Ga.

The body is at the home of her son, John R. Morgan, in College Park, from which place it will be taken to McCollum at 8:30 Tuesday morning for funeral and interment in the family burying ground.

EXPLANATION MADE FOR H. C. GREENLEE

The H. C. Greele referred to recently in a newspaper article is not Henry Christopher Greelee, who formerly resided on Spring street and who is a prominent member of the Central Presbyterian church. Mr. Greenlee has not been in Atlanta since Christmas and is desirous to correct any impression that the article may have made among his many friends.

The article stated that two young men, giving H. C. Greelee as one of them, had been playing "pepeing Toms" from the roof of the Central Presbyterian church in to a room below where young ladies were said to be.

Mr. Greenlee does not know just how or why the name similar to his was used, but wants an erroneous impression avoided.

BROTHER OF ATLANTIAN GETS BIG CENSUS JOB

A recent dispatch from Washington announces the appointment of W. Lane Austin, of Mississippi, as chief clerk of the census bureau.

He is a brother of Mrs. Homer I. Hunt, of Atlanta, and through the Lanes is connected with a number of prominent Georgia families. He is a graduate of the literary and law departments of the University of Mississippi, and has been connected with the census department at Washington for some years.

Crackers Open Road Trip With Game In Chattanooga Monday

LEADERS STAND STILL; ATLANTA HAS CLIMBED

Mobile Made Race a Tie by Taking Two of Three Games From Montgomery—Birmingham Had a Slump

The Atlanta club's work during the past week was most pleasing to local fandom, the Crackers being the only first division club that was able to do any noticeable climbing, the team now standing in third position, just five games back of Montgomery and Mobile, which clubs are tied for the lead, and one full battle to the good of the Birmingham clan, which has been making such great headway.

Play during the past week was noticeable owing to the slight slump by Montgomery and the fact that neither Mobile or Birmingham climbed the ladder. Montgomery was overtaken by Mobile not through any especially good work by Mike Finn's team, but through the decided slump encountered by the Dobbers. The club went to pieces all at once, the star flinger, Elmer Brown, not even being able to check the losing streak.

Birmingham played just about 500 per cent ball, but dropped back of the Cracker club owing to the spurt taken by Atlanta in winning four out of five games from the Nashville club. When the week's play was started the Barons had third position, but now the team is down in fourth place, while Atlanta jumped back to third with the determination to make it a bit interesting for the leading clubs.

In the big series between Mobile and Montgomery the Mobile club was able to take two of the three games and thus make the standing all even. This proved a big help to the Atlanta and Birmingham teams, which are now fighting so hard to get the first two positions in the pennant ladder. From this way the Crackers played against Nashville it is apparent that a further climb is eminent. As for Birmingham the Barons will have to play the class of ball they played some three weeks ago before the team can hope to get much higher. Work the class of that turned out last week will not get second or even third place unless there is an unexpected slump among the leaders.

An important series slated for this week comes when Atlanta and Birmingham get together. The teams are right now bunched for third place and the games at the slag pile will have a big bearing on the race.

Caddies Scarce; To Use Boy Scouts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Officials of the exclusive Chevy Chase club, who have been unable to engage and hold capable caddies for their golf courses, today enrolled on U. S. Marshal Sherwood of the local boy scouts, for a squad of thirty "scouts" between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years. The club will educate them during the winter and pledges itself to employ them as caddies the year through. Other golf clubs are watching the experiment with interest. While the plans threaten to be expensive, the Chevy Chase officials believe it will work out well and do away with an annoyance that has caused vigorous complaint. The club numbers among its members high officials in government, diplomatic and congressional life, and in army and navy circles.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Mobile finally managed to lose a game to the Bluffers, thereby staying in second place. Birmingham slipped another notch below Atlanta by losing on Sunday while the Crackers were "off." Atlanta is now five full games behind first place after her slaughter of the Vols.

The Giants were idle on Sunday, while the Phillies won one.

No games were played in the American.

Coulon vs. Burns

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 4.—Bobby Burns, of Dallas, Tex., signed articles here today for a ten-round boxing contest with Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, at Omaha, September 12.

PLAY PROTESTED GAME WITH NASHVILLE CLUB.

Under a ruling by President W. M. Kavanaugh, the Atlanta and Nashville clubs have been ordered to play off the famous protested game in Nashville on Aug. 18 this trip. As the Vols are now going badly, this will give the Crackers a chance to win.

President F. E. Callaway, of the local club, leaves Monday night for Chattanooga to witness the Crackers and Lookouts in action. He is also to meet the president of the Jersey City International league club in Lookoutville.

POLO GAME WEDNESDAY

The four lieutenants who will compose the Fort McPherson polo team in its match against an Atlanta team on Wednesday will be announced tomorrow. There has been much interest evinced in the sport among the officers, and they are reserving their pick.

The Atlanta team that meets them will be composed of Captain J. O. Seamans, Albert Sidney J. Tucker, of Lexington, Va.; E. M. Landrum, of Pensacola, Fla., and Milton Wise, of New York. These four players have all played the game and will demonstrate the real article of polo to the Atlanta fans.

All preparations for the match have been completed and a good program of preliminary military events has been arranged for the entertainment of the spectators who desire to see the riders drive the little pellet between the posts on Wednesday.

The officials will be: Robert F. Maddox, timer; Wilmer L. Moore, scorer; James R. Gray and Clark Howell, goal judges, and Colonel M. E. Carthew-Yorstoun, referee.

No admission will be charged to the game, a cordial invitation being issued to all Atlanta people who wish to attend.

Decide Honors In Every Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Tentative programs for national and international athletics in connection with the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915 were announced by Director of Athletics James E. Sullivan. The schedule of ports covers a period from February 20 to December 4, during which time more than eighty competitions, including every branch of athletics and sporting contests will be held.

State and national championships open to scholastic, collegiate and A. A. U. athletes will be featured. Baseball, football, boxing, wrestling, rowing, bicycling, tennis, golf, gymnastics, yachting, bowling, hockey, basketball, shooting, swimming, handball and fencing have all been allotted dates in the extensive schedule.

According to present plans almost every governing athletic and sporting association will award its national championship contest to California clubs to be held in or near San Francisco. The leading athletes and teams of the British Isles and Europe will be invited to compete and the contests of the year will be held under the metric and Olympic system of sports in order to prepare and familiarize contestants with the conditions that will prevail at the Berlin Olympic games of 1916.

Championship events will be open to the world. No athletic competitions will be scheduled for women, with the possible exception of such sports as tennis and golf.

Dr. Sullivan, who sails for Berlin Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the International Federation of Athletic Governing Bodies, has been deputized to solicit the co-operation and entries of all foreign sport-controlling bodies. He said that among projects in connection with the exposition athletics will be the use of the fair grounds for spring training by the big league clubs; one game between world's championship contenders and possibly the playing of the Army-Navy football game in the San Francisco stadium.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Birmingham and Nashville will play here today, the Barons and Vols following Foxen and Mayer; Nashville, Boland and Gibson. The indications are for fair weather.

Two Records Broken By New York "Cops"

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Patrick McDonald, the traffic policeman on duty at Forty-second street and Broadway, and "Matt" McGrath, a former fellow officer, both heroes of the Olympic games, are unofficially credited with new world's records in the shot-put and hammer-throw in the exhibition games of the Police Traffic Squads' Benevolent association yesterday. McDonald put the 16-pound shot an even 53 feet, 2 feet better than the record, and McGrath threw the 16-pound hammer 180 feet 3 inches, exceeding the record by 3 feet, 6 inches. Egon Erickson leaped 6 feet, 5 inches, in the high jump, only 2 inches short of the record.

WHITE COMING HERE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, signed articles today for two fights in the east. On August 13 he will meet Frank Whitney, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., at Atlanta, Ga., for rounds. Johnny Griffith, of Akron, Ohio, will be his opponent at Canton, Ohio, on Labor day for twelve rounds.

CITY ALREADY BENEFITTED BY TALK OF AUTO RACE TRACK

The announcement that Atlanta is to have a one-mile automobile race track has spread like wildfire and is proving a big hit. Atlanta is full of automobile fans, and with a track of the class which Jack Prince is to build on Peachtree road, there will be crowds of racing fans from every section of the south here to get a glimpse of the many drivers of international fame who are to be seen here.

The fact that the track is so near the heart of the city will be so easy to get to is proving one of the biggest factors in its favor. The drome will be constructed just three blocks off Peachtree road at the four and one-half mile post. This is close in, when it is realized that there will be a double street car track running right to the field and it will take only twenty-five minutes to reach the scene of hostilities.

Since the announcement that the track is sure to be built the city has come in for a lot of advertising and with its completion and the running of one or two races that advertising will be even greater. There is no idea that will give a city greater advertising than a big automobile track which draws fans from every city in the section. Everybody likes a good thrill as automobile races furnish and fans will come from far and near.

The new track is to be built along the most modern lines of any in the world. It is to be built of brick in a graded, constructed of boards with the triple radius. It will be banked 45 degrees at each end and 10 degrees on the straightaway. This will accommodate a speed of 100 miles an hour and is just what the racing drivers have been clamoring for during the past few years. Fandom wants speed and speed they will get on the new Atlanta track.

BOY OF 38 YEARS BEST SOUTHPAW DOING DUTY IN MAJOR LEAGUES

So many left-handed athletes have done strange things that long ago the species was classified as squirrel food—nuts as it were—but even the most imaginative person would hesitate to classify that eminent Gettysburg guide, Edward S. Plank, as a pecan.

Plank is thirty-eight. He began pitching about the time the first national agreement was written, and has been doing a fairly good job of it ever since.

Remember, Plank uses his left arm exclusively in pitching, which makes his performance more remarkable. Three years ago this stem-winder was told he was all in. He had finished. Then he started all over again.

Since that time he has pitched something like sixty-one or sixty-two victories while losing defeated sixteen or seventeen times. His record this year at last accounts was thirteen victories out of fifteen starts, which, for a man only thirty-eight, is considered pretty fair work. By the time he is fifty Plank ought to be a regular pitcher.

The public doesn't hear of Eddie Plank as it does of Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson or "Reb" Russell, but it was E. Plank who stood the Giants upon their heads for the first defeat in the 1911 world's series and has made the hardest hitting teams in the land feed out of his hand without nibbling.

This year Plank is better than he has ever been. With the American league pennant practically won, Mack has chosen Plank to pitch the big games in October, and will not work either Plank or Bender, who will be his best bets, more than enough to keep their throwing arms in condition.

EDDIE PLANK.
Connie Mack's Best Bet.

The handsome picture of the famous Gettysburg guide was taken when a small boy mistook him for his grandfather.

Caught Double Header; Found Dead in Bed

COATESVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—After catching two games of baseball for a semi-professional team Saturday, George Quinn, twenty-four years old, was found dead in bed yesterday. The coroner rendered a verdict giving the cause of death as heart disease, superinduced by overexertion.

Ask Wahoo to Coach Mercer

Charley Wahoo, widely known in sport circles, and popular as a referee and sporting writer in Atlanta, is again sought after as a coach. This time it is Mercer that wants his services.

Wahoo has just been released by the University of Georgia as assistant coach on account of the fact that a certain sporting goods house "needs him in their line," and are in a better position to make him good financially offers than a college athletic association.

Mr. Wahoo is, of course, not saying as yet whether will or will not accept the positions as coach of the Mercer teams as they have suggested matters. It is, however, pretty safe to say that he will stay with the sporting goods people. Two of the board of directors of the Mercer Athletic association are coming up anyway this week, to try to persuade Wahoo to accept their offer. Should he do so, the Mercer teams would assume more formidable proportions than they have in the past.

Stroud, the ex-Mercer coach, has signed up with Louisiana State university (L. S. U.) thereby creating the vacancy which the Mercer supporters want to see Wahoo fill.

Giants Went Well as Usual Past Week but Dooin Did Better—Mack Has Slumped in His Winning Streak

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—With two full months of major league baseball remaining, pennant-aspiring managers, aside from McGraw, of the New York Giants, and Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, took a measure of comfort from the week's play concluded yesterday. During the seven days Philadelphia crept closer to New York in the National organization, while in the American, Cleveland made a gain on Mack's clan that was sufficiently noticeable to be significant.

In the National circuit the eastern teams began another invasion of the west and the Phillies climbed a little higher by winning five games against a single defeat while Chicago was forcing the Giants to split a four-game series. While Doolin's team made but a ten-point gain, the week's showing of the Philadelphia club indicated its return to early season form, and gave its followers reason to hope that New York's lead might be worn down. But the Giants have not given récent proof that a slump is impending—and a slump by McGraw's men appears to be Philadelphia's one hope.

Ban Johnson's organization furnished the baseball sensation of the week in the fine showing of the youthful Birmingham's team from Cleveland, in four playing days the Barons passed through three double-headers and a single game without meeting defeat. Through the seven-game string of victories Cleveland made a thirty-seven-point leap toward the pennant, while the Athletics did little more than hold their own.

YOUNG STAR SHINES.

The only bright spot in the showing of the Athletics was the pitching of Carl Brown, Mack's youngster, who has made a record this year that has surpased those of veterans, Plank, Bender and Coombs. Of the former world champions' three successes, Brown scored two. Bush, another youngster, scored Mack's only other victory.

The Athletics' comparatively poor work has cut their 10 1-2-game lead over Cleveland to 6 1-2 games.

The Phillies' showing of Mack's team recalls the recent comment by Clark Griffith predicting a break in the Athletics' fine playing. Coupled with Griffith's prediction, however, were hopeful words on the future of his own team, this connection the playing of the Washingtons during the week put a damper on their manager's confidence. *The Senators are further be*hind the leaders than they were last Sunday.

After Cleveland-Philadelphia, the best work in the American league was done by Detroit and St. Louis, both splitting even. New York dropped further into the cellar, winning but twice and losing three games.

Boston and Chicago disappointed their followers. The Red Sox started off well, taking a double victory from Chicago on Tuesday, but of five games that followed with Cleveland they failed to win one. Chicago dropped close to the .500 mark in the per centage column.

LEADING CLUBS WIN.

In the National league only the first division teams managed to win more than they lost. The Giants dropped only two out of eight, the Phillies one out of six, while Chicago won four out of seven and Pittsburg four out of six. Chicago took two out of three from Boston and split even with the Giants, while Ittsburg won four straight from Brooklyn after twice being victims of

Yale Won't Decide Upon 1914 Coach

(By Associated Press.)

NEW HAVEN, Aug. —No action will be taken this summer relative to choosing coaches and establishing a coaching policy for Yale crews next year. Captain Charles Snowden has decided to let the matter drop for the present and has gone to Europe. It was planned directly after the boat race at New London to hold a conference at the Yale club in New York in July or August. No conference will be held now until Snowden returns in late September, for under the Yale system the captain has full power in the appointment of a coach.

Philadelphia, Brooklyn and St. Louies, each won but two out of eight games.

Besides the showing of the Clevelands, the fans' interest centered on the records of several pitchers, notably Boehling, of Washington, whose string of eleven victories, unbroken since the start of the season, was interrupted by the St. Louis team, with Mitchell in the box. Later in the week Boehling lost to Hall, of Detroit.

Mogul sword appears to be on the way to another record. Sunday he won his ninth straight, defeating St. Louis.

BOHELING AND RUSSELL REFUSED BY SOUTHERN

COVELESKIE FACES DENT

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 4.—Flushed with Saturday's double victory over Nashville, Atlanta opens its final series here with Chattanooga this afternoon. The weather is clear and cool.

This is the Crackers' last appearance on the home grounds, all future engagements taking place in Atlanta.

In the first game of the series Covaleskie will be sent in against the Crackers to stop their winning streak, while Street will receive his benders. The Pole is fighting now for the premier hurling honors of the league, and is going good. He will try not to give the Atlanta batters a run for their hits.

Opposing Covaleskie for Atlanta the battery will probably be Dent and Chapman.

Tennis Champs In Big Match

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Champion tennis teams from all sections of the country limbered up at Onwantsia today in preparation for the trials tomorrow and Wednesday to decide who shall meet Maurice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, of San Francisco, for the national doubles title. The winning team will go to Newport to meet the titleholders on August 18.

Gustav F. Touchard and W. M. Washburn ,the eastern champions, were first on the courts this morning. They were followed by Robert Shelton and J. B. Adoue, who represent the south.

John Strachan, who with Clarence Griffin, holds the Canadian championship, and who was forced to default in the western tourney on account of illness, has fully recovered and has taken only light practice. R. H. Burdick and Heath Byford, Chicagoans, who won the western title with such ease took his turn just like Walter Johnson or any of the other Washington hurlers.

At Chicago "Rebel" Russell has filled Ed Walsh's shoes just as near as any human being could. You know Walsh is some truck horse and when he broke down some months ago Russell got his chance and right now he is doing the same class of work Walsh was formerly called upon to hand out. He is the iron man of the Chicago staff and what is he living up to the name.

To date Russell has worked in something like 26 games, winning 15 and losin 11. The boy has limited many innings than any flinger in Ban Johnson's circuit save the reliable Walter Johnson. He is the big boy who gets in one day and check a batting rally and the next take his regular turn on the slab and turn up just as good work as if he had not been pitched a few rounds the previous day.

Russell has been very lost to the minors for good. They have both made a name in the majors and could not be waived out of the big show even though the price was $10,000 each.

Pacific Stars May Have Match

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Maurice E. McLoughlin, returning from the Davis cup triumph in England, may be seen in another championship match here this week. The big Californian, within two days before the conclusion of the New York state tournament, and it is said that he may enter the challenge round in defense of his grass title.

The progress of William M. Johnston, the California school boy who entered the sixth round of the tournament today, has aroused further praise here for the showing which Pacific coast players are making in tennis circles. Experts believe he will prove the winner of the tournament. If he does, and McLoughlin enters in defense of his title, it would afford an interesting match between the two Californians.

PACKARD MOTOR CO. GIVES EMPLOYES OUTING

Seven thousand employes of the Packard Motor Car company, with their families, will hold their annual outing Monday, August 11, when a field tournament, by the Packard Recreation league, will carry them to Bois Blanc, in the Detroit river.

Various outdoor activities among Packard employes are encouraged by the recreation league, which has a membership of more than 4,000. Opportunity is afforded for baseball, football, bowling, tennis, shooting and field sports. The company has also installed a big athletic field and plans are being made for a new club house, which will be equipped with all modern conveniences in the way of showers, lockers and dressing rooms.

The Packard baseball team last season won the pennant in the Detroit Manufacturers' league, and this year seems likely to repeat. The soccer team is known throughout the middle west and Canada. This year it is to be one of the drawing cards at the old home week in Guelph, Ontario.

Baseball Lottery

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Accused of conducting a lottery in the form of a baseball pool with a limit of 5,000 customers, Henry Reed and Herbert Gamble were held in bail here for trial. It is alleged that the men charged 25 cents for tickets on the result of the games played in the major leagues. A sum was paid to the winners having high or low daily or weekly scores, it is said.

STARS OF ONE DAY

Dode Paskert: Hit safely once in four trials. In addition he scored two runs and made four put-outs.

The Brooklyn trio all hit. Zack Wheat got one out of four.

Jake Daubert: Was up five times and got one hit.

Red Smith: Rapped on two out of five.

Slim Sallee: Worked against Philadelphia for two innings and was then forcibly removed.

Richest Prize Offered At Kalamazoo Meet

(By Associated Press.)

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 4.—The grand circuit race meeting, which commences here Monday and is scheduled to close Friday, will carry more money to be distributed to the winners than Detroit's blue ribbon meeting.

Kalamazoo is the only city in the United States this year giving a $12,000 purse for a class race among trotters and a $6,000 purse for pacers.

The program includes a 2:07 trot with eleven starters, including Cheenee, a $3,000 early closing event for 2:08 pacers; 2:14 trot and 2:14 pace.

The horseman's futurity to be raced Tuesday is worth $15,000, of which $10,000 is for 3-year-old trotters, $3,000 for 2-year-old trotters and $2,000 for 3-year-old pacers.

The paper mills purse of $12,000 for 2:14 trotters will be raced Wednesday.

MACHINES TUNED FASTER FOR THE RACES TUESDAY

With Morty Graves sporting a brand new speed machine and the other riders having turned up their cars so they will never miss a time, there is some speed in store for the motorcycle race fans at the motordrome on Tuesday evening. The card postponed from Friday night is to re run off and it includes a sensational ten-mile final in the big feature race.

A motorcycle is just like a human being and has to be cared for just like an infant. Often they get a little out of commission and just refuse to give their best speed. The riders took after their pets in amazingly good fashion, always being busily engaged in testing them out and making change after change which they think will get more speed.

Since the last race, which was on Wednesday night, all the drivers have had opportunity to give their cars a thorough test and have made changes which they believe will get more speed than ever before. They have tuned them up a bit higher and expect to show some fast spurting when they get together Tuesday evening.

The big race is the Atlanta sweepstakes, in which five riders will participate in each of the two preliminary heats with five speed merchants working for the big prize in the final heat. Ten miles are forty times around the track, and this will give all plenty of time in which to show just how fast they can ride.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

BY THE WAY OF EDGING BACK IN.

"The pen is mightier than the sword,"
Or so remarked a wise old jay—
A maxim we have ever stirred
To shoot against a rainy day;
But we can make a clearer bid
For one truth that should ever stand—
Believe one who has tried it, kid,
The razor's sharper than the hand.

To continue—

Sang Henley in his rarest mood
"I have not winched or cried aloud."
Remarking in a boastful tone
"My bean is bloody but unbowed;"
What license had this cove to crow
Or chant in such a stalwart strain
Who never tried in all his life
To shave himself upon a train?

We sometimes wonder if those who are still hanging the ivory application to Fred Merkle ever stopped to figure that he happens to be one of the smartest ball players in the National league? Or in the American league. One swallow may not make a summer but one bone has carried over a long trail in the career of the Toledo athlete in whose case the maxim veers to it isn't what you are today—it's what you used to be."

"The two most interesting races in big league history," as predicted last spring by Messrs. Johnson and Lynch, are still under way. The main interest being as to what six out of fourteen clubs will keep out of the second division.

Yet they may both be proven right about it if one cares to stand upon one's head in lamping the standing of the clubs.

There are seven members of Tinker's club who have played upon pennant winning teams. Recalling the old song, "Playing great ball—but not for Garry Herrmann." We'd like to see what a mixture of Cobb, Johnson, Collins, Baker, Jackson, etc., could do in a run against the Cincinnati habit of thirty years; or whether Mack's ball club could finish fifth against the Redland spell.

Little Journeys to the Diamond
The League President

The president is the mainspring of the league works. In one league he may be the real Elgin movement; in some other league he may be the football of the magnates.

Some presidents have a strangle hold on their jobs, being the whale in the pond, and ruling with the big stick.

Again there are others who cannot retain even a half Nelson on the scepter. Their dynasty threatens to capsize at each election, and sometimes does.

The league president may be a regular fellow with the ball players if it wasn't for the fact that he hires and stands sponsor for a lot of blind umpires. They cannot forgive him for that. They fail utterly to understand how any man can get together by human agency or otherwise such a band of daylight highwaymen.

And why should the president always take the word of his umpires and plaster the players with fines when the umpire really was to blame for the whole bloomin' mess?

And the league president knew it. Of course he did. Didn't the player send in his own true version of the fuss, stating how the umpire kicked him on the shin before he (the player) ever hit a hit or swore a sweat. And didn't half a dozen home bugs who saw the whole thing with their very own eyes, didn't they write to the president, telling him the whole truth? Why, sure they did. The player has carbon copies of the letters.

Meanwhile the president is having troubles of his own. He's in bad with several of the magnates, and the report is on the wing that his job will slip from beneath him at the next annual powwow.

Certain popers print stories to the effect that the legue executive hung a three-day suspension on Mouthy Jones, manager of the Pussers, just when that team was slated to meet the Beefers in most important series.

One magnate writes in that it will be homicide on the part of the president if he sends Billy McGluke, the near-sighted umpire, to Pankypoo again. The bugs are inflamed over McGluke's work in the recent series and would not hesitate in slinging the umpire to the nearest pole.

Another magnate protests the $50 fine hung on his manager. The club owner had to pay this fine. So he writes the big stew he voted for him at the last election, and tells him where to get off and head in.

Outside of these few things, and some others, the league president is a happy-go-lucky individual, with few cares

Carolina Race Yet Undecided

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 4.—The fifteenth week of the North Carolina league finds Winston-Salem still in the lead, being four games ahead of Durham, which now occupies second place, having superceded Asheville for that position since last Sunday. Asheville and Raleigh are tied for third place, but are only five and one-half games behind Winston-Salem.

Greensboro is fourth in the race, while Charlotte occupies the bottom. The latter city enjoys the distinction of having been the only club in the league that has been both at the top and the bottom of the percentage column during the season.

Memphis' University school is to have a $22,000 athletic field.

The first lady rowing coach is Miss Edith Pocock, who has received an appointment to a Washington ladies' school, says the London Sportsman. Miss Pocock will be remembered for the part she took in the ladies' race at Putney last season. Her father is bargemaster to the Fishmongers' company, and her brothers, who were both excellent oarsmen, have started a boat builders' business in Canada. The younger of the two, Richard Yeomans Pocock, won the first of the Sportsman handicaps.

STAR AUTOMOBILE PILOTS DRIVE ON BRIGHTON TRACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Brighton Beach automobile races, to be conducted by the Motor Dealers' Contest association, of New York, incorporated, on August 9, will have Ralph K. Mulford and Ralph de Palma and numerous other well known drivers as entries. Mulford will be seen at the wheel of the Peugeot car, with which Jules Goux won the recent Indianapolis speedway 500-mile race. He will also pilot a Mason in the smaller events. De Palma will drive a Mercer. The other drivers whose entries are in are Mortimer Roberts, Paul Thibault, Armour Ferguson, Charles Tate, Dave Lewis, Joe Horan, Frank Larkin, Bill Chandler, Ray Howard, Gene Homen, A. L. Hopkins, N. W. Metzler and C. W. Wolfe.

There are seven events scheduled and the total amount of prizes offered is $1,800. The feature event will be a special match race covering a distance of twenty-five miles. It will be a class E event, no restrictions being placed on the size of cars entered. In addition to this event, in which De Palma and Mulford are to compete, there will also be a twenty-five-mile class D free-for-all event. The class E free-for-all handicap of ten miles, which last year proved to be one of the most popular events run on the Brighton track, will be repeated at the forthcoming meet.

There will be a class E non-stock event of five miles for cars under 600 cubic inches piston displacement. There will be three class C non-stock events, two of them being for ten miles and the other for five miles, for cars between 161 and 450 cubic inches piston displacement. The meet will be a popular-priced affair and automobiles are to be admitted to the grounds free.

Columbus Is Holding Own

Now Looks as If Jim Fox Will Win Pennant in Second Season

The Columbus team, which took the lead in the South Atlantic league early in the second half of the season, drew still farther away from the other clubs last week. It now leads the Savannah club by seven games, a considerable advantage with the season's end not far away.

The Macon team, which recently was outdistanced by Charleston, still is at the foot of the percentage column. The club's pennant chances have gone a-glimmering.

Four clubs—Savannah, Albany, Jacksonville and Charleston—are pretty well bunched. Three games won by any one of the four would rearrange their standing. The Charleston club, perhaps, has showed up best of any of the quartet in the past fortnight. At the present pace it easily can hold second place in another week's play.

Good weather last week helped all the clubs along. Games were marked by small scores and few figures in the error columns.

Newbern and Madison In a Big Series

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

NEWBERN, Ga., Aug. 4.—The Newbern and Madison ball teams have arranged a series of six games to be played in Newbern August 13th, 14th and 15th and in Madison August 20, 21, 22. This will be the first time these teams have met this season and the rivalry is supreme.

Both Newbern and Madison have a percentage of over 800. These will very probably be the fastest amateur games ever played in Georgia and many states will be seen on both teams. No amateur games ever played in this section has created as much interest and there will be thousands of people to witness them.

Howard Drew, the Springfield (Mass.) sprinter, will enter Brown university this fall.

Gaidzick Returns To Regain Title

George Gaidzick, of the Chicago A. A., has returned from Europe, where he defeated Adlerz, the Olympic champion fancy diver. He is after the national outdoor title, which is regularly competed for off the lofty thirty-foot tower. Last summer he lost it by default to J. F. Dunn, of the New York A. C., but previous to that he defended it successfully for several seasons, and unless the youthful McAleenan, the indoor holder, can take his measure, there is every prospect of his scoring once more.

Reds Given Credit For Protested Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—President Lynch, of the National league, in a decision announced Sunday, held that the result of the protested Brooklyn-Cincinnati game of July 11, which Cincinnati won, 5 to 3, stands as played. The Brooklyn club protested because of a decision by Umpire Quigley, who allowed Player Moran but one base on a wild pitch on which misplay Moran had advanced from first to third. The evidence submitted by Umpire Quigley and Captain Hoblitzell, according to President Lynch's decision, showed that on the first day of the Brooklyn-Cincinnati series, Manager Dahlen had made a ground rule allowing but one base on a pitched ball that hit the grandstand. As both clubs agreed to this rule resident Lynch held that the protest of the Brooklyn club had no force.

MY ADVERTISEMENTS

Have you noticed my advertisements carefully? If you have you will note that they are always truthful and don't contain anything that I cannot accomplish. I never offer any free treatments or make any guarantees. A doctor who will advertise something that is impossible, or advertise a falsehood will more than likely tell you a falsehood when you consult him. So read an advertisement and study it carefully before you make a move to consult a specialist, and kindly remember when you are thinking of calling to see a specialist, that I have been located in Atlanta for nine years, and I can recall to mind, during that time, no less than twenty different specialists who have advertised in Atlanta and are all now gone. So if you want to place your case in the hands of a specialist be sure that you are placing it in the hands of a reliable one and one who is firmly established.

Market in New York Closed 10 Points Off to 8 Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—New low price records for the present movement were established this morning when cotton opened barely steady and generally 6 points lower. Thereafter stability was by leading interests bare who were suspicious before the bureau crop report came out. In the absence of liverpool cables the attention of trading centered on Texas news, which indicated light rains yesterday, but none today. A low barometer over Florida, however, and another low area which made southport hazrish and prices later showed a net loss of 8 to 9 points.

From its low forenoon level the market rallied 3 or 4 points on rumors that Texas details would show less rain than expected. Buying by spot houses promoted moderate covering and gave the market a steady undertone.

Estimated receipts today 3,500 bales.

Texas dispatches indicated light rain on Saturday than had been expected, the early afternoon market was steadier with prices up about 8 points from the lowest of the morning and considerable covering in evidence. The demand from spot houses increased. Southern ledge pressure became less active.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—Cotton futures opened steady, a decline of 4 to 9 points on an accumulation over Sunday of selling orders which was met by only a small demand although the weather map indicated that dry weather still prevailed in these sections of the western belt that need rain badly and the forecast promised fair weather practically all the entire western belt. After the call the market stood at a loss of 9 points on all the trading months. Soon thereafter there was a rally that carried the market about a little strength. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 4 to 6 points under saturday's close. Around the middle of the forenoon selling increased somewhat, and the market stood at a net loss of 9 to 10 points, which was the low level up to the noon hour. Private reports of rainfall over the southwest and a bullish crop forecast of continued dry and hot weather in the cotton belt for this week caused some uneasiness among bears. Private reports of rains in Texas were circulated, but they apparently had none too good a foundation, and late in the morning had little influence. The market gradually recovered until at noon the new crops were only 3 points under Saturday's last quotation.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 4.—The most important developments in the cotton crop situation this week is rainfall in the central and southern states and that clearing and cooler weather has come on that part of the belt which was threatened with deterioration from too much moisture. Today's indications are for increased cloudiness in the northwestern quarter and probably showers in Louisiana and Florida. Generally fair everywhere else; moderate temperatures.

Liverpool is closed today and will open tomorrow. Political news from Europe is more cheerful. Peace treaties are apparently assured before this time.

Our market eased off in the early trading to 11.11 for October, but there was a rather strong demand for contracts which soon steadied prices. Eleven cents seems to be considered the point of resistance for the critical crop month, August. With a better crop outlook during July, more inquiry for fall shipments is a probability.

New York mentions covering of short lines and easier cables on the bullish arguments in Mr. Fleet's circular.

COTTON GOSSIP

Washington long range forecast: Cooler weather throughout the country, except in the gulf and Pacific coast states, during the coming week. It predicted New reports at the weather bureau.

The distribution of pressure over the North American continent and the adjacent oceans, the weekly forecast today said, "is such as to indicate temperatures below the seasonal average the coming week over the northwestern states, the great central valleys, the region of the Great Lakes and the eastern states, and above the seasonal average in the gulf states and on the Pacific coast.

"No warm wave is probable east of the Rocky mountains during the next week or ten days. The precipitation during the week will be generally light and local, and there is no indications at present that a general storm will cross the country during the week."

There is no evidence of a disturbance in the West Indies.

Nothing in general news. Foreign cotton markets show substantial decline. Havre is 14½ points lower, Liverpool 12 to 15 American points.

Texas and Oklahoma clear, except Galveston, partly cloudy. Temperatures from 78 at Austin to 88 at Fort Worth.

Miller & Co.: It is decidedly a weather market.

According to the Journal of Commerce, retailers are showing more interest in cotton goods and are buying many of the standard staples.

Forecast:

For Louisiana: Tonight and Tuesday generally fair, except scattered showers in southeast portion tonight or Tuesday; light to moderate northerly winds on the coast.

For Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas: Tonight and Tuesday generally fair.

For East Texas: Fair tonight and Tuesday generally fair; light variable winds on the coast.

For Kentucky: Fair tonight and Tuesday.

For Tennessee and Mississippi: Fair tonight and Tuesday.

The map shows fair for the entire belt, except cloudy in Florida and southeast Georgia. Atlantic dispatches very little to the interior. The only rainfall in the west was .14 of an inch at Corpus Christi, a small amount in the gulf states and on the Pacific coast.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 5.

If you are fortunate enough to have this date as your birthdate you will not need to worry, for you will go through life with little friction and few disappointments. Naturally you are fearless and courageous and have great will power and the ability to bear up under difficulties.

You have a great love for your own children and your own home. Women born with this birthdate are domestic, good wives and good mothers.

Your best call of Leo persons, or one born near you who has this date, they are apt to be quick-tempered and impatient and get angry at the least trifle.

Men of this birthdate make good husbands, are good providers and affectionate.

Never interfere with a person's plans or opinions who has this date with their birthdate, as Leo people are strong, forceful and self-willed and know their own minds. This date will bring good fortune to those who answer a Journal Want Ad or use a Journal Want Ad to find lost articles, as clerks, bookkeepers and stenographers. Metal workers are also favored during the coming week.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND EVENTS

How To Prevent Sorehead

At this season of the year people should do everything possible to avoid this dreaded disease which will surely appear during September and October, and the only way to avoid this is to begin now and give one tablespoonful of Epsom salts on Tuesday and say on Friday give one tablespoonful of sulphur to every fifteen to twenty-five broilers or frying size chickens. By keeping this up continually until about the first of November if this dreaded disease should appear there will be but little damage done from it, and if you should happen to be so unfortunate as to have it appear at any time the best thing to do is to feed freely Epsom salts every day in the soft feed, and apply to the chickens' heads one ounce of carbolic acid added to one pint of raw linseed oil. There is nothing more soothing or more effective than this mixture. Two or three applications will usually cure the worst case of sorehead and save many chickens for you, but the great trouble comes from not treating your flock ahead of time and having them in a condition to throw off this dreaded disease when it appears.

The loss to the southern breeders from sore head alone amounts to thousands of dollars and there are but few people who realize the importance of treating their chickens beforehand to prevent this great trouble. Sorehead is a disease that seems to be peculiarly adapted to the southern states and in fact it carries off for the southern breeders thousands of dollars' worth of birds every year, and if people who keep chickens can would start in time and take precautions they would never be bothered with it. It is sure to appear in nine cases out of ten in every young flock of chickens in Georgia, and in most other southern states. Therefore, you should not put this matter off of treating them ahead of time for this dreaded disease, as it is sure to come.

Old chickens that have passed through sorehead do not suffer or have it, the second time, but young chickens raised during this year are sure to have a slight attack of it in most communities. The loss to Georgia every year and to all other southern states is something enormous. This could be avoided easily by applying these remedies to the affected chickens especially are more apt to have this disease than the early hatched ones, and it affects and hurts the late hatched ones more so than it does the early hatched birds. As a rule, a large per cent of the late hatched chickens are entirely banished when this dreaded disease appears as it attacks them at a time when they need strength more than at any other time, and they are not in a condition to stand this terrible drain which usually gets a large per cent of them. Sorehead is similar to measles and when a chicken's system is in a condition for the poisonous blood to pass out through the system there is not much danger or loss. If the above details are looked after. But if the system is not in a condition to throw it off you can expect more or less trouble or loss to follow this dreaded disease.

The loss to the south every year amounts to thousands of dollars from this one trouble alone, and the sooner the breeders find out that they must treat every year all of the chickens hatched during that season ahead of time the better off will this country be. It is sure to appear, and those who haven't their chickens in a condition to withstand this attack will always suffer a heavy loss. It is by far better to prepare them and start in July to giving them the salts and sulphur than it is to put this matter off and attempt to doctor them after the disease has appeared. If the salts and sulphur is given regularly the chickens will be in a condition to withstand the attack and the loss will be so small that you will hardly know it. Therefore, it is always best to be on the safe side and begin treating your entire flock of young chickens now rather than to put it off later as you will save many dollars by doing this. During September and October if it is in the community you can expect to get it and it is best to begin this treatment now and avoid the heavy loss that will surely appear if neglected.

Yours very truly,

L. Rhodes

NICE SELECTIONS in up-to-date bugalows in the desirable residence sections of the city. Reasonable prices and attractive terms. For particulars, see Mr. Cohen.

A VERY DESIRABLE cottage home on Park avenue, overlooking the park. Six rooms; nice elevated lot. Good buy for $4,350. Terms. See Mr. White.

ON ONE OF THE MAIN North Side streets, we have an 8-room, brick-veneer home, with hardwood floors, furnace, stationary washbowls, very large, inclosed sleeping porch; beautiful combination fixtures. This place will not be on the market very long at the present price of $8,500, on terms. See Mr. Martin.

ON ST. CHARLES AVENUE—Two lots, 50x200 feet each, for $2,100. These are the most far cheaper than anything else on this street, on the North Side. Terms can be arranged. See Mr. Bradshaw.

FOR RENT

WEST END.

NEAR GORDON STREET, right on the car line, we have to offer one of the prettiest ten-room houses in Atlanta, thoroughly modern and right up-to-date. I know of no home that could carry more comforts or in its plan and location be more desirable, built and occupied by its owner, with a lot consisting of more than a half acre. We can rent this furnished or unfurnished, possession any time, and to the right parties a rental that will seem remarkably low. See us at once about this.

ANSLEY PARK, INMAN PARK AND WEST END.

IN ANSLEY PARK, Inman Park, and West End, all of these our prettiest residence sections, we have some of the most attractive homes and bungalows that we have ever been able to offer, and nearly all of these are thoroughly modern, and up-to-date. It is needless to comment on the neighborhood, all having fine car service, very convenient and surrounded by the best schools and churches. Houses of this type seldom occupy space in a renting list. They are generally owned and occupied by their owners. So this is your chance to get an exceptional home at a very reasonable rent on account of the odd season.

IF YOU HAVE MONEY TO LOAN WE CAN PLACE IT.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

ON next Tuesday morning, (legal sale day), at 10 o'clock, we are going to sell before the courthouse door

111 WHITEHALL TERRACE

The lot fronts 42 feet, has a depth of 108 feet and has on it a seven-room, 1½-story, frame dwelling, now renting for $20 per month; and with just a little money spent on the house it would easily bring $25 per month.

This property is obliged to be sold in order to wind up the estate of Mrs. Victoria A. Foster. There is a mortgage of $1,000 bearing 7 per cent interest, maturing September 1, 1913, which must be assumed by the purchaser; and the balance paid in cash.

Go out and examine this property carefully and attend the sale next Tuesday.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Local Delegates to National Real Estate Convention Will Have Interesting Observations on Their Return. Home, Several Developments Are Planned—Loans in July Showed Increase for First Time—Correction of an Error

Atlanta delegates to the convention of the National Association of Real Estate exchanges are expected back home shortly, and they will have some interesting observations to make.

The delegates to this convention went from every important city of the United States, and several important papers on various phases of real estate, including building and leasing, were read.

The proceedings of the convention were so systematized that real estate specialties were considered, so that delegates interested in special features of real estate knew exactly when papers covering those subjects would be read.

DEVELOPMENTS PROSPECTS.

A lot of preparation for development is going on. In some cases this is taking the form of concerns looking for locations—concerns that have outgrown their present quarters.

Then there is a lot of subdivision development. Agents and owners are looking up vacant tracts with a view of subdividing them into building lots for the fall market or for next spring.

MONE SHOWS EASE.

Whether the Wilson administration's willingness to aid the banks both through emergency currency and the new currency bill had its effect or not, the fact refains that local money conditions are better.

The Fulton County Daily Report, in its comparison of loans, showed that more were made in July than in the same month last year. Heretofore the comparison has been the other way.

It is well to remember that there are two sides to money. It can accumulate as rapidly as it can dwindle. Lenders can't let it stand idle indefinitely, and they must gradually meet, the borrower's demands.

Real estate people are greatly pleased with the government's offer of $50,000,000 for southern and western banks, and the believe that instead of the annual stringency during the crop moving season there will be an easy condition.

Cotton is now coming in Georgia and picking will be general during this month. This means that a great many debts left over from last year will be paid this fall, and as the crop has been the most economically planted one in years, it means that the farmers will have a surplus.

Conditions have also been helped by a well paid and profitable if not a large peach crop, which has meant a good deal of cash for communities in the peach belt of the state.

CORRECTION OF ERROR.

In the mention in Sunday's Journal of a sale by Duncan Mcdonald of an acreage tract in north Fulton, it was stated that the consideration was $15,000.

As a matter of fact, no consideration was given out, but the real figure was considerably in excess of $15,000.

WILSON RESIGNS AS MEXICAN ENVOY; NO SUCCESSOR NAMED

of the Americans and foreigners in Mexico."

MAY NAME HALE.

No ambassador to succeed Mr. Wilson is likely to be appointed until a stable government has been established there, William Bayard Hale, the president's close personal friend and biographer, now in Mexico, at the president's request, and who has been making personal reports upon conditions there for months, is being advanced as a probable selection.

President Ready to Announce Mexic Policy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Armed intervention in Mexico is neither a probability nor a possibility, for a peaceable solution of the situation is becoming more probable.

This is the view President Wilson took today of the situation. He let it be known, too, that before the end of the day he would make a brief announcement of the first step in the policy of the United States toward Mexico.

While nothing of what it would be came from the White House, it was expected that the president would formally announce his decision not to recognize the Huerta government.

Ambassador Wilson today gave out a copy of a letter he received from former President Taft on June 29, 1913, approving of the ambassador's course in Mexico.

Senator Bacon, leaving the executive offices after a half-hour talk with the president, said he was not at liberty to discuss his visit. Senator Bacon's view has been that arms should be denied both factions as long as peace proposals were under way. Should peace proposals utterly fail, however, and every method for reaching an understanding be exhausted, he would not be averse to lifting the embargo on arms that both sides might get them on an equality. This is said to be the president's opinion also.

Senator Bacon declared attempts were being made to represent the senate foreign relations committee as being in opposition to the president because it had summoned leading Mexicans to obtain information. He declared the committee is in accord with the president and at the White House it was said the president approved the proposal as a means of throwing further light on the situation.

General Diaz Discusses Affairs in Mexico

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—General Felix Diaz, special envoy from Mexico to Japan, said today he intended to sail August 15 from Vancouver, British Columbia.

"I am going only to express to the Japanese emperor Mexico's appreciation of Japan's action in attending in 1910 a representative to the celebration of centennial of Mexican independence," said the general.

"Mexico is wholly friendly with Japan and the Japanese are very welcome to come to Mexico. We need all the labor we can get."

Concerning his candidacy for the presidency of Mexico, Diaz said he would be the candidate of the Liberal Democratic party, the aim of which, he stated, is the separation of church and state.

Diaz said that Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson had served the United States in a capable and efficient manner.

"The present government is stable in every way," he asserted, "and all troubles are being duly adjusted.

"We now have arranged for 40 per cent of a loan of $50,000,000 Mexican in Paris and Brussels, and all claims and indemnities, including those of the United States, will be promptly paid.

"There is no truth in the report that Japan is negotiating for a tract of land at Magdalena Bay, which might serve as a Japanese naval station. Such a sale, Mexico knows, could not be made by the government under our constitution."

Del Valle Tells of Mexican Conditions

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Reginaldo F. Valle in his home today after having reported to President Wilson at Washington the results of his mission as special commissioner of the state department of Mexico.

He declared reports that foreign governments had sinister designs on or were intending to take liberties with the monroe doctrine were false.

"Foreigners in Mexico are friendly to the United States," he said, "and have no desire to precipitate trouble. They understand they must have patience."

Mr. Del Valle said he talked to 1,500 Mexicans of all classes and while he found some feeling against Americans as a class, due to baseless beliefs, Americans individually are well liked.

Regarding reports of organized attempts to colonize Japanese in Mexico, Mr. Del Valle said:

"Virtually there is no such thing as Japanese colonization in Mexico. Talk of the program of Japanese colonization amounts to nothing.

Eufemio Zapata Killed, Says Mexican Consul

(By Associated Press.)

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Aug. 4.—Mexican Consul Castello today gave out the information that he had received word that Eufemio Zapata had been killed. Consul Castello did not announce from whence his information was received or details of how this member of the family that has been carrying on a guerilla warfare in southern Mexico for some time had met his end.

Catholic Party Ready to Name Its Candidates

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—The convention of the Catholic party for the nomination of candidates for the presidency and vice presidency opened here today. Pedro Lascurain, minister for foreign affairs under Madero, is spoken of as the probable head of the ticket.

Felix Diaz, who thus far is the only presidential aspirant formally announced, probably will have a fierce opponent in the October elections in Ing. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, former minister of education, according to a report from Guadalajara.

To Ask Extradition Of Ex-Governor Brito

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—Extradition papers in connection with the arrest in New Orleans of Emmanuel Castillo Brito, former provisional governor of Campeche, are being prepared by the Mexican government for immediate dispatch to the United States. The documents will deal chiefly with the charge against Brito of robbing the state treasury and the local banks before he rebelled.

Evidence bearing on the murder charge against Brito is on the way here from Campeche.

SHEET MEAL WORKERS HOLD BIG CONVENTION

Governor and Mayor Welcome 300 Delegates From United States and Canada

The delegates to the general convention of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Alliance were tendered a hearty welcome to Georgia in welcoming addresses by city and state officials when the convention was called to order Monday morning in the convention hall on the ninth floor of the Hotel Piedmont. The first speaker was Governor Slaton. He was followed by Mayor Woodward and S. B. Marks, president of the State Federation of Trades of Georgia.

Attending the convention are 300 visiting delegates from every section of the United States and Canada. M. O. Sullivan, of Pittsburg, president of the organization, and J. E. Bray, of Kansas City, secretary-treasurer, are present.

The convention will remain in session until Saturday. After Monday the executive session will begin, at which numerous matters pertaining to the welfare of the organization will be discussed. On Monday afternoon the credentials committee will meet in session and will consume the rest of the day.

The big social event of the convention will be a barbecue Tuesday afternoon at White City.

Prominent among the Atlantians who are making every effort to show the visiting delegates a good time are R. J. Little, delegate from the Atlanta railway shops, and C. H. Barnes, delegate from local 85, and also president of the local Federation of Trades.

SENATE LOBBY PROBERS QUIZ SENATOR TOWNSEND

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator Townsend, of Michigan, was the first witness today before the senate lobby committee. Testimony of Martin M. Mulhall had been finished, and that witness was waiting to be questioned by the house committee about his lobbying activities for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Senator Townsend denied Mulhall's testimony that he talked with him and caracterized Mulhall as a "self-acknowledged corruptionist."

BIG REDUCTIONS ARE ORDERED IN EXPRESS RATES

000 miles the rates are practically the same.

VINDICATION OF LANE.

The report and order of the commission, prepared by Commissioner John H. Marble, are a virtual affirmation of the findings of Interstate Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, now secretary of the interior.

By prescribing a so-called block system, dividing the United States into 950 blocks averaging 2,500 square miles as originally proposed by Mr. Lane, 900,000,000 different rates now published by the express companies will be reduced to less than 650,000, and the interstate commerce commission believes that the system points the way to a solution of the existing maze of freight rates.

COMPANIES WILL APPEAL.

The general impression in official quarters is that the express companies will attempt to test by legal means the constitutionality of the commission's order.

The express companies had filed statements indicating that the losses of revenue under the proposed rates would be intolerable, and argued strenuously that the establishment of the parcel post had deprived them of more than 20 per cent of the revenue they formerly received from parcels of eleven pounds or less. They contended that the express business could not survive the losses from both sources.

COMMISSION'S COMMENT.

"This is equivalent to saying," comments Commissioner Marble in his report, "that inasmuch as shippers have been given the convenience and economy of the parcel post, the express carriers must, on that account, be allowed to charge higher rates than otherwise would be reasonable. This is to say, the commission is called upon to take from the shippers of the country all the benefit that they receive from the parcel post and give it to the express companies in the form of higher rates upon the remaining business."

The new style of rates is not only a simplification of existing rate structures and methods, but in the opinion of rate experts, lays the foundation for future practice in all rate revisions.

"BLOCK" FREIGHT RATES.

While the commission has not considered the practicability of the application of the block system to the making of freight rates, it is known that the question may be taken up at almost any time. With a standard freight rate established by blocks instead of between points, and all other rates stated in percentages of the standards the mystery of the present complicated maze of freight rates, in the opinion of the commission's experts, would be solved.

The basis of the classification prescribed by the commission is that all articles of merchandise of ordinary value are to be carried at first class or ordinary merchandise rates. Articles of food and drink with a few exceptions are second class and are to be carried at 75 per cent of the first class rate.

NEWSPAPER RATES.

The rate for newspapers and periodicals, as well as for bread and such articles for which especially low rates now are charged, are substantially the same as the present rates.

A permanent committee has been appointed to revise the routes of express carriers to eliminate the circuitous routes which are now a cause of considerable complaint on the part of shippers.

AS TO PARCELS POST

As to the parcel post and its effect upon the express companies, the report says:

"With regard to the small package business of the parcel post, it should be noted that it will be carried upon the railroads of the country. So far as the rail carriers are concerned, it is of no consequence to them whether they furnish rail transportation for the express respondents herein or for the postoffice department. The express, moreover, will not experience a gross loss of their earnings upon these small parcels, but only of the net difference between their earnings heretofore and the cost to them of furnishing terminal service upon these parcels. The commission's conclusion is that the establishment of the parcel post is not a jurisdiction for any higher scale of rates than the one here shown to be reasonable.

ORDER FOR TWO YEARS.

The commission's order is for two years only. That period will give abundant opportunity for a test of these rates under varying conditions amounting to a normal period. In no other way can the absolutely proper rate basis for respondents be finally determined. Respondents are also at liberty at any time to bring forward new facts as a basis for a petition for modification of this or any other order."

The decision of the commission, deferred as it has been for more than a year, followed an investigation that occupied nearly six years of hearings, special examination of accounts and reports covering in detail the various phases of the express business. Nearly a carload of books and papers have been filed and are a part of the proceedings in this case.

Extent of Reductions as Ordered by Commission

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The express rates reductions ordered today are illustrated by a sample blank issued a few cities being cited. The extent of these reductions is shown by the rate from Atlanta to Jacksonville, Fla., which is 70 cents. This is reduced to 32 cents.

Reversed, the same rates will apply. The present rate from Atlanta to New Orgeans is 65 cents on five pounds, which is reduced to 31 cents. The present rate from Atlanta to New Orleans on eleven pounds is 90 cents. This is reduced to 44 cents. The express rate on 100 pounds is reduced from $2.85 to $2.35 to New Orleans. The present rate from Atlanta to Spokane on one pound is 30 cents, which is reduced to 29 cents, while the express rate on 100 pounds is reduced from $12.25 to $8.95.

The five-pounds rate from Atlanta to Jacksonville, Fla., is reduced from 60 to 28 cents; from Atlanta to Chicago, from 70 to 32 cents, and from Atlanta to St. Louis, from 70 to 31 cents.

Former Atlantian Dead

ANNISTON, Ala., Aug. 4.—Thomas L. Poss, a well-known citizen of Glen Addie, this city, and a Confederate veteran, died Friday after an extended illness at the age of seventy-four years. His body has been carried to Atlanta, his former home, for burial.

CONTROLLING SYMPTOMS IN DIABETES

A technical medical friend said, "You don't cure diabetics; you relieve them think they are better and prolong their lives for a while."

Suppose that is true and suppose Mrs. Kline, of San Francisco, a niece of the late U. S. Supreme Justice Stephen J. Field, was not cured when she had gangrenous nails and yet lived over six months to live when she went on Fulton's Diabetic Compound sixteen years ago? Suppose that a test would still show some sugar and that she has even now to take the compound occasionally to keep well?

And suppose that a professor in one of the universities of Virginia who was given up with Diabetes in 1899 was still living at last advices in 1912 and had been performing his duties these twenty years and over as the result of this treatment? Are there not thousands of diabetics in the United States who would be delighted to have the same experience, and if they can have it, don't they owe it to their families?

If you have Diabetes and are middle aged or over, you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Diabetic Compound before giving up. It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., 11 North Broad st. and 106 North Pryor st., Atlanta, Ga.

Office Boys' Needs

Lots of boys find the Summer not only a time for recreation, but a time when they can make a little money on the side for themselves, and perhaps help add to the family pocketbook, by getting work as office boys.

During this month of August many office boys go on their vacations and there are chances a-plenty to secure good jobs for as many as desire them.

The Journal Want Ads are just chuck full of such opportunities, and, the bright boy, who has intelligence, will never miss a single day reading The Journal Want Columns and will put in a Want Ad himself until he gets the place he wants.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For cheap ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 428.
